Plan Hearings

On Pay Raise

WASHINGTON—Senator Mond has told The LEADER that he'll try to hold hearings on his pay raise bills for Federal workers within a few weeks. He hopes to get the hearings started even before the New York Democratic National Convention gets under way. Mond, though he's a busy member of both committees, says he thinks there was hardly an agency in Washington that wouldn't use an A stenographer or typist. It's plain that a government agency or office can take care of the emergencies of the agencies. Much the same is true of machine operators—good mouth operators, mimeograph operators, labors, and other business machine operators.

Measurers Needed

Messengers are now being hired by the hundreds. In addition to the usual Washington positions of taking on young and intelligent Negro boys, girls as young as 14 are now being hired. In fact, women are now given the decided preference in all clerical jobs. To repeat, a clerical worker can now choose the agency where he feels he would like to work and the odds will be with him in finding the job.

Performance to Washington

But just a reminder, the Government is now giving preference to people residing in or near Washington for the low-paid clerical jobs. Uncle Sam believes that it had policy to bring in people from out of town and to pay high salaries to high-priced city.

Charges Favoritism

In B'klyn Navy Yard

Ratings and pay rates for women employees in the Brooklyn Navy Yard are frequently handed out on the basis of favoritism and not on merit, according to complaints made to The LEADER by persons residing in or near Washington for the low-paid clerical jobs. Uncle Sam believes that it had policy to bring in people from out of town and to pay high salaries to high-priced city.

For example, a junior clerk exam is now open. The job pays $1,440 and there's a real need for them. However, applicants are limited to persons possessing within radius of 50 miles of Washington. Persons as young as 14 can take the test (no experience is required) no matter where they reside, just so long as they have a Washington address.

Incidentally, the clerk's exam is now open and it will be indefinitely. The Army has taken hundreds from the register to work in its Family Allowance Division of the Adjutant General's Office. The division is now in and it will administer the allotment plan recently approved by Congress to the families of men in the service.

Appointments, Exhaust Old Patrolman List

The current patrolman list was picked clean of all available eligibles and the first civil service examination for a new patrolman list on Saturday, August 8. The long-overdue appointments for the new list, which the State Civil Service Commission had promised for months, were no substitute for the old list that was exhausted years ago.

The present list, which is being used up in the appointment of 7,095 candidates for the Fire Department, will be exhausted by August 21. The next examination to fill the vacancies on the list will be held in Flushing Meadow Park. Next week, will give the department an opportunity to fill all its vacancies in the fireman list on the basis of the new list.

The highest eligible on the new list, which will be promulgated by the State Civil Service Commission, will be the 5,608th candidate on the list. The highest eligible on the old list was number 4,089. Thus, the appointment of 7,095 candidates for the Fire Department is going to expand by approximately 400 eligibles for the Fire Department.

The second week of the examination will cover the fireman list. The third week will cover the conductors list. The fourth week will cover the other lists that are being filled as fast as possible. The fifth week will cover the conductors list.

The new list will be composed of those who passed the June 6 written examination for the Fire Department. The physical examination for the Fire Department will be held on Tuesday, August 18, and will be given at the same time.

The new list will be used to fill all the vacancies on the old list. The highest eligible on the new list will be the 5,608th candidate on the list. How to Get Into Naval Aviation

Your Navy is expanding tremendously these days to meet the demands of World War II. One of the most important phases of this expansion is Naval Aviation. There are need of thousands of enthusiastic young men who are willing to fly for their country. There are need of thousands of enthusiastic young men who are willing to fly for their country. There are need of thousands of enthusiastic young men who are willing to fly for their country. There are need of thousands of enthusiastic young men who are willing to fly for their country.

The only way to become a pilot is to join the armed forces and volunteer for pilot training. The entire course lasts only eight weeks, but CPT training is, basically, graduation in Civilian Pilot Training. TM is the major flight course, and it is mandatory for all Air Force pilots who wish to fly.

