Always protect your membership status

A break in union membership status can have long-term future implications. Your membership status affects your eligibility with respect to:

- seeking or holding union office;
- signing nominating petitions for potential candidates;
- voting in union elections, and
- voting on collective bargaining contracts.

Only members “in good standing” can participate in these activities. To be in “good standing,” your dues cannot be delinquent.

If you go on unpaid leave or for any other reason have a break in your employment status, your dues will not continue to be paid through payroll deductions. You must make arrangements to pay your dues directly to CSEA to continue your membership status. If you are either laid off or placed on leave without pay status due to becoming disabled by accident, illness, maternity or paternity, you may be eligible for dues-free membership status for a period not to exceed one year.

You must notify the CSEA Membership Records Department at 1-800-342-4146, Ext. 327, of any change in your status and what arrangements you are making to continue your membership in CSEA.

ICSEA's support helped put candidates into office across the state in 1995, sending a strong message that the union is a political force that will fight for its members.

In one of the most impressive victories, CSEA took on the establishment in the City of Troy and won. For more than a year, the city manager, appointed by the Republican-controlled city council, had ridden roughshod over all the city unions. He especially targeted CSEA, however, laying off employees and attempting to break the contract time and again.

CSEA won the grievances it filed, and the final victory came when the manager resigned because of CSEA pressure. Then, CSEA-backed mayoral candidate Mark Pattison was elected, as were all the candidates CSEA endorsed for city council. That includes the city's first minority candidate to win a council seat, CSEA member Christine Stone.

“We targeted the Troy elections because the elected officials there stood back and allowed their city manager to misuse and abuse loyal city employees,” CSEA President Danny Donohue said. “We got involved in elections because we want the best leaders possible to represent communities across the state, leaders who understand the value of public employees.”

In another important victory, CSEA backed incumbent Erie County Executive Dennis Gorski when even his own party tried to beat him in the primary. Gorski’s record shows that he supports the important work public employees do in Erie County.

In Albany County, CSEA backed Michael Breslin in his successful bid to be elected county executive. Breslin was appointed to the job in January to fill a vacancy created when his predecessor was elected to the state Senate.

Since his appointment, Breslin, a Democrat, clearly showed his commitment to public employees as he fought plans by Gov. Pataki to relocate thousands of state workers.

Meanwhile, in Long Island’s Nassau County, CSEA played a role in the constitution of the new county legislature. The 19-seat legislature replaces a five-seat board of supervisors, and since CSEA represents nearly 12,000 Nassau County employees, the union wanted to be involved in the election of the new legislature. And involved it was. CSEA supported Bruce Blakeman, a Republican, who will be presiding officer of the new legislature, and Bruce Nyman, a Democrat, who will be minority leader.

Also in Nassau County, CSEA backed North Hempstead Supervisor candidate May W. Newberger in her primary and general election. Newberger won the general election by 500 votes. Her opponent in the primary also ran in the general election. Newberger’s victory shows that CSEA members can affect an election outcome; the union ran a serious effort to get the town’s 2,500 CSEA members out to vote.

MANHATTAN — Hope is in short supply these days for working people. But amazingly, hope began to sprout like first blades of spring grass, in late October at a mid-town Manhattan hotel where delegates met to elect new AFL-CIO leadership in the first contested election in 40 years.

CSEA President Danny Donohue joined AFSCME President Gerald McEntee to strongly support a new team of AFL-CIO leadership comprised of John Sweeney, president of the Service Employees International Union; Richard Trumka, president of the United Mine Workers; and Linda Chavez-Thompson, AFSCME international vice president. Their team, The New Voice for American Workers, used rising sun rays to symbolize their belief in the rebirth needed by the labor movement.

Chavez-Thompson, elected by acclamation as the first AFL-CIO executive vice president, embodies the New Voice agenda of promoting union leaders who more reflect a diverse grass-roots union membership.

Sweeney told delegates that as workers look at their paychecks, the political system and the public debate, they wonder who is speaking for them.

"Then, in fear and frustration, they look for leadership to the Rush Limbaughs and the Patrick Buchanans of our land, demagogues who seek scapegoats rather than solutions for the problems of stagnant wages, corporate greed and a fractured society," he said.

Sweeney challenged all workers who are angered and agitated, fed up and frustrated and "tired of being treated like so much road kill on the highway of American life," to reject the status quo and rebuild the labor movement. Calling for bold and sweeping change accompanied by intensively organizing the unorganized, CSEA President Danny Donohue joined in the spirit of hope and unity pledged by new AFL-CIO leaders.

