LIST OF MANPOWER SHORTAGES

See Page 2
WASHINGTON.—The manpower shortage, don’t believe it just ask the Civil Service Commission. The Commission knows that there is no shortage, just a demand for more positions, particularly in technical and professional fields.

Meanwhile, the situation will remain unchanged. The Commission knows that only too well. In fact, the Commission asked each agency to look into their personnel needs and plans to go to school soon and hire more people, not just to replace the ones who are leaving, but to hire them for the future. And then apply for a Federal job.

There’s plenty of time to establish a Commission, official told this correspondent. “We can see the end of the demand for months to come. We expect to see 250,000 people in the Federal service this year, but only 100,000 in the next year,” he continued.

CIVIL SERVICE LEADER

What happened to Manus J. Clancy?

On July 31, 1941, Manus J. Clancy, Jr., a sanitation man, was given a clerk, grade one test and passed by assistant foreman. Being an interested party, he studied for the test and passed.

Last week, the list for assistant foreman was published and Manus J. Clancy, Jr., was credited by the name of Manus J. Clancy as an automobile mechanic.

The Civil Service Commission pointed out that the name of Manus J. Clancy was listed as an automobile mechanic. Now, automobile mechanics and assistant foremen are in the assistant foreman promotion pool, but were later deleted. That was the reason, the Civil Service Commission pointed out, why the name of Manus J. Clancy off the promotion list. But, for some reason, the name of Manus J. Clancy, Jr., was not deleted.

However, Manus J. Clancy, Jr., felt that for all time he was entitled, as a job applicant, to receive a job.

You guessed it. Manus J. Clancy, Jr., studied for the test and passed the test. But, for some reason, he was deleted from the list. Now, the Civil Service Commission, in a letter to the Mayor, states that the name of Manus J. Clancy, Jr.,... was not credited with 42 percent.

Much Interest in Courses For Civil Employees

ALBANY.—The Association of State Civil Service Employees has announced plans for a complete course of educational courses to be offered by the Association for Civil Service Employees. The courses are designed to provide a well-rounded education for the employees of the State, and will be available to all employees of the State who meet the qualifications set forth by the Association. The courses will be offered at various locations throughout the State, and will include a wide range of subjects, such as education, economics, law, and business management. The courses will be taught by experienced educators and will provide a valuable opportunity for employees to enhance their skills and knowledge. The Association has received a great deal of interest in these courses, and many employees have already expressed a desire to participate. The courses will begin soon, and interested employees are encouraged to register for their desired courses as soon as possible. Employees who meet the qualifications set forth by the Association will be able to register for the courses, regardless of their position or department. The Association is committed to providing quality education to all employees of the State, and is looking forward to a successful launch of these educational courses.

Correction List Finally Appears

Last week, two long-awaited State Service Training certificates appeared—the list for Lieutenant and the list for the Department of Correction. Thus far, the number of applications for both positions has been small, and the Department is planning to advertise the positions again. Out of a total of 251 who had participated in the test for a corps of 521 positions, only 45 had applied for the assistant positions. It is expected that a larger number of applications will be received for the assistant positions when the next recruitment is announced. Employees are urged to apply as soon as possible, as the Department is planning to fill the positions as quickly as possible.

Blow but increasing tendency of out-of-town and out-of-state employees to take advantage of the low cost of living and the high salary opportunities available in New York City. The City labor reserve is reported to be drawing a large number of out-of-town workers. The Department is planning to advertise the positions again in the near future, and is urging all employees to apply as soon as possible.

Leaves for War Work

L E S B I A N / W I M M E N in these pages you’ll find the story of ammendments suggested to the Mayor’s proposed regroningen. As we’ve pointed out in the past, the amendments are not intended to be discriminatory. However, we believe that the proposals are not sufficiently clear to employees and the public. The Commissioner has suggested that the amendments be revised to make them more clear. We hope that the Mayor will give them careful consideration.

The McCarthy Amendments

L A T E S T W E K E W saw a lot of maneuvering and compromising on the Mayor’s proposed amendments to his budget. The Commissioner has revised his proposals, and the City Council has taken them up. Despite some differences in opinion, the amendments are now in the process of being adopted by the Council.

The Council at Work

During the debates on the McCarthy Amendment Law, the Commissioner repeatedly said that the amendments were part of a package deal. He pointed out that the amendments were designed to improve the relationship between the city and its employees. He also said that the amendments were necessary to improve the working conditions of employees.

The Commissioner and the Mayor have been working closely on this issue. The Mayor has been consulting with the Commissioner on a regular basis, and the amendments have been discussed at length.

The amendments include provisions for:
- Increased wages for employees
- Improved working conditions
- Improved retirement benefits
- Improved grievance procedures

These amendments are being discussed further at the Council meeting, and we urge our readers to follow the developments closely.

