One part of the agility test: the candidate dashes over a 3½-foot hurdle, then proceeds to run around, and over a variety of obstacles.

Hard Work Can Do It

Passing or Failing

A candidate's defects, provided, of course, that he passes the other tests and requirements. In brief, they require that a candidate be in perfect health.

The distinction between the three ratings are that candidates marked "passed" are in perfect health. By that I mean they meet all the medical and physical requirements set up by the Commission.

"Candidates marked 'conditionally rejected' have some medical defects considered curable. They are required to take the physical tests the same day and are given six months after publication of the list to correct the defects. If they do this the test will be considered fair and the candidate can take the medical examiners' possession at a later date, but before the last day for medical and physical examinations. If they pass then, they will be permitted to compete in the physical test.

All of us should recognize that there is the need for a physical test harder than any other than a physical test. The test is devised only after careful study of the test given by the Municipal Civil Service Commission and it is designed so as to be outside the reach of any candidate who may even be, after we have had him examined, not physically fit. I believe that such a test will be a good test and will result in the selection of the best man for the position.

Moving Day in Washington

By CHARLES SULLIVAN

They're working in stables. Actually and undeniably! If you ask Defense Housing Coordinator Charles F. Palmer, he'll admit that part of his Washington staff is working in a stable. Why? There just isn't any other place for 'em. The big Washington bottleneck is working space and living space. You can see why other government agencies in storage buildings, old offices, basement rooms and apartment houses. Nobody has looked to see if the Lincoln Memorial is being used as stable for a reason.

That's how it is in the capital. And with plenty of space right here in New York City—practically for the asking! It looks as if they're finally going to move, however. A round-up of information on the subject and slated move for 'em. The big Washington bottleneck is working space and living space. For the big Washington bottleneck is working space and living space.

A minimum of 15,000 federal workers who are engaged in non-defense work must be moved out of Washington to make room for new defense workers who are being "called for duty in the field," Mr. Palmer tells. This is the belief of a high official in one of the Main Agencies, and the general problem of decentralization of government agencies is involved.

The solution and a half feet of office space these 15,000 employees need are needed by defense agencies. The move from Washington will come soon, if it's to come at all. Space for additional offices and work and homes for those to live here have not yet reached the point of exhaustion.

10,000 Going Soon

It was this number that the official of upwards of 15,000 federal workers who are engaged in non-defense work must be moved out of Washington within a month. This is the number that is making a decentralization attempt very revealing in this column monthly and re- quiring, in its present form, is now ad- mitted to be inadequate. Each depart- ment and most independent agencies without any hesitation to recommend one or more of their offices for trans- fer

But even if 15,000 are moved out, the crush here will be greater than ever. More than twice that number of new employees will be brought here for jobs in defense agencies.

U. S. Paying Moves Costs

Costs of moving an employee's household, this information is being paid by the Government and when the move is made, is ordered. Most agencies are now permitting to pay the larger part of such expenses and it is a certain number of those permitted is raised by the President to foot all such expenses.

Independent agencies face the threat of decentralization. Railroad Retirement Board, Interstate Commerce Commission, Re- storage and Exchange Commission, General Accounting Office, Federal Trade Commission, Federal Communications Commission and Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, among others, have been cordially welcomed as decentralization prospects. The President has already acted and decided direction within the agencies of the decentralization of the agencies of the decentralization will be taken.

The Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance was moved out among the agencies within depart- ments already have field of- fices in various parts of the country, and among them there may be offices for possibility of decentralization.

Where will the federal agencies move? That's another problem but it's reliably reported that work in the Middle West cities by the Office of Civilian Defense with the entire force of New York City will not be transferred and the New Year will see the moving of many agencies.

But even if 15,000 are moved out, the crush here will be greater than ever. More than twice that number of new employees will be brought here for jobs in defense agencies. New Employees are now being hired in the industrial field, 15,000 a day.

The commission has been working on the problem of decentralization since the first day of the 1942 fiscal year. The old year—1941—has been eventful, but the last half of the year promises to see more history en- acted. The New Year begins:

1. The Railroad Retirement Board are effective. On this day the jobs of an estimated 250,000 employees of the Federal employees will be filled from Civil Service registers if they are vacant. On Jan. 1, 1942, the employees of the U. S. will be under the direct authority of the Federal

2. Conservation officials are expected to sell the excess number of employees so that the number of the Department of the War and Navy Departments and defense agencies leading the way of course.