"CSEA is proud to be in the forefront of calling for a stronger, more vibrant labor movement that will pull together against the politicians who are now trying to destroy the quality of life of all working families just to provide tax breaks for the rich," Donohue said.

A message from CSEA President Danny Donahue

Make registering to vote your number one New Year’s resolution

CSEA members were big winners on Election Day ’95.

All across the state, CSEA-endorsed candidates won impressive victories. Nowhere was the victory more sweet than in the City of Troy where we elected the entire CSEA ticket. The city will switch from an appointed city manager to an elected full-time mayor in January and, thanks to our efforts, the new mayor will be a big improvement over the current administration which was notoriously (and brashly) anti-CSEA.

1995 was a good warm-up for next year’s election. And it included warning signals for Newt Gingrich clones throughout New York.

The future direction of our country and of our state will be at stake when voters go to the polls in 1996 to select a new president, a new House of Representatives and a new state Legislature.

It will be one of those decisive elections that will be a turning point for the public sector.

We will be able to reject Newt Gingrich-inspired politics which targets New York state for massive cuts in federal aid. We will be able to say NO to the politics of selfishness which gives the well-to-do a free ride at the expense of working class middle income people.

If you value the environment, and we do; if you value health care, and we do; if you value higher education, and we do; then we cannot sit out the next election.

Imagine — if you can — if every union member who is eligible to vote did so. Better still, imagine if every member of every union family did the same.

If you are not already registered to vote, make it your New Year’s resolution to do so immediately. Make sure your family, friends and neighbors are registered as well.

We are in for the political fight of our lives in 1996 and will need all the political muscle we can get.

Election victories in the city of Troy symbolized CSEA’s influence in voting booths all across the state. All seven candidates listed on this CSEA-sponsored billboard in downtown Troy were elected.
SYRACUSE — If you ask CSEA President Danny Donohue, CSEA is not only the best union for public sector employees, it’s the best union for private sector employees, too.

That’s the message he delivered to the presidents and members of the 38 private sector locals at the second statewide meeting of CSEA’s Private Sector Division recently held in Syracuse.

“We believe that by bringing in the private sector and integrating it with the public sector, we can only make this union stronger.”

The meeting featured workshops on organizing, legislation affecting not-for-profit employers, and private sector labor law.

“Learning and working together provides tremendous opportunities for us to build and strengthen CSEA’s Private Sector Division,” Donohue said.

Following the workshops, CSEA Executive Vice President Mary Sullivan, Secretary Barbara Reeves and Treasurer Maureen Malone joined the Private Sector Division representatives as Donohue convened the second meeting of the Private Sector Executive Committee.

The principal item of business was to elect the chair who will sit on CSEA’s Board of Directors.

Elected to the position was Health Research Inc. Albany Division Local 316 President Dan Vallee who said that the Private Sector Division’s focus would need to be on organizing in the private sector.

“I’m very excited” said CSEA Director of Private Sector Affairs Michael Richardson. “The private sector members are showing a keen interest in CSEA’s expansion into the private sector and this meeting allowed them to come together and establish their own agenda.”

“I’m certain that we’re going to be growing by leaps and bounds. We’re going to strongly focus on organizing,” Vallee said. “If the public sector is going to privatize, we’re going to organize.”

Donohue noted that the popularity of privatization in government would bring an increased need for organizing in the private sector.

“CSEA is intent on growing,” he said. “With our Organizing Department we intend to go into the private sector because we believe there are a lot of private sector employees out there who are ‘in the public service’ who need the best representation they can get.”

Vallee said that as the group’s representative on CSEA’s Board of Directors, he would bring the Division’s issues to more prominence within CSEA.

“I’m looking forward to working with all our officers and members in the private sector and bringing to the workshops issues and topics that are germane to the private sector,” he said.

Other CSEA private sector activists were pleased with the meeting. College Association at Delhi Local 628 President Dorothy Spiliotopoulos said that having representation on the CSEA Board of Directors would give the group more clout.

“I’m excited to see that with President Donohue on board we’re starting to get acknowledged and all the officers know we’re here,” she said. “We want to be a partner in full with CSEA and give what we can give. It’s exciting to be a part of this.”

CSEA Central Region President Jim Moore also attended the meeting, and congratulated the division on its growth.

“We’re looking forward to making the private sector an integral part of the union in our region, and we congratulate you for your progress and your activism,” he said.

