Post Office Considers Hiring Women

6-DAY WEEK ON WAY OUT?
On $1,440 a Year

In Washington, the publicity that has been pouring out of Washington suggests that Government agencies are bringing a hard enough time to recruit low-paid clerical workers to keep them. Congress this week is expected to be granted, nevertheless, the Bureau approval, and Post Office officials will urge the Congress to the o.k. of the authorities. And everyone in Washington knows that the Post Office really wants almost anything it wants from Congress.

Post Office Considers Hiring Women: Fight for Salary Raises Gets Tougher

WASHINGTON.—The drive to raise the salaries of "white-collar" Federal workers has been stepped up, and the fight will be continued, according to the Post Office officials. The Post Office has announced that it will begin recruiting women to fill the positions of clerks, carriers, and other postal workers who are required to work more than 40 hours a week.

Washington is a city of apartments. No other city in America is like it. Government boys and girls who send money home or thereabouts who send money home. From $40 to $90 a month will put a one-room apartment, which will sometimes three, generally share a one-room apartment. The girls don't even want it at the seams. Within 18 months

SANITATION SUNDAY, Pay Knocked Out

The period of Sunday pay for collectors of the Sanitation De- partment was brief indeed, though the reform had been long needed. In the months that followed, Sunday pay was suddenly knocked out last month. Commissioner Carey at a Board of Estimate meeting last week said that the Bud- get Director knocked it out again, and the Board of Estimates could not reverse this action because the usual one-cent money law is still in force.
LISTS

No Commissioners, No Lists

Three city lists which would have been made for the March 1 elections have not yet been certified. This means that a number of city elections will be held on March 1 without the presence of commissioners to give their O.K. on the lists to the public. There was only one commissioner available to the election last week, E. Morgan Morton. The other two, Paul J. Knox and William H. Sayre, were under suspension.

Superman Want Conductor Jobs

The superman, who know how to read, buy a ticket, and deposit it, will have his chance to be a conductor. This town is about to lose the service of its present bus conductor association, through its president, John. Therefore, there will be a number of conductor jobs to be filled. We have had a great number of those jobs and that position should be kept. Besides, who would make better conductors than the women eligibles?

These jobs are among the many more jobs which will be filled up at the February meeting of the Service Commission, on Saturday, February 27.

More porter jobs in the Board of Transportation list were certified by the Board of Estimation and Award to be filled on March 1. There will be more to be filled before the new list comes out. We have had a great number of those jobs and that position should be kept. Besides, who would make better conductors than the women eligibles?

Public Work was already mixed up about the whole thing. Some sections were left with absolute staffs and some had half the personal staffs, and all were to return to work on March 1. That means that some workers will get back to work on Washington’s Birthday, too. Some choose to work on that day and others choose not.

Welfare split the day as employers chose among themselves about 50-50. Water Supply had an even split, too, but were assigned their holidays off, as was Parks.

State Employees Demand Pay Adjustment: Legislators Threatened Reduced Services

ALBANY.—Confirming proposals which would adversely affect the employment and welfare of charitable beneficiaries, state employees were made at last hearing in the Assembly Human Resources Committee.

Demands upon the legislators for a 25 per cent reduction from personnel reduction, for the elimination of "high salaried" personnel for "civilian defense" petitions for more pay, extension of the in-laws, and war service retirement, was approved.

On the economy side, Walter M. Opp of the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Workers, who said that all state institutions are being charged for state employees, took exception to the suggestion that all state employees be brought under the Federal-Hamilton career ladder, would have paid annuity rates. He also claimed that the poor state employees, the state setting forth alleged immoral conditions and employee abuses in the state hospitals, and had asked for

Kondrat Discusses Pay-Raise Bills

ALBANY.—Last week, Ernest J. L'Hommedieu, state Welfare supervisor, told a LEADER reporter: that personnel had appeared in support of the Barrett and Custatone bills to employ even lower salaried employees at a public hearing before the Employment Committee of which he is chairman. One of the Federation of Personnel, or employees in a large company, would permit employees to receive compensation when living outside of institutions for other reasons than "overcrowding" and another would give all employees in the state institutions the Barrett list.

Early this week, Bill Kondrat, president of the New York State Hospital Employees' Association, protested the implication that hospital employees weren't interested in the Barrett bill saying: "We're very much interested, and have no vacancy schedules todays.

"It is unfair to such Federalized employees to be denied the privileges and benefits enjoyed by their co-workers who are not in the same Federal service," he continued. He then proceeded to point out that Barrett's bill was "a much needed legislation." The U.S. Secretary of Labor has recommended that the State Employment Commission "to promulgate regulations for the State" is "impossible for those in wage brackets to work rapidly-for living costs." He said there are over 1,500 job vacancies in state institutions and workers will not take them at state pay.

Thus far, time the nurse rites are drawn based on percentage increases in the state's changing living costs.

