The changing world of health care

“We’re hoping the public benefit corporation will give us the competitive edge in health care ... and the competition’s fierce.”

H.E.A.T can save money in fuel bills

CSEA members in New York City, Long Island, Westchester County, Putnam County, Northern New Jersey can join H.E.A.T (Heating Energy Affordable Today), a buying group that uses the purchase power of 16,000 members to negotiate lower prices for fuel oil with full-service dealers. Included in membership is a free service contract. The cooperative has contracts with 50 different fuel oil delivery and service companies. Annual membership fee is $25 with money back guarantee. When you call, mention you are a CSEA member and get a second year's membership at no charge.

Procedure protects your rights

AFSCME's Constitution includes a rebate procedure to protect the rights of members who disagree with how the international union spends money for partisan political or ideological purposes. This procedure is not open to non-members who pay agency shop or similar fees to the union or to members who are employed under a union shop.

Each year, the international Secretary-Treasurer calculates the amount of the rebate payment that has been used for partisan political or ideological purposes during the preceding fiscal year. Members who object to the expenditure of a portion of their dues for partisan political or ideological purposes and request a rebate must do so individually in writing between April 1 and April 16, 1997. The request must contain the member's name, Social Security number, home address, AFSCME local and council number. This information must be typed or legibly printed. The individual request must be signed by the member and sent by the individual member to the International Secretary-Treasurer at AFSCME International Headquarters, 1625 L Street NW, Washington, DC 20036-5687, by registered or certified mail. Requests from more than one person may not be sent together in the same envelope; each request must be sent individually. Requests must be renewed in writing every year the member wishes a rebate.

Any member who is satisfied with the amount of the rebate paid by the international union may object by filing a written appeal with the AFSCME Judicial Panel at the above address within 15 days after the rebate check has been received.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

May 15 is deadline for submitting proposed resolutions, changes to CSEA's Constitution & By-Laws

The Coalition of Black Trade Unionists annual meeting will be May 22 to 26 at the Hyatt Regency Superdome in New Orleans. For more information or to coordinate convention registration and hotel accommodations, contact Portia Given at 1-800-342-4146, extension 210.
A responsible budget, real welfare reform

ALBANY — The proposed 1997 state budget is irresponsible in several crucial areas and requires some overhauling before becoming law, CSEA President Danny Donohue testified before a joint hearing of the Assembly Ways & Means and Senate Finance Committees on workforce issues.

Welfare reform is one area of particular concern, he said, and assuring real welfare reform that adheres to several principles important to labor has risen to the top of the priority list for CSEA during the 1997 state legislative session.

“The one issue that touches all working people across this state is welfare reform,” Donohue told members of the two influential legislative committees. He said CSEA strongly supports the concept of welfare reform, noting “a paycheck will always be better than a welfare check,” but insisted real welfare reform can only be achieved if the state adheres to principles adopted by CSEA, AFSCME and other labor unions. Donohue outlined those principles as:

* The existing work force must not be displaced;

* Public assistance programs must not be contracted out;

* Welfare recipients need real jobs with full employment rights.

Privatization means triple whammy for Westchester employee

Loses county job, benefits and home

VALHALLA — Joyce Clayton is finding off repeated setbacks since Westchester County privatized the dietary department at Ruth Taylor Institute.

She took a pay cut and lost her benefits when she went to work for the interim contractor now running the department. Then she was evicted from the county-owned apartment she has lived in for more than 28 years. Only 16 months from retiring from the county, Clayton now worries whether she will have a job at all.

"I haven't been sleeping nights," Clayton said. "I have no idea where I'm going to go or if I'll even have a job."

None of 180 dietary employees knows whether the contractor will hire them permanently.

When Clayton started working for the county, she was able to rent the county-owned apartment at a rent more affordable compared to others in the county. Clayton said. "I have no idea what the weather," she explained.

County officials evicted all the residents of one building, many of whom are already uncertain about their futures thanks to privatization.

The county wanted the workers out by the end of last year, but CSEA Unit and Local President Cheryl Melton managed to win them more time to find new housing.

"It is unfortunate that the politicians have reduced employees that lost their jobs to numbers without faces," said Melton.

"It should be obvious that the policies of this county are leaving a lot of battered victims in its wake," CSEA Southern Region President Carmine DiBattista said.

"The price of privatization is impossible to calculate when you take into consideration not only the loss of jobs, but the cost of unemployment and welfare as well as the drastic life changes."

You wouldn't treat a dog like that

BROOKHAVEN — "I love animals and I love my job and do it well," said Linda Pew, a dog control officer in the Town of Brookhaven, just weeks before she and five of her co-workers were laid off Jan. 1, 1997.

The layoffs were especially outrageous because they were motivated solely by retribution.

Pew filed a Human Rights complaint against her boss which is still pending. A co-worker who substantiated Pew's allegations, Carl Torgeson, also lost his job.

Because Pew and Torgeson had seniority, four other employees had to be laid off before they could be touched.

Money didn't cause the layoffs: the town is in such good fiscal health that town board members gave themselves eight percent raises.

The shelter certainly wasn't overstaffed. Even before the layoffs, many calls for help went unanswered for days and management told employees to take phones off the hook because no dog control officers were available to handle emergencies.

Employees told the board how the shelter could make more money. Taxpayers told the board how valuable the workers were. It didn't matter. The workers lost their jobs.

As if things weren't bad enough, the town failed to tell the workers about jobs openings they might have applied for, in what CSEA Labor Relations Specialist Stephanie Bonifante called "another spiteful move on the town's part."

CSEA filed a class action lawsuit and two improper practice charges over the layoffs, which are pending.

In the meantime, taxpayers will cross more stray animals and get little help with problems ranging from dog attacks to cock fights.

Members hot about being left in the cold

PHILADELPHIA — "Our members deserve a fair and decent contract."

That was the message from CSEA Central Region President Jim Moore at a school board meeting in the Indian River School District, where nearly 200 CSEA-represented workers have been working without a contract for more than 19 months.

More than 100 people joined the unit members as they braved the cold to picket the meeting.

The workers simply want to be paid wages comparable to those in surrounding districts, CSEA Indian River School Unit President Dennis Davis said.

A salary survey showed that the workers are significantly underpaid compared to surrounding districts, while a review of district finances showed that the district can afford to pay fair wage increases.

Join the fight to save county DMV jobs

A proposal by Gov. Pataki to transfer mail-in license and registration renewals from county motor vehicle departments to the state Department of Motor Vehicles could mean hundreds of layoffs for county DMV workers.

Scheduled to begin April 1, the proposed state takeover of the mail-in renewal function would have a devastating impact on county budgets if enacted. Some county clerks say the change would eliminate up to half of their revenues, forcing them to lay off employees.

CSEA is working with the County Clerks Association and the New York State Association of Counties to defeat the legislation.

CSEA members are asked to join the fight by contacting the Governor and state legislators at 1-800-SOS-6336 to voice their opposition to the proposal.
Poughkeepsie members get upgrades

POUGHKEEPSIE — It took time, effort and a new city manager, but CSEA members in the city of Poughkeepsie now have reclassified job titles and salaries.

In 1990, workers complained they were performing tasks inappropriate for their grade and that job descriptions were outdated.

“We were told that it was a budget issue,” employee Bruce Dooris said. “Then we were told it was a negotiation issue.”

Finally, in 1995, the newly-appointed city manager agreed to a reclassification study with a committee of CSEA members.

“We found we had a lot of discrepancies,” employee Liz Frank said. “The misuse of employees over the years became routine. When a person left, other workers would just take over their duties. No one looked at job descriptions.”