CSEA gears up for mental health fight

ALBANY — Indications of massive impending cuts, facilities hit lists and continuing severe understaffing have disrupted and demoralized OMH employees in psychiatric centers across New York in recent months.

CSEA is urging its members to tell their state lawmakers to put some sanity back into mental health policy.

CSEA PRESIDENT DANNY DONOHUE meets with newly-appointed Office of Mental Health Commissioner James Stone to express the union’s concerns about the future of OMH.

Member seriously injured in attack by patient

BRENTWOOD — When Mental Health Therapy Aide James Richenbacher left home for the night shift at Pilgrim Psychiatric Center, it was part of a 20-year routine.

The shift was typical. Richenbacher worked with the clients, helping them get ready for bed. At 3 a.m. he entered the coffee room to get some paperwork from his bag. That was when the night turned awry. As he leaned over, Richenbacher was suddenly smashed in the back of the head with a combination lock. Stunned, and semi-conscious, Richenbacher turned to face his attacker. The client thrust an aerosol can into Richenbacher’s forehead causing a gash so deep and jagged it would take 25 stitches to close and plastic surgery to repair. Two clients subdued the attacker, ending the beating before it ended Richenbacher’s life.

Co-workers ran to call for help. “It was only for the grace of God that I was able to remain standing. I couldn’t see anything because there was so much blood in my eye,” 53-year-old Richenbacher said.

“I had gotten me to the floor, I’m sure he would have beaten me to death,” he said. He needed more stitches to close a gash across the bridge of his nose. He also suffered cuts and bruises on his head, face and neck.

“We need more staff. We have younger, more aggressive patients and a lot of them are drug addicts, rapists and even murderers put here by the courts. It is not the same as it was years ago,” he said. “It’s much more dangerous.”

CSEA Pilgrim Psychiatric Center Local 418 President Gene Townsend is extremely upset and angry. “The administration broke up the secure wards and called them intensive care units in an effort to avoid hazardous duty pay. These are the same dangerous clients and the same hazards exist,” Townsend said.

“Then there is this supposed buzzer system where the employees can press a buzzer and get immediate help. My members don’t know anything about it,” he added.

CSEA has been lobbying across the state for increased staffing and security precautions, especially for the locked wards in the mental health facilities. Work site injuries and assaults are not at all uncommon on the mental health wards and a number of employees have lost their lives over the years.

“The battered face of James Richenbacher is a true reminder of the danger our members face on the wards each day and a testament to the need for more staffing and safer conditions — not only for our members but for the other clients who are also at risk,” CSEA Long Island Region President Nick LaMorte said.

Union wins back pay for members’ out-of-title work

QUEENS — A 34-year veteran cook, Edward Platts thanked the union for persevering and winning his out-of-title work grievance. Platts performed the duties of head cook for several months to cover for an employee on medical leave at Creedmoor Psychiatric Center.

“I was doing his work plus mine,” Platts said. “But doing out-of-title work at Bernard Fineson Developmental Center which was clearly supervisory, and CSEA won his case.

CSEA is backing legislative initiative that will put some sanity back into mental health policy.

Queen Local 418 President Gene Townsend is extremely upset and angry. “The administration broke up the secure wards and called them intensive care units in an effort to avoid hazardous duty pay. These are the same dangerous clients and the same hazards exist,” Townsend said.

Middletown Psychiatric Center employees celebrate Maintenance Recognition Day

MIDDLETOWN — More than 60 employees of Middletown Psychiatric Center were recognized during the facility's first Maintenance Recognition Day held recently.

Employees who were recognized included workers assigned to the powerplant, plumbing, transportation, electric shop, grounds, work control and refrigeration, as well as painters, masons and carpenters.

“We finally celebrated the long-awaited, well-deserved recognition day for our work staff,” said Local 415 President Grace Ortiz. “This is the first recognition day ever for our work control staff.

Ortiz said facility officials gave out certificates for attendance and two of the employees, Nick Page and Anne Azzue, were nominated for Employee of the Year.

Breakfast and lunch were also served. Special guest CSEA Executive Vice President Mary Sullivan expressed her best wishes to the workers.

“The employees spent the day relaxed, enjoying each other's company,” said Ortiz. “The administrative staff wished them well and helped them celebrate their day.”

To change your health insurance option or your current tax status for 1996, you must contact your Health Benefits Administrator (HBA), located in your personnel office.