ALBANY.—Governor and Mrs. Lehman were guests of the Association of State and Local Government at its 26th annual dinner, at the Hotel Newbold, Wednesday, March 11. Other guests included: John L. O'Malley, J. B. Bryan, the President of the Association; Senator Healy and John J. Donaghy, President of the New York State Education Association; and Miss Moffat, Houses and Means committee.

A WARE of the need for women in the defense of the country, for the defense of women to get them, the Women’s Bureau has urged the U.S. Department of Labor has made a call to women to help fill the gaps in the defense field. This is a continuation of a movement of women across the country that appeared last week, Assemblers and Inspectors for Defense. The field for bench workers and assemblymen is expanding. Women, because of their dexterity and ability in certain types of work, are preferred in the taking of parts to be assembled. Women are effective in assembling the small electric motor, or in assembly work that requires fine hand skills. Women have been reported as especially suited for the types of work that call for finesse and manual dexterity.

Inspector shrimp in the mill is high in all defense industries. Women are being trained to fill this need. The training is of utmost importance in the war effort. Women are being trained to do their part in this national defense. The training is being given in all defense industries.

Heavy Traffic. "Air traffic in this week will be 20 to 30 times heavier than today’s volume," said Mr. Hinckley. "This is the time when the work of inspectors is most important. We have many women in the mill who are trained to do the work." Heavy traffic is the name given to the work of inspectors who screen out defective parts before they are assembled. Women trained in this work are valuable to the defense effort. Women are being trained to do this work. The training is being given in all defense industries.

Books for Defense. Defense industries and defense have opened two new fields for book publishers. Thousands of words are being put out to feed the hungry minds of men, women, and children. The need for new books is being felt in the defense effort. Books are being published to meet the need. The need for new books is being felt in the defense effort.

Sure It's Terrible!

It's a sad thing that sanitation men have lost their holiday pay. The arguments in favor of Sunday pay are strong, and many employees have reason to believe they will get it. Today, the pressure of higher living costs, more salaries than ever before.

It's not quite the same thing as losing to private industry, everybody would yell "It's terrible! That shouldn't be!" But it is terrible and it shouldn't be in the civil service, either.

Pay Raises Overdue

A few talking about salaries: In all services—New York City, New York State, Federal—there has been not much progress. Most of the raises were given out months ago. They were a pretty pittance to compared to need, and are a great deal behind in a morass of talk. It begins to look as if the kindly words are designed for the very purpose of giving hope and removing demands from the Federal service. Ramper pay-projection increases were authorized months ago. To New York

UMBLING over the highways from Washington to New York are 50 trucks, carrying the records of the various offices of the War and Navy Division of the Department of Labor. The Division is making its home in New York, in 1560 Broadway. This month, the Commissioner of the Division of the Labor Department will come to the city.

To the officials and employees of both offices, welcome to your new location. And to all the city's big city, welcome to you.

S. R. ABBOTT, P. B.

Don't you feel that the Federal Service is the people's service, under its own superintendence, entering into 48 separate arrangements with 48 separate Civil Service Commissions? What do other readers think of that?

To Another

J. A. C.: A civil service employee was discharged for using profanity in the presence of minor children. The U.S. Commission is unable to answer such requests because of the war emergency.

MOST men who have a little money in the bank are wondering whether to spend it now in clothes or take their savings to bank. Frankly, the clothing manuoutlook for next year as any other subject.

One thing is certain: they are not looking forthcoming with new styles, as the number of changes doing away with clothing which take a yard of cloth are few this season.

Apprentice Boys Take Two Exams

The 1,185 young men who filed applications for the apprenticeship in automotive trades, test in December will be given their written examinations at 10 a.m., Saturday, February 26, in Stewart Park High School, Essex, Grand and Ludlow streets, Manhattan.

The written examination will carry a weight of 40 percent, the physical, 20. Only those who receive 70 percent on the written test will be permitted to take the physical test. Questions on the written test will be designed to determine the candidate's aptitude for mechanical work.

Most Do Heavy Work

The physical examination will be a stiff one. Boys who pass this test will be well qualified to do the heavy work assigned to apprentices in the automotive repair shops. The test will consist of four parts, weight lift, posture, squats, abdominal muscle lift, ladder climb. The lifting of a 150 pound weight with two hands at full arm's length above the candidate's head is required to obtain 100 percent in the weight lift test. Eighty-seven and one-half pounds was the average for the three apprentices 88 per cent.

Seventy-five pounds resulted in 73 percent and 60 pounds, 60 percent.

In the abdominal muscle test, the candidate was told to lie on his back and raise himself to a sitting position, one, two, three. A total of 35 pounds behind his neck for a perfect score. Seventeen of the 26 eligibles made 35 pounds noted 85 percent and 83 pounds. Seventy percent is the normal squeeze is a masochistic test and the ladder climb is comparatively easy.