Solidarity helps win battles

POUGHKEEPSIE — It took a crisis to prove to many city of Poughkeepsie CSEA members that their solidarity could win battles.

Few members even showed up for union meetings until the former city manager decided three years ago to contract out the city’s trash collection operation.

Unit President Willie Wimberly and his officers convinced employees that even if they weren’t part of the sanitation department, they could be next.

Solidarity was born.

With the help of CSEA staff, city employees demonstrated, publicized their plight, and lobbied city council members. Residents packed meetings to support the city workers.

In the end, CSEA members remained and the city manager left.

Members have a new attitude, and it’s not unusual to see sanitation employees working with police dispatchers and clerical employees to resolve problems. And now union meetings are well attended.

A salute to Local 842 heroes

Two CSEA members rescued a man from the freezing waters of the Hudson River in December.

CSEA City of Rensselaer Unit members Raymond Hennessy and Robert Sauer were working in Riverside Park when a passerby told them he’d seen a man jump into the river from a nearby bridge.

They called for help on their two-way radio and rushed to the water’s edge. Hennessy helped the man to shore and Sauer gave the man his coat.

Meanwhile, CSEA Rensselaer County Sheriffs Department Unit President Daniel Plumley and unit member Jennifer Chiera were honored as EMS Persons of the Month for their part in a rescue in September.

Call taker Chiera and dispatcher Plumley calmed a caller reporting a heart attack, gave CPR instructions and dispatched aid. Thanks to their efforts and the emergency crews’ prompt response, the victim survived.

Hennessy, Sauer, Plumley and Chiera are all members of CSEA Rensselaer County Local 842.

Member donates kidney to daughter; co-workers help with expenses

WATERTOWN — CSEA Jefferson County Local 823 member Tom Soules just gave his daughter the best gift possible — a new chance at life.

In turn, his fellow union members gave him a helping hand.

Soules, a building maintenance supervisor for the Watertown Housing Authority and former vice president of the CSEA Unit, donated his right kidney to his 15-year-old daughter, Stephanie, who had both kidneys removed in early January.

Soules’ co-workers, led by CSEA Unit President Bob Snyder, hosted a spaghetti supper to raise money for expenses including travel to the Burlington, VT hospital for the transplant.

They served more than 600 plates of pasta and raised more than $7,000. Management worked with CSEA members on the benefit, Snyder said.

Building and Grounds Supervisor Ken Glade was right alongside him as they cooked and served hundreds of dinners.

Management also kept Soules on leave at half pay even though he had exhausted his accruals.

Soules said he was surprised at his co-workers’ generosity.

“I was ecstatic. I couldn’t believe they were going to help me out,” he said. “I appreciate the help and all the letters, cards, thoughts and prayers. I’m lost for words.”

Stephanie, asked how she felt about her dad giving his kidney to her, responded with a shy smile.

“I think it’s great.”

CSEA now represents 25 full-time teaching assistants in the Lansingburgh School District.
CSEA Troy City School District President Linda Hillje and Lansingburgh Unit President LuAnn Parker helped CSEA Labor Relations Specialist Michael Sheldon in the organizing effort.

CSEA school district members from Nassau and Suffolk counties will have the opportunity to attend a free career development conference.

The conference is scheduled for May 3 at the Marriott, Melville.
CSEA Suffolk Local 870 President Diane Klement and CSEA Nassau Educational Local 865 President Denis Midnet worked together to develop the conference.

Registration letters are being distributed to school district employees. The registration deadline is April 8. Members needing a form should call Nassau Local 865 at 516-799-3124 or Suffolk Local 870 at 516-475-8700.
ALBANY — In the future, according to a Pataki administration proposal, when businesses and entrepreneurs look for economic development assistance in New York State they will no longer contact the New York State Department of Economic Development. They will deal with the Empire State Development Corporation, a combination of the Urban Development Corporation, the Science and Technology Foundation and the current Department of Economic Development, a new public benefit corporation.

CSEA Economic Development Corporation Local 654 President Rose DeSorbo has many concerns about this proposed change.

"CSEA understands the need to promote economic development in New York State. That is, and has been, the mission of the Department of Economic Development and we have been very successful in achieving that goal each and every year in the public sector," she said.

But the operations of the proposed Empire State Development Corporation will not be subject to the same legislative oversight or taxpayer accountability as the current agency. Currently the Department is under the review of the State Comptroller. That would not be the case under the Governor's proposal.

"Removing these safeguards could place the excellent track record of the public sector Department of Economic Development into jeopardy and lose the confidence of state taxpayers who foot the bill for such development projects," DeSorbo said.

While the current CSEA-represented department employees would continue to be union members, the other workers being brought into the new corporation would not be covered by provisions of the Civil Service Law and are not currently unionized. In CSEA's opinion, the need to retain and attract the most qualified employees to administer these programs demands that the civil service status of these positions must be maintained.

"CSEA Department of Economic Development Local 654 is the Little Agency That Could," DeSorbo said. "All 85 members, 60 in Albany and 25 throughout the state, are busy writing letters to our elected representatives urging them to carefully review the Governor's proposal and to reject those objectionable items."

CSEA would like to see the problem plagued Urban Development Corporation put back under the control of the public sector Department of Economic Development where Urban Development projects would once again be under the scrutiny of the Comptroller's office and under the review of the taxpayers.

CSEA Local 654 member Donna Baxter said that she had already written her first letters to her local representatives telling them her concerns about the future of economic development in New York State.

"Our message is simple," she said. "Keep Economic Development Economic Development."

Metro Region honors Rev. King

NEW YORK — A standing-room-only crowd of CSEA members and their children honored the life and accomplishments of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King in the CSEA Metropolitan Region office.

Kate DeSmet, on strike against the Detroit News for 18 months, urged all CSEA members to boycott USA TODAY and all newspapers (many in the Hudson Valley) owned by the Gannett Corporation.

"Gannett is determined to break the Detroit newspaper union," Region President George Boncoraglio said. "But we honor and support Kate DeSmet and the Detroit strikers tonight in Dr. King's memory, because Dr. King died in Memphis defending the rights of all striking workers."

Rev. Herbert Nelson encouraged CSEA members to ask their pastors to support them during labor struggles. He described his own arrest while kneeling in prayer on a North Carolina picket line protesting anti-labor practices of the K-Mart Corporation. Where there is injustice, pastors need to be out there supporting their people, Nelson said.

Later, the New York City 911 Operators Acappella Choir belted out old-time, hand-clapping gospel music.

CSEA NYS Psychiatric Institute Local 419 member Charlie Bowen gave the program rave reviews, especially thanking the Minority Affairs Committee and its Chairperson Joyce Idowu, for all their efforts.

Religious leaders believe in working people

NEW YORK — More and more clergy of all denominations are becoming deeply involved in labor struggles across the country, and CSEA activists joined other union members, labor journalists, students and clergy in a panel discussion about this new phenomenon.

"Many union activists are motivated by their consciences and spiritual values to pursue union work and justice issues," CSEA Metropolitan Region President George Boncoraglio said. "It's important that our ministers, priests and rabbis are standing with us to speak out about the morality of government policies that hurt workers and the most vulnerable people we serve."

The panel, sponsored by Metro New York labor journalists, included the Rev. Jim Wallis, editor of Sojourners magazine; the Rev. Herbert Nelson, North Carolina labor-activist Presbyterian pastor; the Rev. Peter Laarman of the New York City Labor-Religion Coalition; Kate DeSmet, a Detroit News striker; Lilly Gioia, CSEA communications associate; Alfred Ross of the Center for Democracy Studies; and Brian O'Shaunessy, co-chair of the New York State Labor-Religion Coalition.

Wallis reminded his audience that "the Bible is on the side of working people," and that the country should be alarmed by political policies that deliberately hurt poor people.