1996 Health Insurance Premium Rates for Plans Covering State Employees

New York state helps you pay for your health insurance coverage. The state pays 90 percent of the cost of the premium for individual coverage and 75 percent of the cost of dependent coverage provided under The Empire Plan. Beginning Jan. 1, 1996, the state will continue to pay 90 percent of the cost of individual coverage and 75 percent of the cost of dependent coverage toward the hospital/medical/mental health and substance abuse components of each Health Maintenance Organization (HMO), however, not to exceed 110 percent of its dollar contribution for those components under The Empire Plan.

Enrollee biweekly HMO premium increases, if any, resulting from this change in employer contribution will be capped at $5 for individual coverage and $15 for dependent coverage in 1996.

Remember that Dec. 27, 1995 is the last day to change your health insurance option. If you do not wish to change your option, then no action is necessary.

ANNUAL DELEGATES MEETING

CSEA delegates hold 85th meeting

LAKE PLACID — Every critical issue confronting CSEA members received a share of attention as nearly 1,500 elected delegates participated in the union’s 85th Annual Delegates Meeting here Oct. 23-27. Issues ranging from the state budget crisis, privatization of public services, building union visibility in the community, making the most of CSEA member benefits; and encouraging member involvement were on the agenda.

Programs presented by CSEA and AFSCME staff and other experts provided up to date information and an opportunity to share ideas and experiences with CSEA brothers and sisters from across the state.

The week included formal workshops, informal discussion programs and the union’s general business sessions for delegates.

About 25 percent of those attending were first-time CSEA delegates.

CSEA President Danny Donohue told the assembled delegation that “Solidarity is more important now than ever before because the stakes are higher than ever. “CSEA can make a difference with the involvement of our members,” he said. “I’m particularly proud to see so many new delegates who can bring new ideas and energy to our efforts. “CSEA must be better and smarter,” Donohue said. “We’re all in this together and everything we do will meet the standard of being ‘In Touch With You.’”

Pollster outlines mood of country

LAKE PLACID — Americans want change but they do not like the agenda they’re seeing from the new Congress, nationally-recognized pollster Celinda Lake told CSEA delegates.

Lake, who detailed the significance of her recent research, was the guest speaker at CSEA’s Legislative Breakfast sponsored by the Women’s and Political and Legislative Action Committees’ during the Annual Delegates Meeting.

She headed up focus group research during President Bill Clinton’s successful 1992 campaign and has worked for dozens of national and local candidates. She has been referred to as the nation’s most prominent woman in the polling field.

The more people see and hear about the agenda to gut Medicaid to provide a tax cut for the most wealthy, the less they like, Lake explained as one example of the mood of the electorate.

Lake told delegates that CSEA, AFSCME and other groups can play an important role in reshaping the nation’s political dialogue and agenda. She emphasized the importance of grassroots organizing and encouraging involvement by rank and file members.

ANNUAL DELEGATES MEETING

CSEA PEOPLE keep giving and growing

LAKE PLACID — CSEA PEOPLE honored its member/activists for their recruiting efforts over the past year at a special event during the Annual Delegates Meeting.

Recruitment efforts enlisted 1,860 new PEOPLE members statewide. PEOPLE, or Public Employees Organized to Promote Legislative Equality, is AFSCME’s federal Political Action Committee.

Contributions from PEOPLE members help to elect fair-minded candidates to Congress.

CSEA’s steady recruitment efforts have moved the union into second place among AFSCME affiliates with PEOPLE members. CSEA President Danny Donohue told the members that CSEA will not be satisfied until it has the most PEOPLE members of any affiliate.

"PEOPLE is one of the best ways available to public employees to make sure that their voice is heard in Washington — every one of our members should join up," Donohue said.

Donohue helped present awards to representatives of the locals in each region which had recruited the most new PEOPLE members.

CSEA Long Island Region President Nick LaMorte accepted the PEOPLE Cup for the second year in a row as the region which had recruited the most new members. The Long Island Region enrolled 590 new PEOPLE members in the past year.

CSEA LONG ISLAND REGION President Nick LaMorte, left, and Gene Townsend, Long Island Region PEOPLE Committee chair, accept the PEOPLE Cup.

Four more Locals reach golden status

LAKE PLACID — In what has become an annual tradition at CSEA Annual Delegates Meetings, the union once again recognized this year’s Golden Locals — CSEA Locals which are celebrating their 50th anniversary as part of the union.