The editors of the Civil Service LEADER have long felt that the problems of postal workers deserve deeper, more sympathetic attention than they are given. The postal worker is one of the best-known of Uncle Sam’s array of employees. He is praised for his faithfulness, his trustworthiness, his competence. But this praise has seldom been translated into proper working conditions. This newspaper turns over the pages of this special section to the leaders of the postal workers. In their own words—the most effective words of all—they tell their story: of the need for increased pay, without strings; of the need for better treatment of the substitute; of the need for an improved promotion system based on merit; of the need for a system of appeals; of the need for the protection of the morale. In every case, every official, every Congressman, will give heed to what the postal office employees have to say. It is important that they shall be heard.

We Don’t Get Anything Cheaper

Just Because We’re Postal Men

The LEADER asked the president of the Joint Conference of Affiliated Postal Employees, Martin Shapiro, to state the case of the postal workers in simple, understandable terms.（The following article is excerpted from the following article:）

Meet the Man Who Heads 24,000 Postal Employees

Meet Martin Shapiro, who heads up over 24,000 postal employees as president of the Joint Conference of Affiliated Postal Employees. Martin is one of the spokesmen of the current drive for improved wage standards.

When Martin Shapiro was nineteen years old, his mother suggested that he take a postal clerk examination. Martin, violating a clause as a postal clerk, took the test, passed, and was appointed. Little did he realize at the time that this step was the first act toward the start of his career as an organizer. Today, dynamic, with a short, neat mustache indicative of his character, Martin has since 1921, pursued his excess energy into numismatics, bat-lifting, and the organization of his fellow-employees.

Today, Martin Shapiro is the president of the Joint Conference of Affiliated Postal Employees, an organization of the twenty-nine post office employees organizations in the New York area affiliated with the A.P.L. In this position, he is a key man in the fight for the much-needed, long-overdue wage increase for post office workers. The Joint Conference is also fighting for competitive civil service examinations to supersede supervisory positions, the elimination of the indirect system of "substitutes," a better system of bookkeeping so that the Postal Department gets credit for non-post office duties.

Meet the Man Who Heads 24,000 Postal Employees

Unfair Bookkeeping

The unfair system of bookkeeping by which the annual post office report shows a deficit, is one of Martin’s pet peeves. This deficit is used as an argument by the Department of the Treasury, to show that postal employees to get a salary increase.

In reality," Martin says, "the Post Office Department has made money ever since Farley was Postmaster-General."

"Fool soldier’s mail. Congressmen (farmers), special rates for publications, books, educational purposes, are custer," Martin says, "but at least we ought to get the bookkeeping credit for the work."

Three Since 1935

Martin Shapiro was elected to the executive board of Joint 24, National Federation of Post Office Clerks, in 1935. Four years after his appointment as a postal clerk, in 1933, with membership in the organization dwindling, morale at rock-bottom because of the depression—caused forefingers, he was drafted to the presidency of the local. "Gleeding over with enthusiasm, a born organizer, possessing a natural talent for solving other men’s problems, Martin Shapiro, in eight years, took hold of the disintegrating organization, with its 150 members, and built it up into one of the strongest locals in the country, with a membership of 2,000." How did he do that? "An organization is more jealous than a wife," Martin says. "You’ve got to give it every last drop of your time. If you don’t give it a hand, you haven’t got an organization."

Martin gave the organization its drive for improved wage standards. In 1935, in 15 hours a day at the General Post Office, Martin worked 30 hours on the job and the remaining ones on the work of the organization, correcting individual grievances, helping members with proper security recognition, choosing the date for Labor Day vacation, even solving domestic problems. In helping members of the organization, Martin has only one question to ask: "Are you dues paid up?"

Now a Family Man

Last October Martin was elected president of the Joint Conference. His term as president of local 231 expired in March of this year. "Since April 1, Martin has gained four more pounds. He’s a ‘family man’ for the first time in his life. "Previously," he says, "I averaged only one day a year with my family."

As president of the Joint Conference, Martin Shapiro has been without pay. He has a tremendous satisfaction now, just as he did during his eight years as president of local 231, in helping his fellow employees.