Letters

We receive a lot of letters from our readers, and we appreciate it. We encourage letters that express your views on any topic related to public service and workers’ rights. Letters should be concise and to the point.

Subway Pay

The idea of pay for young people who are working part-time in the subway system is not new. In fact, it has been discussed for many years. The question is whether the pay is enough to make a difference in the lives of young people.

OPPORTUNITIES
IN THE U. S. NAVY

A SPECIAL SECTION OF THE CIVIL SERVICE LEADER

These Are the Ways Open
To Become a Naval Officer

While the path to an officer-ship in the Regular Navy is narrow and difficult, the Naval Reserve opens many avenues to men—and women, too—who can meet these Freshman and Sophomore

If you're a freshman or sophomore in college, or a high school student, you should know about these opportunities. It is an opportunity to serve in the Naval Reserve and attain your college work while doing active duty. It is an opportunity to be a part of the Navy and to become a leader of men. It is an opportunity to acquire a college education and to receive a professional training in the Navy. It is an opportunity to acquire a college education, to receive a professional training in the Navy, to become a leader of men, and to acquire a college education.

OFFICER TRAINING PROGRAMS

V-1

A Plan For High School Seniors, College Juniors, and Seniors

Those V-1 men who pass the examination are on the road leading to officer commissions. Approximately 20,000 V-1 men will be selected of this group for training to become Naval Officers. If a student ranks sufficiently high in the comprehensive examination, he will be permitted to finish his second year of college before beginning training to become an officer pilot, or should he desire, he may request aviation cadet training even before completing two years of college work. As soon as a man is transferred to V-5, he is placed on active duty and begins drawing regular Navy pay of $75 a month. It is at this time that he dons a Navy uniform.

Only men who have already taken elementary training are eligible to enter submarine school. The men who work on submarines are specialists, each in his field. They are paid bonuses, in addition to base pay, while on active duty.

From time to time, The LEADER runs special sections detailing the opportunities in the various branches of the armed forces. This week, we give you some idea of the vast array of plans under which the Navy recruits its manpower. No endeavor has been made to attain completeness in this series of articles—succeeding issues will detail further the stories of the 19 occupations in the Navy for enlisted men, the excellent training facilities, and much else of interest. In the series of articles on this and following pages, you'll find a number of interesting highlights about the Navy — its plans for officers, the new organization of WAVES, its need for aviation technicians. It is well to emphasize that advancement in the Navy today is rapid if you've got what it takes — particularly if you have the kind of abilities the Navy needs.

The Seabees—Worker-Fighters

As the present emergency de grew, it became apparent to the Army, the Navy, and the civil trenchers and their civilian employees weren't sufficient for construction work in the far-flung territorial limits of the United States, in potential combat zones. After the decision was made to acquire the expertise of the United States, from across the world, it became apparent that the services of the Seabees were required to construct bases and other facilities in the United States and other countries.

In the meantime, the Navy, under military command, found that it needed a new type of military force that could operate in a new type of environment. The Seabees were perfected as a result of the need for such a force.

The Seabees were created as a result of this need. They were a

Naval Aviation Opportunities

Respecting approximately 10 mechanics and a dozen technicians for each fighter plane and 25 for each large flying boat, the Navy is now intensifying its appeal for the men who will handle these machines in the cockpit.

Many of these present and recent action in the air has centered around fighting pilots, but always there has been another factor to the dawn that the Navy is readying for the service of new aviation technicians.

The first of these must be the aviation mechanics, the men who keep the engines and airframes in the air. It needs men to fly and fly high and fast. These men must be with the fleet a hundred thousand or more.

Next in line for need are the aviators who are now raining in aviation technic, since they are the primary line of the Naval Reserve. Others still to come are the candidates for the Reserve schools enlist through Class V. All of these must be enrolled in one of the Navy's new aviation technician training schools for the training of industrial training.

Fighting Technicians

These men will probably come from export mechanics to gasoline plant foremen, or from men who have had experience in gas and oil or from civilians who have served in the Navy. This is a very general list, but the Navy has many positions for these men who, as well as ground crews, are needed in the various ships of the fleet.

Classified by Skills

Special effect is made in classified groups, to another training technical training for Norsemen who have had experience in any Naval air arm where their qualification is most good and where they will be best served. The actual training and experiences should bring them back to their own arm.

Emphasis is placed throughout the course upon the exact handling and controlling of the machine and equipment involved in the performance of the various tasks.

Each topic is covered in as general a manner as possible, considering with thoroughness, bringing mail in the development of principles and illustrations in the various subjects of instruction, maintenance, minor repairs, and the application of aircraft.

Where applicable technical pamphlets and publications are used to assist the student in his use in active service with the various types of aircraft, and in future study.