Local Presidents hold the banners for this year’s honorees: NYS Dept. of Transportation Region 2 Local 505 President Lyle Evans, High Peaks State Employees Local 017 Local President Wilfred Patnode, Palisades Interstate Park Commission Local 105 President Wade Willis and New York Psychiatric Institute Local 419 President Tony Bailous.
Victories for CSEA members

Union wins $2,700 for Nassau County member

MINEOLA — CSEA Nassau County Local 830 member Vincent Corsaro will soon receive a check for $2,700 for using his own vehicle for county business. As a construction inspector for the county Department of Public Works, he used his own car to perform his duties from June 1989 to February 1991.

The CSEA Nassau County Local 830 contract calls for payment for business mileage in excess of what would have been traveled to get to the “home office.”

“The people at CSEA did a great job for me. I have no complaints about the union,” Corsaro said.

“A lot of time and money was wasted by the county on this case,” CSEA Attorney Lou Stober said. “Corsaro should have been paid as soon as the county was made aware of the contract language.”

“This was a victory for Vincent Corsaro and for CSEA,” CSEA Labor Relations Specialist Claude Ferrara said.

Members demonstrate for a decent contract

SMITHTOWN — Town of Smithtown CSEA members demonstrated recently to protest working without a contract for nearly a year.

“There is no reason we cannot get a decent contract,” said CSEA Town of Smithtown Unit President Doug Keltner.

A factor holding up the contract is that two town councilmen have been using negotiations to publicize their right to life stands.

The current contract allows insurance coverage for abortion according to federal guidelines which cover abortion only in cases of rape, incest or danger to the mother.

“We find it interesting that these two councilmen say they will not vote yes on a contract with this language yet they are covered by the same contract,” Keltner said.

“These council people should not use negotiations to espouse their feelings about the right to life. We are not pawns. We are hard working men and women who make this town run and we deserve to be treated with fairness and respect. We deserve a contract,” Keltner said.

District tried to deny employee shift differential pay

SCHENECTADY — CSEA won back pay for a Schenectady School District employee in arbitration after the district tried to deny him shift differential pay.

The case also highlights the limits of past practice, said Paul Bamberger, the CSEA attorney who handled the case.

For 19 years, the district has paid a second shift differential to employees who worked at least five hours between 2:30 and 11 p.m.

In 1993, the district decided it had wrongly paid the shift differential to longtime employee Armand Lupi, who worked from noon to 8 p.m., because the contract says the second shift is 4 p.m. to midnight. It later ended the shift differential for several other employees.

CSEA argued that the wording of the contract was ambiguous and the district had established past practice in 19 years of paying the differential for the earlier hours.

The arbitrator agreed with CSEA and ordered the district to pay Lupi the second shift differential he had missed and begin paying him at the correct level. The other employees should also receive back pay and be paid at the correct rate, Bamberger said.

Member helps build a health clinic in Equador

ELLENVILLE — While most of us look forward to rest and relaxation during our summer vacation, Carol Hayes was building a health clinic in Equador.

An Ulster County public health nurse, Hayes was invited to join a group on a two-week peace mission sponsored by the Church World Service to help construct the clinic in a village where poverty is a daily battle.

Hayes figured this was the fulfillment of a dream she had years ago when she signed up for but then turned down an assignment to the Peace Corp.

“The poverty is unbelievable,” Hayes said. “The children come from abusive or alcoholic homes and the parents send them into the street to beg and steal.”

The Prince of Peace Foundation, which hosted the group, teaches the children a trade, giving them skills that are so badly needed in the village. Hayes said.

The local group also brought clothing, books and bandages and other necessities for the children. Hayes used her nursing skills on children who had open sores because they do not bathe and they play in the dirt every day.

Hayes said she appreciates even more the advantages she enjoys as an American.

“I’m so grateful to be an American,” she said. “You just don’t know what we take for granted.”

A T-shirt that she wore in Equador has a slogan that aptly describes what the project was about. It says: “If your plan is for one year, plant rice. If your plan is for 10 years, plant trees. If your plan is for 100 years, educate the children.”

Public employees save taxpayers a bundle

Valley Central School District

MONTGOMERY — Taxpayers in the Valley Central School District in Orange County can thank CSEA members for saving nearly $100,000 in tax dollars.

When the district received bids as high as $100,000 for building a new locker room in the middle school, district buildings and grounds employees submitted their own bids.

“We got it done for less than $4,000,” said Unit President Wilson “Tinker” Bunting. “We took the (unused) lockers out of the elementary school and brought them to the middle school. We used other materials left over from other projects and not only got the job done for next to nothing, but they got a superior job.”

“... Contracting out is not always necessary.”