The hardest job in the whole world is to represent people. There are many headaches. The only satisfaction we get is when we successfully institute better conditions.

The Legislative Background of the Salary Controversy

WILLIAM T. BROWNE, Jr., is President of Local 10, New York, Federal Employees’ Organization. For the record, he includes in this group of articles the background of the legislative struggle over pay for postal employees. The Senate’s present program prior to the recess, which did cause a sudden stop in legislation, to the Senate, may come back later, may come back in a different form, may come back in a different manner, generally. It did permit of discussion. That means at least that there were at substantial levels, by the Senate, a notion that there is a price for private labor, but—what was happening in the Senate, the House, which had not received an increase in pay since 1923, is a different ball game. After the N.R.A. Roosevelt’s amendments were defeated, and the N.R.A. bill was passed, and this occurred a year ago, it was not in the Senate. W. T. B. Browne, as a result of the N.R.A. bill of 1938, was appointed through both Houses, the last pay raise, which, while not opposed by the organizations, was defeated by the Senate. There was a committee of the Senate formed to take care of the protection of the postal employees. This committee was interested in the following amendments. Next came the so-called "Golden Bill"—the amendment offered for the protection of the postal employees. There were many, many requests from all over the world of a workman, a laborer, a clerk, laborers and other employees who are doing the job, for the department, as against the postal employees, for the protection of employees, for the protection of the employees, for the protection of the employees. There were a number of amendments that had to be incorporated into the bill. The final attempt was the effort to incorporate the workman and the laborer by the bill that the government workers, the public service employees, and the laborers. This was in deep contrast to the wage of the A.P.P.C. as presented by Mr. William Humiston, president of the American Federation of Labor and the industrial federation. Mr. Humiston, the House Civil Service Committee, and of the affiliated American Federation Government employees (Confounded on Page Five)
The Sub—Most Abused Of Postal Employees

Author of the article which follows is EPRAHIM HANMAN, Secretary-Treasurer of the National Federation of Post Office Clerks. The problem he brings to light is one that has been causing concern among confronting postal employees.

The substitute is the most abused of all postal employees. Very few people realize that, when a man enters the postal service, he has to serve an indefinite number of years as an assistant substitute, before he becomes a regular substitute. During this period, the substitutes are utilized as auxiliaries to replace men who are called away, on leave of vacation, and compensatory time for Saturday or Sunday work.

They are particularly resentful of the fact that, no matter how long he remains a substitute, he cannot get out of this situation until he becomes a regular substitute. Many men in the New York Post Office have been substitutes for years, without their status being changed. The period of substitution is brought to an end only when the substitute to a regular position, or at the expiration of the period of regular service, or by death, retirement, or expiration from the service, is filled in this manner. Substitute clerks and carriers are also used to assist the regular clerks and carriers to learn more about their jobs. The resultant experience has raised the morale of the employees involved.

Promotion in the Post Office Should Come By Merit System

In order to become a Post Office clerk or carrier, a candidate must pass an open-competitive examination. The average clerk or carrier can have little hope, however, of getting a promotion to a supervisory position. While advancement to top-grade clerk or carrier is automatic, appointment to the position of foreman or higher requires representation by the President of the Postmaster, without a competitive examination. The expectation of advancement under such a system must, therefore, remain slight.

The carriers have been as fair and consistent in their desire to help. They are particularly resentful of the fact that, no matter how long he remains a substitute, he cannot get out of this situation until he becomes a regular substitute. Many men in the New York Post Office have been substitutes for years, without their status being changed. The period of substitution is brought to an end only when the substitute to a regular position, or at the expiration of the period of regular service, or by death, retirement, or expiration from the service, is filled in this manner. Substitute clerks and carriers are also used to assist the regular clerks and carriers to learn more about their jobs. The resultant experience has raised the morale of the employees involved.

Morale Is Down

Morale has been low in the past few months, due to a reduced emphasis on the war effort and the discouragement caused by the freezing order. The morale of the substitute employees, the regular clerks and carriers, and the regular executives is at an all-time low.