Gioia warned that religious political extremists on the far right continue to raise millions of dollars to elect politicians with an anti-labor agenda.
CSEA's marathon man running his heart out for leukemia research

WATKINS GLENN — CSEA member Dan Welton, a long distance runner, continues to log a lot of miles raising research funds for his favorite charity. He completed his most recent gruelling 26.2-mile marathon on Jan. 19 in Bermuda.

Welton hoped to raise $5,000 in pledges for leukemia research between the Marine Corps Marathon he ran in October and the Bermuda Marathon, but pledges and contributions are coming in slower than expected. CSEA members who wish to help leukemia research can send contributions (specify you are pledging for Dan Welton) to:

In touch with you

A message from CSEA President Danny Donahue

Protect your job
and your future

This year's fight over the Governor's proposed state budget and other issues is just heating up and CSEA is in the thick of it. Proposals to privatize Roswell Park Cancer Institute in Buffalo and Helen Hayes Hospital in West Haverstraw; initiatives to fold the Department of Economic Development into the Urban Development Corporation; a continued lack of commitment to the State University system; and mental health policies that remain the shame of all New York, are just some of the battleground areas for CSEA.

But the debate over welfare reform remains at the top of the list because it affects every CSEA member and cuts across everything that CSEA does.

We all want welfare reform but there have to be worker protections. There have to be real jobs without displacing existing workers.

CSEA is taking this message to the public too, with a new series of radio and television ads airing statewide. It must be understood that the welfare battle, like all the other budget issues, will not be won in Albany alone. CSEA needs your involvement. The real battles must be fought by you and your co-workers in your hometown and in your worksites.

Make a commitment to protect your job and your future. Contact your CSEA Region office to find out specifically how you can get involved today!
"I think privatization of Roswell would likely cause job cuts, because a private employer's first steps would be to reduce the payroll."

Darlene Mitchell, medical laboratory technician at Roswell Park

The fight for public health care

See pages 10 & 11
In this volatile health care environment, how can public health facilities survive rising costs and threats of privatization? It's a question CSEA faces across the state, and the best answer is, of course, to keep the facility publicly owned and work to improve operations so it can continue to function for the public.

But the world of health care is changing. Sometimes the status quo makes it impossible to compete successfully.

The next best option appears to be a public benefit corporation. The facility remains publicly owned, yet has more flexibility to compete in the health care market.

Public benefit corporations can have drawbacks, but CSEA is cautiously optimistic about the two PBCs set up for medical centers in Westchester and Nassau counties. CSEA made sure that legislation creating the PBCs included protections for CSEA members, maintaining their salary scales, benefits, enrollment in the state retirement system and union representation.

Within days of the creation of the Nassau and Westchester PBCs, two public facilities became privatization targets. Gov. Pataki wants the Roswell Park Cancer Center in Buffalo and the Helen Hayes Hospital in Rockland County to become private, not-for-profit corporations, which are not the same as PBCs.

CSEA is fighting the proposal. Roswell Park is a leader in cancer research, and if its progress lags because of privatization, not only will employees and patients suffer, but anyone who might benefit from successful research could pay the price of privatization.

In Rockland County, Helen Hayes Hospital offers intensive rehabilitation for people suffering from a wide variety of problems including stroke, brain injury, arthritis and osteoporosis.

The battles for these health care facilities is far from over, and more loom ahead, but CSEA is determined to find new solutions that allow public health care facilities to continue operating publicly.

Throughout all the tumult, CSEA members will continue, as they do now, to provide vital services to all who need them.

“I think we'll be able to deliver health care in a better fashion,” said Gary Forgione, a security officer at A. Holly Patterson Home. “Look at the other PBCs and they seem to do better because there is much less red tape.”

“What Public Benefit Corporations can do for public employees:

✓ Preserve employment protections and union membership.
✓ Maintain salary scales, benefits, membership in the retirement system.
✓ Preserve Taylor Law protections.
✓ Maintain seniority rights and longevity.

“I want to keep my job; everybody here wants the same thing,” said Santos Guzman, a carpenter at Helen Hayes Hospital. “This is a great place.... We just want to continue the great service.”

“I'm hoping our jobs are safe, that's my main concern,” said CSEA A. Holly Patterson Housekeeping Supervisor Sarah Smith. “We have always been county employees but when they looked for private contractors it was a huge worry. It is very important to me that I am still a public employee.”

What Public Benefit Corporations can do for health care facilities:

✓ Maintains accountability to taxpayers.
✓ Has some features of a private company and so has more flexibility, but maintains important public sector protections.
✓ Allows contracts with managed care companies and increases competitiveness.
✓ Allows facility to borrow money independently from the county.
EDUCATION - a top CSEA priority

Region 2 Scholarship Awards

MANHATTAN — "You've got to be in it to win it," said CSEA Scholarship Committee member Dutch Wade, reminding all metro area members that 1997 Scholarship applications are available now and must be submitted by April 15th.

CSEA parents of high school seniors may obtain applications from their Local union office, from the CSEA Metro Region Headquarters (212-406-2156) or call Dutch Wade at his Brooklyn Developmental Center CSEA Local 447 office (718) 642-4841. Three deserving metro area winners will each receive a $500 union scholarship check. Their names will be announced in The Public Sector, as were the 1996 winners pictured here.

Accompanied by CSEA Local Presidents Carol Backstrom, Lester Crockett and Carolyn Silnyak, Emily Babby of CSEA Local 406 Bernard Fineson Developmental Center, Joy Nelson of CSEA Local 351 NYS Insurance Fund and Mary Swinton of CSEA Local 401 Bronx Psychiatric Center accepted checks on behalf of their children, Gisha Babby, Christie Nelson and Yolanda Swinton.

8500 scholarship winners then become automatically enrolled for consideration to receive either of two additional Jardine/Travelers scholarships of $2,500 each.

After presenting the scholarship awards, CSEA Metro Region 2 President George Boncoraglio urged more New York City members to participate.

“We have 20,000 metro area members who could send in applications and last year the CSEA Scholarship Committee received less than 100 applications from New York City members,” agreed Dutch Wade. “More people need to take advantage of educational opportunities as we approach the year 2000, when education is being stressed. We owe it to our children to enhance their education.”

Living with uncertainty

Life in the 90s

"CAREER DAY" and "TRANSITION TRAINING"

MANHATTAN — Long gone are the days when the words “civil service job” and “job security” were synonymous.

In states across the nation, even as thousands of private sector workers fear downsizing or out-sourcing, a shrinking public sector workforce stares at on-going threats of privatization, contracting-out, and jobs lost through attrition or possibly to workfare recipients.

CSEA Metro Region 2 members who wanted to learn more about navigating the civil service system, transferring within the system or looking for new opportunities in the private sector, attended Transition Training classes held at the union office. Others attended a “Career Day” held at Metro New York D.D.S.O. in lower Manhattan.

NYS Civil Service Department Trainer Ellie Graham taught every skill from resume preparation to successful interviewing techniques to CSEA members who see imposed job changes on the horizon or who wished to take the initiative in transferring their civil service skills to another agency.

Metro NY D.D.S.O. CSEA Local 443 Community Service Secretary Patricia Winston attended the Career Day program which was also coordinated by Ms. Graham. There exhibitors from local educational institutions, public and private sector employers, the New York State Labor Department and CSEA, answered questions and provided help to employees with concerns about their next career moves.

CSEA Labor Relations Specialist Barbara Moore manned an information table distributing among many booklets, CSEA’s guide to surviving unemployment titled, “What To Do When The Paychecks Stop.”