The crew also renovated the elementary school’s former locker room into a classroom and office. Last year, CSEA members saved the district money by turning an unused garage into a teachers’ lounge.

Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds Steve Puntar said he wants workers to be involved. “The outlook here is that the more input we have, the better the decisions that are made,” he said. “We have a good bunch of men here. I leave them alone and let them do their work.”

He said that he prefers that his crew does this type of work. “With a contractor, you don’t watch everything that’s being done,” he said. “When the work is done in-house, you know what’s being done.”

School Superintendent Beverly Ouderkirk expressed her appreciation. “The project was accomplished at such a savings. And the best part is the Middle School looks great,” she said. “We are extremely proud and we commended the crew at one of our board meetings. Contracting out is not always necessary.”

Warwick Town Hall

WARWICK — A new town hall could have cost taxpayers plenty in the Town of Warwick, but town workers managed to save taxpayers more than a quarter of a million dollars, said Public Works Commissioner Jim Watch.

Town employees excavated the foundation, did the landscaping, built the parking lot and access road, painted inside and even built the podium.

They also took on a parks project, building ball fields for soccer and baseball and two parking lots, saving taxpayers about $100,000.

Town Supervisor Tony Houston appreciates his talented crew, noting that despite having fewer employees and a larger population over the last 10 years, workers do an excellent job maintaining the town.

Excavation for the town hall could have driven up the cost of the project considerably because the crew hit rock that they did not expect.

“The town hall cost $2 million, but would have been much greater,” he said. “We would have had an enormous cost if we had hired a contractor (for the excavation).”

“We knew we would save from the get-go. It wound up that it was absolutely the way to go.”

Lake Placid Central School District

“...This is a fine example of a union and a district working together for the benefit of both, ...”

LAKE PLACID — The Lake Placid Central School District is no different than any of the other school districts in the state trying to get its budget under control with not much help from state aid.

During the past years the district has chosen not to fill positions left vacant by attrition, such as a sorely missed 10-month full-time custodial position. And while at times CSEA and the district have been at opposite ends of the spectrum during the last three years, both parties have developed a working relationship and implemented a labor-management committee in an honest and open effort to try to operate an efficient and service-oriented district.

Recently it became apparent that one or more of the vacant positions needed to be reinstated, but no new funding was available. Six months ago CSEA Lake Placid Central School Unit President Albert Bonaduce, Superintendent Gerald Blair and Business Manager James Kordziel identified the district’s transportation department as in need of an operational overhaul. The trio formed a committee of district workers, two bus drivers, the transportation supervisor, the unit president and the business manager. The goal was to streamline the department and hopefully find funding for the reinstatement of a needed custodial position.

By working together and with the input from drivers and parents, the committee over a three month period was able to re-vamp the entire system, save the district taxpayers $10,000 in operating costs, eliminate the need to purchase a new bus, and fill the needed position without any additional cost to the district.

The key to the savings was establishing bus zones within the district based on the capacity of the buses and the number of students to be transported. By filling each bus to capacity and by coordinating dismissal times of the district school buildings the ride time for many of the students was reduced, rather than increased as has happened in other districts attempting this type of service improvement. And based on the fact that the custodial position is a dual classification allowing a bus driver to function as a full time district employee providing both custodial and bus driving services the labor management effort turned out to be a win, win effort for the district, CSEA and the students and their parents.

“This is a fine example of a union and a district working together for the benefit of both, giving the taxpayers the most value for their money and addressing the needs of the children,” Al Bonaduce said. Additionally, the employees feel they have been recognized as the valuable assets they really are, CSEA and the district are looking forward to working together successfully in other areas.”

Saving taxpayer money an achievable goal

Orange County Airport

Employee ingenuity, government surplus purchases, save taxpayers big $$$

MONTGOMERY — Orange County employees who work at the county airport know how to make do and still get the job done.

Despite annual cuts in the airport maintenance budget, the airport still has to be maintained, said Ed Rykowski, Orange County Local 836 member and maintenance foreman. The county depends on revenues from fixed base operations and corporate and private airplane owners.

But how do you purchase needed equipment when you don’t have the money? Government surplus was the answer.

Because the airport received federal funding, Rykowski knew, surplus government equipment could be theirs for the asking. Thanks to Rykowski and his crew, the county airport has received more than $750,000 worth of equipment, including a floor jack, a tire changing machine, breathing apparatus, a copy machine, copy paper, paint, an adding machine and various building materials and office supplies.

“I did this on my own,” Rykowski said. “How can you take care of a facility without proper equipment?”