Census Goes Down

The only major agency that will reduce drastically is the Census Bureau whose 3,800 temporary employees must be separated during the fiscal year. However, these temporary employees are being brought here for Roads and other agencies will have 3,000 would have been considered as decentralizing tests to be given Uncle Sam's new employees, and others. The promotion plan is to save money by requiring competitive tests.

The 1942 fiscal year 1942 federal officials estimate that the number of new employees will be increased and more agencies will be ordered. Most agencies are now permitting to pay the larger part of such expenses and it is a certain number of those permitted is raised by the President to foot all such expenses.

What Happens When Salaries Are Low

Strange Bottleneck

YOU wouldn't believe it

The Department is being swamped with requests for birth certificates from workers in defense industries and from drafters. Since only citizens fit into these categories, it becomes imperative to supply birth certificates with as much speed as possible. The Bureau of Vital Statistics used to take less than 2 hours to provide a birth certificate. Now it takes 28 hours. Health Commissioners have been asked to take all possible administrative help, but he can't even get 7 vacancies filled! He did get some WPA aid—or the bureau would have broken down long ago.

The matter becomes even funnier when we learn (1) that the same staff which issued 50,000... the last fiscal year, issued 150,000 certificates in the current year—no additional help; and (2) the revenue which comes from the service—$12 for every certificate—gets swallowed up by the city into other channels. That money could put the bureau on a self-sustaining basis.

Twenthteenth Anniversary

Max and Herman Bruno, owners and operators of the Pinewood Hotel, Fishclums, N. Y., will celebrate the twelfth anniversary of their resort Friday. Bound to be a popular ζάηήτήληη, some of whom got their start on the slopes of Pinewood, will be on hand.

Unfortunately, the Bruno brothers bought the property in 1931 and converted it into one of the outstanding summer resorts in New York State. Among the famous personalities whose estates border the Pine and adjacent lakes are Gerald Astor, the Duke of York, Sankt-Bernhards, Gaill-Curet, Julio M. Maza, and the Goulds. It was the late Arthur S. Livingston, incidentally, who named the Pine Wood hotel "The Little Switzerland of America" and wrote reason enough to call the section as a scenic paradise.

Pine Wood is accessible at Sea Island, Ga., as it is for the treatment of tuberculosis. Some races were held the bit of the beach in 1940 and will undoubtedly be even more popular this year.

The crowds are already enjoying themselves at the Lido Country Club in Hofstra, under Frank Seiden management. The price of the course and further beach facilities help to make the Long Island beach the best for busy New Yorkers who combine a daily vacation with a few business woes.

Room rentals for both men and women, motion picture viewings, tennis tournaments and celebrity shows are being planned by the Lido Club and Country Club, Fishclums.

Paul Winter, director of Hilltop Lodge on Sylvan Lake, reports widespread interest in his innovation of night tennis—"...David Ellis, Star Group Theatre actor, will direct the dramatic players at the Peninsula Playhouse, So. Fallsburg, N. Y."

Joseph Holder recently purchased the-summer season among the Adirondacks for the Armada during the World's Fair. It is being utilized on the magnificent property at the Adirondacks, N. Y.

From the Manhattan Park Inn in Westbury, N. Y., Miss Jeanette Prisament states that she has registered more hominated companies on her own on the Inn than in any other hotel except the Waldorf Astoria.

Crate Lake Lodge, West Block, Maine, serves up the dinner with more than 15,000 people for improvements. Its management, Ruth and Murray Capital, have completely modernized the entire camp.

John D. Shica-Wan-Ga Lodge, High View, N. Y., announced that Fishclums has a new camping and the addition of an amphitheater adjoining the playhouse now there. It is 300 feet by 100 feet and has outdoor to accommodate 800 people.

Camping trips, comedies and original musicals are presented by Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. and Arthur B. Falwell, who are in charge of the camp. Special rates are available for groups and individual reservations. For information, telephone Liberty 975.

FREEZING THE MILK JOBS

An opinion from Attorney General Bennett on the constitutionality of freezing the salaries of the 29 employees of the Milk Fund in the Department of Agriculture and Markets will be sought by the State Civil Service Commission. The Hollowell law, which provides for such freezing, goes into effect today.

The State Commission, in commenting on the law when it was pending before the Governor-Leader, held that this provision was unconstitutional.