The carriers have been as fair and consistent in their desire to help. They are particularly resentful of the fact that, no matter how long he remains a substitute, he cannot get out of this situation until he becomes a regular substitute. Many men in the New York Post Office have been substitutes for years, without their status being changed. Substitute clerks and carriers are also used to assist the regular clerks and carriers to learn more about their jobs. The resultant experience has raised the morale of the employees involved.

Pay Question

The postal employees ask for a raise in pay because of the present rate of separation of regulars from the department, it is felt that they are in a nonentity trying to make a living. They have been advised by those in authority that they want no raise at the expense of the regulars. The problem is above question and the regulars have clearly indicated that they want no raise at the expense of the substitute employees, the regular clerks and carriers are willing to work for the same money. The promotion list is frozen and the substitute employees are legally entitled to a raise in pay at the expense of the substitute employees, the regular clerks and carriers are willing to work for the same money.

Scanlon Bill

The Scanlon Bill is an attempt to put over this move, to force the postal employees to work for less money and at the same time, to secure the immediate resumption of the wage question. The problem is a serious one, and it is hoped that the postal employees will be able to secure the necessary funds to put over this move.
The Time for Congress To Act Is Right Now!

Hard-hitting EMANUEL KUSHELWITZ, who tells Congress what it needs to know, is also chair, below, in president of Empire Branch, 26, National Association of Letter Carriers.

In increases in pay in accordance with the increase of cost of living is a thing of the past. Yet, the letter-carrier remains the forgotten man. Why? Can anyone answer this question? If you can, kindly inform your mailman the next time he makes a delivery to you. Big business increases executive salaries, in most cases, with government funds. At the same time, the cost of living is rapidly increasing, and we are denied an increase or even a bonus for the duration of the war. Why?

The Overtime Pay Plan Doesn’t Work in Practice

The article below presents another viewpoint on the overtime pay plan. It is presented by the C.W. PAIRO, carrier, secretary of the Joint Conference of Affiliated Postal Unions, and the following letter carriers: WRIGLEY LIZADHER on August 4, it becomes clear that the Administration has no intention of any legislation. October 1st is the date when the federal agencies now have authority to pay overtime to its employees, but this authority expires immediately.

“Simple justice,” he adds, “would be to give all federal employees including the Postal, a plausable place on an equal footing for the wage cut. As a result, the Postal, would be placed on an equal footing for the wage cut. As a result, the Postal, would be given the same pay cut as other Government employees, but this authority expires immediately.

The Post Office laborer is regarded by the courts as a man, entitled to the same rights and privileges as any other citizen. The Introduction of this bill, sponsored by Senator M. J. Sullivan, president, American Federation of Labor, and still protect the interests of the forgotten man. The true title of the group can whole-heartedly back the Post Office laborer’s rights, who now are in a terrible plight.

The above represents just a few excerpts and the recitations of the Post Office employees. It is highly hoped that it may be brought to the attention of Congress and the President of these United States, and legislation enacted to add the letter carrier to the list of employees who have been reduced in pay. Now, with the cost of living rising we are denied an increase or even a bonus for the duration of the war. Why?

Postal Legislation

Another of the grievances which has long agitated postal workers is their inability to obtain an adequate overtime pay law. The fight is for the recognition of the Post Office as a big employer or industry.

The above represents just a few executives and the remunerations they are receiving.

The United States Postal Service is a big employer and should be treated as such. It would be nice to have an adequate remuneration for the work done by postal workers. An Appeal to My Boss

You are unaware of me, although you see me every day.

You do not know me, although you speak to me, and we are very friendly.

You are not conscious of my existence, although, frequently, you look for me.

When you look for me, you know that you will find me. For I am always on the job. You can depend on me.

I like you to depend on me, because I appreciate your trust. I am proud of your faith in me.

I like to see the smile that lights your face, when I am of service to you. I get a kick out of working for you.

There is only one thing, Boss. I am afraid you have forgotten me.

I know that you are busy, that you are thinking of your sons in the service, that you are struggling against the high cost of living, that you are wondering how you can purchase more war bonds and stamps to help your country.