“If we don’t get it for ourselves, we don’t get it!”

The equipment and supplies are available at military bases and are usually in excellent condition and little used, he said.

Rykowski and his crew, including Rusty Russo and Gary Durland, are multi-talented and can handle just about any maintenance job that comes along. Recently, they renovated a building that resulted in $12,000 a year more in revenues for the airport.

One person who has been appreciative of Rykowski’s resourcefulness and talents is newly-appointed Airport Director Fritz Kass.

“It’s the most amazing thing,” Kass said. “I come from the private sector. Normally doing a job is a big deal, but we don’t have to hire outside contractors here. This saves the county tens of thousands of dollars. We have the capability of doing these things ourselves. I’d have to replace Ed with 20 people!”

— Anita Manley

Editor’s Note: The following excerpt is from a letter written by the Newburgh City School District Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds and printed in the CSEA School District Unit newsletter.

“Contracting out” refers to contracting blocks of work normally accomplished by in-house employees with the end result of replacing in-house employees with contract employees.

Each year we perform a fair amount of “contract work” with private contractors. Generally, we perform the regular reoccurring construction work and maintenance work (to include custodial work) with our in-house personnel. We believe this is a good way to conduct business and the taxpayers are well served by the work accomplished by our in-house employees.

On a regular basis I check our maintenance projects, not only for unit costs, but also for the quality of the completed work. I also check the total maintenance costs on our Building and Grounds, and compare it with our cost for past years.

The costs speak for themselves. Even though the floor (square footage) has increased by 10 percent (over the past eight years) and certain other costs such as wages have a “fixed” increase plus the fact that the Consumer Price Index has been over three percent a year over this period, the costs of maintaining our buildings have been very stable, increasing only by approximately two and one-half percent a year. This shows that we are doing an excellent job.

I am proud of all of you in our work force and will put our crews up against any other school district or private industry. I believe we have the best looking schools around and equally important, our utility systems: electric, plumbing, heat, etc. are in very good condition.

There is always a lot of pressure from outside contractors to move in and take over the work that our in-house employees do. I can assure you that no school official or school board member wants to “buy” into “contracting out” unless they are convinced that it is a better and more efficient way to accomplish our maintenance. I can also tell you that “contracting out” just doesn’t work. I have seen this proven all over this country. I can also tell you that unless the in-house work force becomes careless, lazy or complacent, no outside contractor will be able to do your work as well as you.

School employees should always look for better ways to do their work, and stay abreast of the latest methods in accomplishing school maintenance. Our supervisors should make sure we are getting the most out of our employees and our schools are kept spotless. All of us (including myself) can always do a little better job and each employee can make a difference. Don’t accept poor performance and don’t allow the guy next to you to get paid for doing very little. Each of us can do a little better, as a good work force will never get “contracted out.”

I think we have a darn good work force and I don’t know of any contractor that can keep up to us.

I think we have a great team, but like any other coach, I want to win by a bigger score, and I know you guys and gals can make it impossible for any “contracting out” contractor to be on the same field with us.

Hitting "wall" doesn't prevent CSEA's Dan Welton from completing Marine Corps Marathon third time

WATKINS GLEN — With the thoughts of a 15-year-old leukemia patient urging him on, CSEA member Dan Welton turned in a gritty performance to overcome injury and training problems to complete the Marine Corps Marathon in Washington, D.C., on Oct. 22.

Welton, a member of CSEA Department of State Local 013, suffered a stress fracture of the toe, requiring special foot padding in order to run, and missed a month of training leading up to the marathon.

Although the injury and loss of training time cost him one goal - qualifying for the famous Boston Marathon - Welton achieved his other goal in competing in the Marine Corps Marathon — raising funds for leukemia research and to help families of leukemia victims with health related costs. By raising $1,800 or more in pledges, Welton ran as part of the "Team in Training" for the second consecutive year, along with others who raised pledges for leukemia.

He raised more than $1,800 in pledges in honor of Emily, 15, who attended the same school with his own two daughters until Emily fell ill with leukemia more than a year ago. Now she is tutored at home and she and her parents travel regularly to Strong Memorial Hospital in Rochester, a two-hour trip each way, for treatments.

Welton overcame a number of obstacles to participate in his third consecutive Marine Corps Marathon. He suffered the stress fracture of a toe on the left foot while moving to a new house five weeks before the marathon. The injury forced him to miss a solid month of crucial training. Along with other "Team in Training" members he had a six-hour bus ride from Syracuse to Washington two days before the event.