“Your CSEA can help you even when times are hard,” the union material points out. “Stay in touch with CSEA for information on retraining, benefit extensions, job openings, etc. Your CSEA representative can let you know what benefits you may be eligible for, and advise you on how to apply for them. Also you may be able to work with CSEA in a variety of ways to help you survive unemployment.”

Transition Trainings are arranged in the metro area through Ms. Graham’s office at the Civil Service Department. If you are interested in being placed on a list to attend the next one, please contact Ellie Graham at 718-642-6094.
Acknowledging that CSEA has had a “powerful impact” for the good on thousands of metropolitan area union families, Metropolitan Region 2 President George Boncoraglio welcomed activists, staff and guests to the Installation ceremonies for newly elected region officers.

“CSEA has become a powerful force within the New York City labor movement,” Boncoraglio said, while sincerely thanking well-wishers and rank and file members for their support.

“This night represents the commitment and dedication of a new slate of CSEA Region 2 Officers to the hard work ahead,” Boncoraglio added, thanking CSEA Long Island Region President Nick LaMorte for administering the oaths of office. Other newly elected Region 2 officers are Robert Nurse of Kingsboro Psychiatric Center Local 402 as Executive Vice President, Carolyn Sikoryak of Creedmoor Psychiatric Center Local 406 as First Vice President, Leonita Wilson of New York City Local 010 as Second Vice President, Janet Torres of NYS Housing and Community Renewal Local 258 as Third Vice President, Harriet Hart of NYS Insurance Fund Local 351 as Secretary and Ana Diaz of CSEA Bernard Fineson Developmental Center Local 406 as Treasurer.

Newly elected New York State Senator Vincent Gentile congratulated the installed officers and thanked CSEA’s rank and file Brooklyn and Staten Island members for helping him defeat his opponent, incumbent Republican Robert DiCarlo in the November elections.

CSEA members at Kingsboro Psychiatric Center have long memories and will never forget how Senator DiCarlo refused to fight Governor Pataki’s ill-conceived plan to close their hospital and abandon mental health services in Brooklyn. “We know we have a friend in the Senate from Brooklyn that we can count on now,” said CSEA Local 402 President Robert Nurse.

Later Brooklyn Congressman Charles Schumer also extended his best wishes and pledged to keep a watchful eye in Washington on issues that affect union members back home in New York.

“One of those big issues will be welfare reform,” insisted President Boncoraglio. “Public jobs must continue to be staffed by civil service employees and not replaced by lower paid welfare recipients as welfare is implemented in New York State. This is of great concern to all CSEA members. We cannot allow the civil service system to be dismantled in the name of welfare reform!”

CSEA Treasurer Maureen Malone and CSEA Secretary Barbara Reeves traveled from Albany bringing greetings and good wishes for the installation ceremonies.

But they too, expressed determination about CSEA jobs not being taken over by thousands of welfare recipients if the private sector fails to provide enough jobs for them. “CSEA favors reforming the welfare system, of course,” said Maureen Malone. “But we must get serious assurances that the present public workforce will not be displaced by an army of low-paid workers who get no benefits or workers’ compensation coverage.”

Celebrating installation ceremonies means once again CSEA’s democratic election process has provided a new beginning. But we are wary as we start this new term of office, President Boncoraglio said.

“These waters are uncharted, the future is unknown and most likely many dangers lie ahead. But we pledge our best efforts because together we will make a real difference for our members and their families.”

Region 2 Blast Glorification of Confederate Flag

MANHATTAN — Impassioned January speeches recalling Dr. Martin Luther King’s inspiring life drew enthusiastic applause from CSEA Metro Region 2 members. But the sobering truth that race relations in America are deteriorating cannot be denied, noted Minority Affairs Committee Chairperson Joyce Idowu. Idowu urged CSEA members to join President George Boncoraglio’s letter-writing campaign demanding that South Carolina Governor David Beasley remove the Confederate flag from the state’s capitol dome.

“The blatant and obvious use of the Confederate flag as a symbol of racism and hatred by the Ku Klux Klan and other hate groups today is a tragic fact,” Boncoraglio wrote in a recent letter to South Carolina’s Governor. “The members of our union, both African-American and white, are equally offended by this symbolism.”

Governor Beasley himself stated that “hate struck the match and hate pulled the trigger” in South Carolina church burnings and drive-by shootings.

Honoring Dr. King’s birthday, CSEA members and local leadership pledged to send letters to the Hon. David Beasley, South Carolina Governor’s Office, 1200 Senate Street, Capitol Complex, Wade Hampton Bldg., Columbia, South Carolina, 29201.

“It’s time to replace the Confederate flag with a flag under which ALL may feel proud to stand,” Boncoraglio said.

Saluting Unsung, Ignored War Heroes

At this year’s Dr. Martin Luther King birthday commemoration, CSEA members were also reminded of seven black World War II soldiers who were finally awarded Medals of Honor by President Bill Clinton at January White House ceremonies.

Only Lieutenant Joseph Vernon Baker of St. Maries, Idaho had lived long enough to see this day. Family members of six other black soldiers who had distinguished themselves on World War II battlefields, accepted their medals posthumously.

Members of the Region 2 Minority Affairs Committee pointed out that of the 1.2 million black Americans in World War II military service, none received any of the 432 Medals of Honor awarded. However, a 1995 Pentagon review by the Senior Army Decorations Board determined “that while there’s no explicit documentation of racial prejudice, the fact that no black soldier received the Medal of Honor did reflect the national climate at the time.”

Members of CSEA Region 2 are proud to honor those who waited more than 50 years to receive the recognition that was denied them.
POLITICAL ACTION

Region 2 PEOPLE Committee working for you

MANHATTAN — The last Republican-dominated Congress made no bones about its anti-working class, pro-business agenda. Right-wingers took dead aim at the Fair Labor Standards Act, attempting to eliminate most opportunities for workers to receive overtime pay by scrapping the 40-hour work week. Another bill they pushed would have made it much easier for management to raid pension funds. The 104th Congress made no bones about its anti-working class, the Fair Labor Standards Act, attempting to eliminate millions in corporate welfare went last Congress slashed programs that benefit ordinary people while billions in corporate welfare went almost untouched.

"This is to help us campaign for important issues in Congress," Hoskins said. Joined by two committee members from CSEA Local 351 NYS Insurance Fund, Juanita Shine and Jackie Stanford, each agreed that Region 2's PEOPLE Committee is one of the hardest working groups of activists in New York City. "We meet every other month and volunteer our time at union Information Days and Lunch-and-Learn Programs around the city to meet with the membership and educate them about what CSEA is up against," she said PEOPLE Co-Chair Terri Gravitt of CSEA Bernard Fineson Developmental Center Local 406. "It's all volunteer," she emphasized. "Everybody does the work and even more than they are supposed to do." CSEA Retiree Local 910 member Barbara Rustin said she constantly encourages more retirees to contribute to PEOPLE knowing that funds are needed to fight for cost of living increases and supplements. For their tireless efforts to raise political action funds, CSEA salutes all the members of the Region 2 PEOPLE Committee: Pat Metzger, Chairperson (CSEA NYS Tax and Finance Dept. Local 460), Terri Gravitt, Chair and Leila Hoskins (CSEA Creedmoor Local 406), Barbara Rustin (CSEA Retirees Local 910), Frank Cosentino (CSEA NYS Liquor Authority Local 010), Joe Aravena (CSEA NYS Psychiatric Institute Local 419) and CSEA NYS Insurance Fund Local 351 members Juanita Shine, Jackie Stanford and Shirley Daise.

Guess what?
THEY'RE BACK!!