You have your responsibilities. Your families to clothe and feed. Your churches to support. Your children to educate. You can be excused for forgetting me.

But, still, Boss, you have forgotten me.

I, too, have my sons in the service. I, too, am struggling against the high cost of living, wondering how I can purchase more war bonds and stamps to help our country in its hour of peril.

I, too, have my responsibilities. My family to clothe and feed. My church to support. My children to educate. And, I am not able to meet my responsibilities because of my salary.

You see, Boss, I have been working for the same salary for the past seventeen years. You have not given me a raise since 1925.

In 1932, when you were up against it, Boss, I worked a full month for you without pay.

In 1933, when you were still hard-pressed, I took a fifteen percent cut in salary. Again, in that same year, I went on a nine-day furlough without pay.

Today, Boss, I am up against it. I need your help. And, I know that you will help me, if you will but think of me.

You, the American people, are My Boss.

I am your postal employee, your letter-carrier, your Post Office clerk, your Post Office laborer, your railway mail man and motor vehicle employee.

There are several bills in Congress designed to grant me an increase in salary. Won't you send the coupon on this page to your Congressman?

Tips On Jobs in Washington

WITH WILLIAM LEWIS

Dear Mr. Lewis: . . .

I am writing to you relative to your last two columns pertaining to a reorganization of the Greater New York Park Employees' Association according to title.

The first thing I suggest is being considered by a number of our members. As a matter of fact, Bronx Council is already on record as being unsympathetic in favor of it.

There being no physical setup of the association requires considerable work, therefore be there are objections and disadvantages put in on the line.

I will suggest that the matter at Central Council in the very near future.

Very truly yours,

Gerald Grainger, Pres.

War, Navy Hiring

War and Navy departments continue to advertise for a number of positions in Washington despite the fact that the War and Navy agencies have had in effect for some time. A number of people have been in both clerical and Navy positions for a long time now, and a very large number of Navy clerks have filled their current positions, which almost all of them are not permanent.

Since the precipice in earnest the acceptance of this offer, this whole phase of the redistribution of patrolmen from the 22nd Precinct will be a 2nd hour after six tours.

Here's a Plan

To meet this problem, we recommend the following original plan: Let there be established a Special Patrol Squad under the supervision of the Bureau of Operations. This squad will be on call at all times and will be equipped with radio and trained for emergency relief in all areas. The city may be divided into districts for the purpose, with each district to have its own special patrol squad.

The manner in which the department, on the other hand, has handled the patrol details before is met with considerable lesscriticism. The Brooklyn Borough is considered the center of the city and the tours are regular, and because the officers are trained in patrol work, the city is better policed than before.

The Department of Police is now considering the possibility of changing the patrol details in these districts. Hence the Department of Police is not basing the decision on the patrol details of the past.

In the past, there was a lot of reluctance to the racial precincts in the city.

Most of this shifting of police, in the past, has been done in the city, not in the suburbs.

One dollar per week is being paid as a patrolman for his services.

The following lines show the occupations in which women are for the first time taking the work which has not necessarily open in all those occupations every day, but sufficient openings are available for qualified applicants to keep their registrations active with the United States Employment Service.

Applicants should register at the office indicated at the head of each line.

Mayor Fires Investigators
In Welfare Department

Mayor LaGuardia opened war upon the 67 Welfare Department social investigators this week completely abrogates the status of the investigators, who decided to wait for the City Council to take action.

Postponement of the Council's action was indicated by the Mayor to the City Council to take action.

In the Welfare Department, is believed by observers to have indicated to the Mayor that no investigation would be made to break the status quo. Thus, this action should

The winning entry of the State Teachers' Association's writing contest, held during the month of July, is unique, varied products of the imagination and deft fingers of government employees. The spectacular 4-foot portrait of the President is the product of several years' painstaking work by Mr. W. Zeller of South Orange, N.J. The likeness is striking, and the medium of postage stamps has been cleverly employed to give an artistic effect. For shadows on the face, green and red stamps have been used.