Still, Welton got off to a good start in the marathon and was in position to post his best time yet in the 26.2 mile event before the injury and missed training took its toll. At mile 13 he was on schedule to meet the qualifying time for his age group for next year's Boston Marathon, but by mile 20 he suffered hamstring muscle cramps and hit the famous "wall" experienced by many long distance runners.

Refusing to give up, Welton completed the grueling marathon in 4 hours, 11 minutes and 16 seconds, and in a dazed condition. That placed him, he said, "well back in the pack."

Completing the run for Emily and leukemia research was high on the list of motivations after the muscle cramps slowed him down, he said.

He plans to train hard and run in the event next year, both for leukemia research and his own personal ambitions to achieve his goal to run in the Boston Marathon.

Welton thanks everyone who pledged contributions. Those who made pledges and others who wish to help the Leukemia Society should send their contributions (specify you are pledging for Dan Welton) to:

Election of CSEA region officers for three year terms will be conducted in 1996. All signatures must be from the region where the person is seeking office. Members who sign the petition must be eligible to vote in the election.

In order to be eligible to seek office, a candidate must be at least 18 years of age; a member in good standing of the region since June 1, 1995; shall not have been a member of a competing labor association or union since June 1995; and shall not currently be serving a disciplinary penalty imposed by the Judicial Board of CSEA. Any member in good standing as of Feb. 1, 1996, will be entitled to be nominated as a delegate to the AFSCME Convention. Any member in good standing as of Feb. 17, 1996, will be eligible to nominate delegates to the convention.

Nominations will be made at region meetings to be held Saturday, Feb. 17, at sites to be announced. Any qualified CSEA member will be eligible to nominate as many candidates for delegates as he or she desires, not to exceed the total number of delegates to be elected from that region. Nominees do not have to be at the nominating meeting.

Expenses for transportation, room and board at the AFSCME Convention will be paid by CSEA.

Madison County wastewater plant operation is recognized

CANASTOTA — CSEA Madison County Local 827 member Ken Halsey and his crew work hard to keep the Village of Canastota’s Wastewater Treatment Plant operating in good condition, and in the six years the plant has been operating, he’s proud to say that he has never received any citations for violations.

That spotless record helps explain why Halsey was recently honored with an award recognizing his management record. Halsey, plant operator for the Albert Deppoliti Wastewater Treatment Plant, recently received the Uhl T. Mann Award from the NY Water Environment Association for “excellence in treatment plant operation.”

Capital Region member, family lose home to fire

GREENFIELD — Tammy VanWagner Shay, a member of CSEA Mt. McGregor Correctional Facility Local 168, watched her dreams go up in smoke when a fire gutted her home, a local landmark, in November. Tammy’s husband, James, their two children, Brianna, 8, and James, four months, and Amir Abad, a nephew, escaped the sudden blaze with minor injuries. Tammy suffered a broken ankle, Brianna a broken wrist and James burns from attempting to put out the fire.

The family had been converting the first floor into a deli-grocery. Tammy’s co-workers at Mt. McGregor Correctional Facility have already established the Tammy VanWagner Fund at the Adirondack Trust Co., Attention Wilton Office, 473 Broadway, Saratoga Springs, NY 12866, to help the family.

"With the holidays fast approaching, I hope that the CSEA family can make a difference for this very needy family," CSEA Local 168 President Leslie Dussault said.

Family Leave Act may help state workers with attendance problems

The Family and Medical Leave Act is a fairly new law that gives all eligible employees the right to a 12-week leave of absence a year because of the birth of a child, the placement of a child with you for adoption or foster care, your own serious health condition that renders you unable to do your job, and to care for your son, daughter, spouse or parent who has a serious health condition.

- The FMLA prohibits employers from using any of your FMLA absences against you in any disciplinary process or in any employment decision.

If you have been the subject of a state time and attendance disciplinary proceeding within the last two years, you may have some additional rights. Simply put, if you can go back and medically document past absences as FMLA qualified, you can then ask for retroactive application of the FMLA protection and have those absences stricken from your time and attendance record.

In many instances, this protection may exclude significant absences from a time and attendance record. Such exclusion may well clear up all dates and result in a dismissal of the record and restoration of fines or leave credits (depending on the settlement).

Whether your request will be approved will be based on the medical documentation that you can produce. Your medical documentation must be specific and must include the dates that you were absent along with a statement that you were unable to work at the time. The medical documentation must also be accompanied by a request for use of the Family and Medical Leave Act for the dates covered by the medical statements.