That's why Region 2's PEOPLE Committee is kicking off an ambitious drive to sign up more CSEA members across the city in coming months. "PEOPLE is the best way CSEA/AFSCME members can fight back against extremism in Washington," said CSEA Metro Region 2 President George Boncoraglio. Award-winning PEOPLE recruiter Frank Cosentino of CSEA NYS Liquor Authority Local 010, says PEOPLE is the strongest viable way that CSEA members can help their union fight for them. "I talk to members the way I would like to be spoken to," Cosentino said.

"Most union dues money can't be used for political action, but with monies donated to PEOPLE, our union can lobby for issues that benefit the members. Big corporations lobby through their own groups and PEOPLE is our way of fighting against them," Cosentino said. He noted how the last Congress slashed programs that benefit ordinary people while millions in corporate welfare went almost untouched.

CSEA Creedmoor Local 406 member Leila Hoskins has served on the Region 2 PEOPLE Committee for the past three years. "This is to help us campaign for important issues in Congress," Hoskins said. Joined by two committee members from CSEA Local 351 NYS Insurance Fund, Juanita Shine and Jackie Stanford, each agreed that Region 2's PEOPLE Committee is one of the hardest working groups of activists in New York City. "We meet every other month and volunteer our time at union Information Days and Lunch-and-Learn Programs around the city to meet with the membership and educate them about what CSEA is up against," said PEOPLE Co-Chair Terri Gravitt of CSEA Bernard Fineson Developmental Center Local 406. "It's all volunteer," she emphasized. "Everybody does the work and even more than they are supposed to do." CSEA Retiree Local 910 member Barbara Rustin said she constantly encourages more retirees to contribute to PEOPLE knowing that funds are needed to fight for cost of living increases and supplements. For their tireless efforts to raise political action funds, CSEA salutes all the members of the Region 2 PEOPLE Committee: Pat Metzger, Chairperson (CSEA NYS Tax and Finance Dept. Comptroller speaks to Local 010

MANHATTAN — As an invited guest of CSEA New York City Local 010 and Metro Region 2 Political Action Committees, Comptroller Carl McCull spoke to 55 activists about his management of the New York State Employees Retirement Fund, answering several retiree questions about cost-of-living adjustments. McCull roundly criticized both Gov. Pataki's budget priorities and recent fiscal irresponsibility in attempting to transfer Social Service jobs from Queens to Binghamton. McCull maintained that his analysis failed to show where these job transfers would save any taxpayers' dollars.

According to Metro Region 2 PAC Chairman Vincent Martusciello, McCull "impressed CSEA members by being down to earth, very friendly and very honest." CSEA Local 010 activist Lauretta Johnson warmly welcomed McCull, thanking him for his constant vigilance and concern for public employees.

Boycott Shell Oil

CSEA Metro Region 2 Minority Affairs Committee members urge their brothers and sisters to boycott Shell Oil Company products because of Shell's strong support of Nigerian dictator General Sani Abacha, known to be guilty of human rights abuses and environmental devastation. Ogoni environmental activist Ken Saro-Wiwa and eight others were put to death by the Nigerian regime, despite world-wide cries for clemency. Concerned CSEA members may join the Minority Affairs Committee in writing their legislators in favor of economic sanctions against Nigeria.

Members troubled by Shell's involvement may also write to Mr. Philip J. Carroll, CEO, Shell Oil USA, One Shell Plaza, P.O.Box 2463, Houston, Texas 77252.

Labor-Religion Coalition launches 1997 40-hour fast

STATEN ISLAND — In 1996 thousands of union activists, clergy and people of faith, joined in a 40-Hour Fast for the Common Good, protesting the many wrong-headed budget cuts proposed by Governor George Pataki. Bishops, priests, ministers and rabbis, along with rank and file union members, made a real difference by this action as our prayers and worries were aired by the media.

This year from March 19th to the 21st, CSEA will again be supporting a 40-Hour Fast sponsored by the New York Labor and Religion Coalition which will focus on the Governor’s welfare reform proposals.

“Every New Yorker has a stake in the final shape welfare reform will take, especially those of us in the public sector whose jobs may be on the line. We can only wonder how many workforce recipients will be available to do our jobs for below minimum wage and with no benefits,” warned CSEA Metro Region 2 President George Boncoraglio.

“Everyone agrees the welfare system is broken and needs to be fixed, but let us work, pray and fast for changes that will not create a new ‘slave labor’ class in our society, or even more homeless families on our streets,” Boncoraglio added.

CSEA members should encourage their faith communities and pastors to join us in the 40-Hour Fast. For more details on participating, contact Lilly Gioia, CSEA Communications Associate at 212-406-2156.

America Needs a Raise

A t last someone’s speaking up for the people who do America’s work. In his new book “America Needs A Raise,” AFL-CIO President John Sweeney blasts corporate greed and irresponsibility for causing the growing gap between the wealthy and the working class.

Sweeney details the reasons he sees for today’s declining standard of living for workers and proposes a new “social contract” to give American workers “prosperity and power.”

“The weakness of labor and the absence of a progressive social movement has created a dangerous vacuum that’s being filled with demagoguery and division,” Sweeney maintains. He faults a system where CEO’s in 1995 took home 145 times higher salaries than average workers, when in 1960 their average salaries were 41 times higher than average workers.

“I offer in this book a vision of a revitalized labor movement that will reach out to working people’s needs not only for a decent standard of living but also for fulfilling jobs in making products or providing services in which they can take pride,” Sweeney writes.

Sweeney wants unions to become a “kind of Consumer Reports for working families,” on legislative issues, public officials and political candidates.

CSEA Local 419 honors Tony Bailous

MANHATTAN — During a general membership meeting at CSEA’s NYS Psychiatric Institute (PI) Local 419 on Manhattan’s upper west side, Vice President Joe Aravena surprised Local President Tony Bailous with a plaque honoring his years of service to his union family.

The plaque read, “Presented to Tony Bailous in recognition of his extraordinary involvement and achievements, and in appreciation of his many years of unselfish dedicated service to CSEA.”

A Plant Utility Engineer III entering his 23rd years of State service, Bailous was completely taken by surprise. “I’ve always worked to see that PI members are treated with the dignity and respect that they deserve,” Bailous said. “I never did this job for a reward or recognition, but this means a lot to me because it comes from my own folks.”

Bailous has served in many union positions over the years and presently is a member of CSEA’s Judicial Board and is Chairman of the union’s statewide Constitution and By-Laws Committee. He never misses a New York City Labor Day Parade, usually leading the CSEA contingent on his motorcycle. The year he rode on the CSEA float as the “Grim Reaper,” his portrayal was so good, his picture appeared in the Daily News.

“I try to insure that the quality of workforce at PI is good,” Bailous said. “I became a union activist because, when I was coming up, so many things were done to guys in the power plant. I wanted to make sure that nobody else was treated as insensitively by supervisors and now as a supervisor myself, I don’t do those things that once troubled me.”

Because of his dedication to lessening tensions at the NY Psychiatric Institute between labor and management, it’s obvious why CSEA members appreciate an improved working environment.

WORKERS’ MEMORIAL DAY
APRIL 28, 1997

Helen Hayes unions vow to fight privatization

WEST HAVERSTRAW — CSEA and PEF members who work at Helen Hayes Hospital have pledged to vigorously lobby local and state lawmakers to reject a proposal to privatize the facility.

The nearly 100-year-old hospital is the target of an effort by Gov. Pataki who has proposed the private takeover of the northern Rockland County rehabilitation facility as part of his state budget.

More than 200 employees attended a recent meeting at which union officers and staff explained the legislative process and asked for volunteers to serve on a task force to help campaign efforts to save the hospital. Already, the local daily newspaper has called for a study to be conducted and one county legislator has submitted a resolution to form a committee to urge state lawmakers to reject such a proposal.