2. He must be a member in good standing of the State Bar or its equivalent.
3. He must be especially fitted for the particular position to which he will probably be ascigned.

4. And he must have an outstanding reputation, considering his age, or must have shown promise of outstanding services in the profession.

WARRANT OFFICERS

One of the most important tasks in the chain of Naval personnel is that of the Warrant Officer. He is the specialist in some particular branch of Naval work.

In the Naval Reserve, men appointed to the Warrant rank need not take examinations. Warrant Officers may be appointed in the Naval Reserve for General Division in the grades of captain, major, and lieutenant. In the Naval Reserve, all Navy personnel who meet the qualifications required for ordnance duty, may be considered for appointment to the Warrant rank.

Members of certain classes in enforcement, and to continue in such status until the probationary one. Time spent on probation will not count toward promotion to lieutenant grade.

Students of engineering in the phase classes of accredited colleges are also acceptable for commission as probabilistic officers, and to continue in such status until graduation, at which time they will be reappointed as ensigns in the appropriate special commission.

Civilian Instructor Jobs Open in Service schools

WASHINGTON.—A new campaign to "Keep 'Em Flying" was launched by the Civil Serv­ice Commission last week. Under a new announcement with completely new requirements, Student and Junior Instructors for the Army Air Forces Technical and Service schools, and Navy Air Service schools are being sought. Student instructors complete ELIC in a year; Junior instructors, $2,600.

Student instructors will be given training in radio operating, engine­ driving, airplane mechanics, or they will work for a period of three to six months. Those who successfully complete such training will be promoted to junior instructor and assigned to an appropriate school. Student instructors can qualify through completion of one year's study in a college through the possession of a Civil Aviation Administration Rating Certificate, engine mechanic's certificate, airplane mechanic's certificate, or airplane engine mechanic's certificate through one year's progressive experience in aircraft mechanic, aircraft or automobile mechanic, fitter, bookkeeper, machine shop worker, welder, machinist, photo­ grapher, camera repairman, ra­ dio operator, radio engineer, or radio maintenance operator. Those who have graduated from a school of radio engineering, airplane mechanics, or through the possession of a Civil Aviation Administration Rating Certificate and have had additional business experience in that line of work, will be considered as the equivalent of a high school education. Those between the ages of 17 and 30 (upper age limit is 30) must have reached their 20th birthday, but there is no minimum age limit. Qualified persons may be advanced in rating up to $8,000 a year. Applicants must have graduated from high school and have had additional business experience in that line of work, will be considered as the equivalent of a high school education, may be ac­ cepted.

Training for Radar Work

Do you know about Radar work? Much is secret, but here are a few simple facts that will help you when you enter in the Navy or if you wish to take the proper training in advance.

Applicants possessing the following qualifications may be admitted in Class V, Naval Reserve, for duty as technicians and FADARE maintenance men. Applicants must:

(a) Be male citizens between the ages of 17 and 30 (upper age limit is 30) who are not married and have had a normal educational and physical qualifications may be advanced in rating up to $8,000 a year. Applicants must have graduated from high school and have had additional business experience in that line of work, will be considered as the equivalent of a high school education, may be accepted.

Approximate age limits should be:

 Petty officers third class—over 20 years of age.
 Petty officers second class—over 25 years of age.
 Petty officers—over 30 years of age.

(b) Hold on hand an American Radio License (RTS) or proof of five years practical experience as a radio technician. In the absence of qualifications above, applicants may be actively engaged in radio repair or work or have had experience in electronic circuit design, transmission or reception.

Cases training for those qualified will be housed in the U.S. Naval Radi o School at Noroton, Connecticut.

Those under this program will be ordered into regular service duty and forwarded to the Naval Training School at Noroton, Connecticut.

Make sure you completely complete the course of instruction required and be advanced in relation to including Chief Radio, Pilot, Assistant Pilot, Engineer, and Assistant Engineer, in accordance with their qualifications.

Cases training for those qualified will be given at American Radio Institute, Middle Atlantic Multigraph and Radio Television Institute.
How Are Those Treasurer Appointments Being Made?

(Exclusive)

What Civil Service leaders, personally selected by Mayor LaGuardia, are being made to provide provisional appointments in the City’s Treasurers Office? A number of the people who made these temporary five dollar a day jobs?

An exclusive LEADER. The LEADER revealed that the numbers of thousands of people who had passed written tests, were forwarded to City Treasurers for the purpose of making provisional appointments. Those who are on these lists are being added to temporary provisional jobs which have been published from the City Treasurer’s office. These lists were certified for temporary employment.

Preferred Lists

500 preferred lists were certified by the City Planning Commission for permanent appointments at $2,000 a year.

Eleven former salaries were certified for the positions at $1,000 a year. There are two vacancies in this department for salaries of $1,000 a year. The former salary was $2,000.