"Helen Hayes Hospital is not just the buildings," said CSEA Local 302 President Bill Curtin. "It's the people — the people that make it special. The people who come here and stay for years are dedicated ... you can't replace that."

— Anita Manley

"Privatization would affect the patients," said Michele Squibb, financial screener at Helen Hayes Hospital. "We all know our jobs and the history of this facility. We're committed to our jobs."

― Anita Manley

Why should public health care remain public?

✓ Public health facilities treat all patients regardless of ability to pay.

✓ Public facilities provide services that are unprofitable for private facilities to provide.

✓ Public facilities are equipped to treat the most severely ill and disabled.

✓ For-profit hospitals charge more than public hospitals.

✓ Costs increase when private providers gain monopoly control.

✓ Private providers achieve savings through inferior wages and benefits, resulting in high turnover rates, less experienced staff and lower quality of care.

✓ Private facilities use fewer staff than are needed to meet the needs of patients.

✓ Private facilities cut services to increase profits.

✓ Private facilities push services that are profitable but unnecessary.

✓ Privatization of health care facilities and the resulting wage and benefit cuts means fewer jobs and less spending power, which threatens local businesses.

"If Roswell was privatized, I'd be concerned about my retirement plans being ruined," said Eileen Insalaco, a medical laboratory technician at Roswell Park. "I have felt more secure working for the state in making my retirement plans, but privatization would change the whole picture. Also, most of my co-workers here in the microbiology - lab medicine department are concerned that a private employer would subcontract our department's services out, and we could be out of our jobs here."

"I am cautiously optimistic about the PBC," said Dr. Carol Kaplan of Nassau County Medical Center. "I hope the holdups we had before trying to get things through the local legislature will be over and we will have the ability to implement things which are good for the hospital much faster."
Labor takes media into its own hands

“It disgusts me to be called a union boss” by the media, says New York Central Labor Council President Brian McLaughlin, “when some of the greediest people in this country are called ‘business leaders’.” McLaughlin, also a New York state Assembly representative from Queens, recently expressed a widely-held sentiment among labor activists and advocates.

Progressive media critics have long noted the way right-wing groups use like-minded media outlets to achieve an echo effect for their ideas. This effect popularizes lines like “union bosses,” stories charging unions with “trying to buy Congress” or praising the “unqualified success” of privatization. These ideas may be mentioned in the The Wall Street Journal, picked up by talk show host Rush Limbaugh and reflected in the op-ed pages of local newspapers. That the claims made by such stories are baseless matters less and less; their repetition creates an echoing resonance with the public.

Labor advocates now want to create such an echoing system for progressive, pro-worker ideas and perspectives.

Labor editors say very few mainstream journalists are knowledgeable about labor issues or even attempt to develop sources in the labor community. This means that even when the stories they run don’t demonstrate obvious anti-union bias, they often reflect ignorance about labor.

Media accounts often characterize the AFL-CIO as an interest group, with little acknowledgement that the labor federation represents more than 13 million working Americans and engages in legislative and educational activities that benefit all workers. In recent campaigns like the election advertising effort and the one that won a raise in the minimum wage, media streamlines like “interest group” obscured that labor was championing the public interest.

Labor leaders have a message on issues like privatization, the disappearance of full-time jobs, education and immigration that all working people need to hear. It is a message that often diverges sharply from that preached by the mainstream media. Labor has the resources to communicate this message, although at the moment they are still underutilized.

All of this doesn’t mean labor advocates are writing off the mainstream media entirely. These outlets remain a primary source of information for most union members. That’s why labor leaders like McLaughlin, despite concerns about press hostility, hold meetings with editorial boards of local newspapers and think it important to make themselves available to reporters. These outlets need to know what the labor community is doing. McLaughlin says, “They need to hear from us.”

Making welfare reform work for everyone

By Edward J. Cleary, President, New York State AFL-CIO

The New York State AFL-CIO wants welfare reform to work — for everyone. It’s not just about welfare recipients and their families but about working families who work hard, play by the rules and hope for a better life. The new law pushes states to make two big changes. First, it imposes tough requirements for job placements through time limits on benefits and incentives for state performance. Second, it relaxes key protections workers enjoyed under previous welfare-to-work legislation.

Most Americans believe that all able-bodied people should work. This belief, that we share, is tempered by our skepticism about the ability of New York State’s economy to generate enough jobs. Everyone who can work should work, but there is no guarantee that everyone who wants to work can find suitable employment. According to the state Labor Department, 496,000 New Yorkers are seeking work now and 48,000 lost their jobs in the last two years due to plant closings and layoffs. In addition, a number of people are working two or three jobs just to keep up.

Let’s make sure New York works. Here’s how:

- We need real jobs with full employment rights;
- Welfare reform must protect existing workers and current labor standards;
- The new system must be accountable to the public;
- Everyone, every sector, must do their part.

Join with CSEA to help organize working people.

Help make the Heart of New York beat stronger.

Workers today need to join together and have a voice in the workplace.

It’s not just about money — it’s about fairness.

It’s not just about benefits — it’s about security and respect.

CSEA is New York’s top union, and we’ve won dignity and pride as well as better wages, benefits and working conditions for all members of the CSEA family.

But too many of our family, friends and neighbors have gone without what unionized workers have achieved.

That’s why the entire labor movement has dedicated itself to a new and dramatic commitment to organizing. And CSEA will lead the nation’s unions in this mission.

So I’m calling on you to join the CSEA effort to organize working people. Let us know about those family, friends and neighbors of yours that may need a union in their workplace.

Call the CSEA Organizing Department at 1-800-342-4146 ext. 300 and help make the Heart of New York beat stronger.

The Work Force
Local 1000, AFSCME, AFL-CIO
Danny Donohue, President
CSEA has established an aggressive list of priorities for the 1997 session of the State Legislature. CSEA's Legislative and Political Action Committee has approved the union's 1997 Legislative Program that includes proposed bills and strong positions on a wide variety of issues, including improved working conditions, safer work places, more fair and equitable civil service protections, tougher criteria for privatization efforts and a permanent cost of living adjustment for retirees. The Legislative Program also takes a tough stand on welfare reform, addresses school district employee issues and includes proposed legislation which would make agency shop permanent.

Here's a detailed look at CSEA's progressive 1997 Legislative Program:

WELFARE REFORM

By July 1, 1997 New York State must implement the Federal welfare reform changes enacted in 1996. CSEA has long advocated and supported welfare reform and will continue to push for real reform in New York State, with the following principles as our main concern.
- The existing work force must not be displaced
- Public assistance programs must not be contracted out
- Welfare recipients must be placed in real jobs with full employment rights
- Adequate funds must be made available for child care and education and training programs to move people off of welfare
- All parts of the state must be treated equally under the plan
- All people in need must be eligible for Medicaid

CIVIL SERVICE LAW

1. INDEPENDENT HEARING OFFICER
   - Requires the appointment of a neutral hearing officer to conduct and rule on hearings regarding disciplinary charges brought against public employees subject to Section 75 of the Civil Service Law.
2. U-GRADES — Restores the power to approve positions in the unclassified service of the State University System (SUNY) to the Civil Service Commission.
3. RIGHT TO STRIKE — Eliminates provision which singles out public employees and denies them the fundamental right to strike.
4. ELIMINATION OF 2 FOR 1 PENALTY — Eliminates provisions of Taylor Law which penalize striking public employees 2 days of pay for every day of work missed due to a strike.
5. EMPLOYEE SUSPENSION — Establishes that an employee cannot be suspended while disciplinary charges are pending unless it is proven that the employee presents a danger to persons or property.

AGENCY SHOP

1. AGENCY SHOP EXTENSION.
   - Every two years, the State Legislature must renew provisions of the civil service law which require agency shop fee deductions for state, local government and school district employees. Agency shop must be extended again in 1997.
   - Without agency shop, employees who are not union members are "free riders"; that is, they get all the benefits union members get without paying union dues. In an agency shop, employees who choose not to belong to the union pay an agency shop fee that goes toward the cost of representing the employees.
2. PERMANENT AGENCY SHOP.
   - To avoid the necessity of passing extender legislation every two years CSEA has drafted legislation which would make agency shop provisions permanent.

PRIVATIZATION

CSEA has drafted a bill to ensure that all levels of government in New York State follow strict standards and meet stringent criteria before they can contract-out or privatize services.

This law would require state and local governments to prove that privatizing/contracting out will save real money: the bill establishes a procedure to ensure compliance with the law and to allow public employees the right to respond and object to privatization attempts; all governments and agencies would have to submit proposed privatization/contracting-out agreements for review and approval. The bill also contains very strong employee protection language.

SCHOOL DISTRICT

1. CONTINGENCY — Provides that cafeteria expenses of a school district are ordinary contingent expenses of that district in the event a school budget is defeated.
2. ELIMINATION OF SCHOOL BUS STANDEES — Makes it unlawful to operate a school bus to or from school while any passenger is standing.
3. UNEMPLOYMENT FOR SCHOOL DISTRICT EMPLOYEES
   - HEALTH & SAFETY ISSUES — Provides that school district employees be eligible for unemployment benefits between academic years.

HEALTH & SAFETY ISSUES

1. ELISA'S LAW REFORM — CSEA will work to protect employees who face false or wrongful accusations under newly passed provisions of "Elisa's Law Child Protective Services Reform Act of 1996."
2. WORKSITE SECURITY — CSEA will continue to push for legislation that protects public employees in the worksite and on the job both by strengthening safety, health and security laws, and by fighting for stricter penalties for violators of these laws.
3. VDT SAFETY — This bill requires that public employers provide minimum safeguards for operators of video display terminals.

RETIREMENT ISSUES

1. PERMANENT COLA — To help retired public employees on fixed incomes make ends meet, this bill would establish a permanent, annual cost of living adjustment to address inflation and other rising costs.
2. BOARD OF TRUSTEES — This bill would give public employees some say in how their Employees Retirement System Fund is administered and invested. Currently, the State Comptroller is the sole trustee of the fund.
3. HEALTH INSURANCE FOR RETIREES — Prohibits the growing problem of public employers reducing or eliminating retiree health benefits and leaving them without proper protection.
CSEA awards six $500 McDonough scholarships

Six sons and daughters of CSEA members pursuing higher education have been selected to receive financial assistance through the CSEA Thomas H. McDonough Memorial Scholarships for Continuing Studies program. The McDonough Memorial Scholarships provide $500 awards to one upperclass student in each of CSEA's six regions. Each of the recipients previously won scholarships as graduating high school seniors under the CSEA Irving Flaumenbaum Memorial Scholarships program and the continuing studies awards are designed to help augment that original scholarship. The McDonough scholarships are named in memory of the late past CSEA executive vice president, and the Flaumenbaum scholarships are named in memory of the late past president of CSEA's Long Island Region.

Winners of the 1996-97 McDonough Memorial Scholarships are:

Long Island Region: Michael Goller, whose mother, Maria Goller, is a district aide at Mt. Sinai School District and a member of CSEA Local 870. Michael is a student at Pennsylvania State University.

Metropolitan Region: Randi Gottlieb, whose mother, Sara Ehrlichson, is a transportation supervisor at Staten Island Developmental Center and a member of CSEA Local 429. Randi is a student at SUNY Albany.

Southern Region: Jill N. Kirsch, whose mother, Joan C. Kirsch, is a teaching assistant at Wallkill Central School and a member of CSEA Local 856. Jill is a student at SUNY New Paltz.

Capital Region: Thomas Michael Dillon Jr., whose mother, Joanne Dillon, is a typist with the Saratoga Springs City School District and a member of CSEA Local 864. Thomas is a student at the University of Michigan.

Central Region: Amy Marie Trask, whose father, Duane Trask, is a bus driver with the Laurens Central School District and a member of CSEA Local 839. Amy is a student at Keuka College.

Western Region: Kristen A. Ford, whose mother, Mary Ford, is a teacher aide with the Eden Central School District and a member of CSEA Local 868. Kristen is a student at SUNY Geneseo.

Children of CSEA members eligible to apply for $8,000 AFL-CIO labor studies scholarship

The New York State AFL-CIO will award a four-year scholarship to a 1997 graduating high school senior who intends to pursue a career in labor relations or a related field at an accredited institution of higher education in New York State. Sons and daughters of CSEA members who meet the criteria are eligible to apply. Application deadline is May 9, 1997.

The scholarship will be for $2,000 a year for four consecutive years for a total of $8,000.

Applications are available by contacting:

New York State AFL-CIO Scholarship Committee c/o Dr. Lois Gray
Cornell University, ILR School
16 East 34th Street, 4th Floor
New York, NY 10016

Deadline for submitting application forms is May 9, 1997. Applications must be accompanied by a letter of recommendation from the applicant's school: an official transcript and SAT scores; and an essay of 400-500 words describing the difficulties faced by U.S. workers who want to form unions and explaining how empowering workers through unions would enhance democracy in the United States.

The Public Sector • March 1997
Don't put the Meadows out to pasture

COOPERSTOWN — People might not have a place to go if Otsego County’s nursing home, the Meadows, is privatized, and that bothers CSEA members working there as much as the threat of losing their jobs.

“It has always been a place of last resort for the elderly in our county, where they would be treated equally regardless of their financial status,” Gloria Griffith said. “If it goes private, we’re afraid that they’ll be too concerned with making money or financial interests, and they’ll treat admissions more like numbers and less like people.”

Griffith, a shop steward, ward clerk and Save the Meadows Committee chair, has helped lead the union fight.

That fight has gone on for two years, and now the County Board of Supervisors wants to solicit bids from private contractors to take over the facility.

The union has a two-prong approach: educate and motivate. To educate the public, the union has produced a series of newspaper advertisements and an informative brochure arguing against privatization.

CSEA members are motivating people by busily collecting their signatures for petitions to be presented to the Board of Supervisors, urging them to keep the facility public.

CSEA member Mike Mitchell, a certified nursing assistant, worries about poor people.

“I feel that people who live in this community, people who don’t have the financial status of others, might not have a place to go if they privatize,” he said.

The public agrees with CSEA that the Meadows should remain a public facility, Griffith said.

“Anybody we ask to sign the petition is more than willing,” she said. “We’ve gotten more than 1,000 so far.”

PUBLIC SUPPORTS PUBLIC SCHOOL BUSES

PORT BYRON — About two years ago, when a 5-year-old boy fell asleep on his kindergarten bus in the Port Byron School District, the boy was quickly discovered by his bus driver.

His parents were immediately notified and the transportation supervisor drove the boy home. His father still talks about the notified until hours later.

And that, say CSEA members in the Port Byron School District, is a glaring example of the differences between publicly-operated school transportation and private operation, which the district board is currently investigating.

CSEA recently held a public forum where parents, teachers and the bus drivers themselves overwhelmingly echoed the union’s concerns about keeping familiar faces operating the buses, and maintaining safe and cost-effective transportation for the district’s children.

CSEA members presented more than 1,400 petition signatures to school board members as they met to open bids from private operators, and were joined by teachers in a demonstration prior to the meeting.

“The members of Cayuga County Local 806 have been working hard to get the message out to the public and their work is paying off,” CSEA Central Region President Jim Moore said. “If the school board votes to privatize, we know they’ll be doing it against the will of those who elected them.”

Workers don’t buy plan to sell cook-chill facility

ORANGEBURG — After spending $22 million in 1994 to open the cook-chill facility at Rockland Psychiatric Center, the state now wants to sell it, claiming that it’s operating at a fraction of capacity.

The state-of-the-art facility supplies food to 24 Office of Mental Health sites and other state and local agencies throughout the state. One shift of 39 workers prepares 15,000 pounds of food a day and workers say that with a three-shift operation, the facility could reach its potential of 80,000 pounds.

Employees have organized a CSEA/PEF Task Force to lobby lawmakers to convince them to expand operations rather than sell. Cook-Chill Director Josephine Fulbrook said profits from outside customers are already helping to pay for the plant. A local congressional representative encouraged her to begin marketing the plant’s services to federal agencies, she said.

Rockland Psychiatric Center Local 421 President Pam Alexander said a side benefit for many RPC patients is training in food preparation and maintenance so they can get jobs on their release.

NOTICE OF NOMINATIONS, ELECTIONS

Elections for CSEA statewide PRESIDENT, EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT, SECRETARY, TREASURER to be held in 1997

The offices of CSEA statewide president, executive vice president, secretary and treasurer are scheduled for election in 1997. CSEA members will be electing officers to fill those statewide offices for a 3-year term effective July 1, 1997.

The nominating petitioning period began Feb. 10. The deadline for nominating petitions to be received at CSEA headquarters is 5 p.m. March 21.

Nominating petition request forms are available from local presidents, CSEA headquarters and region offices.

Persons seeking a statewide office may petition and appear on the ballot individually or as part of a slate. A slate must contain a candidate for each of the statewide offices: president, executive vice president, secretary and treasurer.

Candidates must be at least 18 years old, have been a CSEA member in good standing since June 1, 1996, and must have continuously paid CSEA membership dues since that date. Candidates cannot be a member of a competing labor organization and must not be serving a disciplinary penalty imposed by the CSEA statewide Judicial Board.

Any CSEA member who meets the above criteria may become a candidate and have his or her name placed on the ballot for a specific statewide office by obtaining 1,000 signatures of CSEA members eligible to vote in the upcoming election. Signatures must be of CSEA dues-paying members who are not serving a suspension and who have no delinquent dues. The signatures must be collected and submitted on official nominating petition forms in a timely fashion under the published election schedule.

The election process will be overseen by the union’s Elections Committee. The balloting will be conducted by an independent election agency approved by the union’s statewide Board of Directors.

The remaining schedule for the 1997 election for CSEA statewide offices is below.

Note: The remaining schedule for the 1997 election for CSEA statewide offices is below.

Membership break affects eligibility to seek union office, vote

A break in union membership status can have long-term future implications. Your membership status affects your eligibility with respect to:

- seeking or holding union office;
- signing nominating petitions for potential candidates;
- voting in union elections, and;
- voting on collective bargaining contracts.

Only members “in good standing” can participate in these activities. To be in “good standing,” your dues cannot be delinquent. If you go on unpaid leave or for any other reason have a break in your employment status, your dues will not continue to be paid through payroll deductions. You must make arrangements to pay your dues directly to CSEA to continue your membership status. If you are either laid off or placed on leave without pay status due to becoming disabled by accident, illness, maternity or paternity, you may be eligible for dues-free membership status for a period not to exceed one year.

Note, however, you must continue to pay dues to run for office. Dues-free or gratuitous membership allows members to continue their insurance coverage while out of work. It does not protect your right to run for or hold office.

You must notify the CSEA Membership Records Department at 1-800-342-4146, Ext. 327, of any change in your status and what arrangements you are making to continue your membership in CSEA.
We’ve come a long way, together

In the 1970’s, when many women were experiencing difficulties securing mortgages and credit cards, CSEA’s newly-created Public Sector newspaper began reporting on the union’s efforts to improve women’s jobs, wages and educational opportunities and child care options. This Women’s History Month we celebrate the gains of CSEA women.

CSEA has been in the forefront fighting for pay equity and career ladders for union women in civil service for decades.

In 1977 women members of CSEA’s Board of Directors and top female region officers were among more than 10,000 women attending New York’s historic first statewide women’s meeting.

In 1979 CSEA successfully negotiated the Clerical and Secretarial Employee Advancement Program (CSEAP) that has since opened doors for more than 10,000 clerical and secretarial employees to receive appointments to non-traditional job titles. CSEAP’s Training and Technical Center opened in 1984 and has trained more than 24,000 workers.

Today, many of the first 70 babies and children enrolled in the first labor-management sponsored Albany Empire State Plaza “Children’s Place” day care center in 1979 are entering or attending college. Today there are 51 facilities across the state offering infant care to full day kindergarten on sliding fee scales to CSEA parents.

Though obstacles still remain for women who feel encumbered by a glass ceiling, the gigantic gains made over the past 20 years stand as undeniable proof of what determined CSEA men and women can achieve in the next 20 years.

March is Women’s History Month

On March 25, 1911, the infamous Triangle Shirtwaist factory fire in New York City killed 147 young workers, mostly immigrant women. The victims had been locked in the workplace by their employer. That tragedy stunned America and inspired new fire safety laws.

On March 24, 1974, the Coalition of Labor Union Women (CLUW) was founded to promote equal rights, better wages and better working conditions for women workers. Today there are more than 20,000 CLUW members representing more than 60 unions (including CSEA and AFSCME) throughout the United States.

Day Care Center
an innovation

ALBANY — The first day care center primarily for workers was dedicated last week in Albany, the result of negotiating by CSEA with the State. The Plaza Di Center was dedicated in the Empire State Plaza, state offices complex in downtown Albany.

CSEA President William L. McGowan, who partook in ceremonies marking the dedication, said he envisions a series of similar day care centers eventually near other state work locations around the State. The Plaza Di Center is being opened as a pilot project on September 1st.

It will be run as a public benefit corporation, and Gov. Cuomo is expected to include public employee union representatives as well as state management personnel to the corporation.

Meyer “Sandy” Fucher, director of the governor’s office of employee relations, who represented Governor Carey in the dedication, praised CSEA for leading the drive to achieve a program through labor-management negotiations.

President McGowan said the union has pursued the project for years in an effort to ease employment pressures for single parent state worker families. “This is a great concept that should prove to be a great benefit to employees. I believe we will see the idea spread as this project proves its worth,” McGowan said.

The Public Sector
June 20, 1979

I feel that we have come a long way within the union as well as in the worksite. In the past, we were seldom given credit for having the initiative to do the job or solve problems because everything was male-oriented. I had a superintendent of the training school I worked in back in the 60’s who encouraged me to move up and out, to go for promotions and to take over as an interim supervisor when my boss was away. “My superintendent was part of the union at that time and he encouraged me to become active in the union and that’s when I ran for president. I ran against men most of the time, and I won because I stood for integrity. “I think the Women’s Committee has opened doors for women to gain self-confidence and knowledge in numerous areas, thanks to the workshops that are offered at the Women’s Conferences and regional meetings. More people should wake up and get involved ... if you don’t stand for something, you’ll fall for anything!”

Sue Waltz
Senior Safety and Health Inspector
Former CSEA member activist

Sue Waltz is one of the many graduates of the CSEA Women’s Committee experience.

“If it weren’t for CSEA I wouldn’t be here today,” Waltz said, explaining the union’s involvement in her career development to the Grade 18 Senior Safety and Health Inspector consultant position she now holds in the Labor Department’s Public Employee Safety and Health Program.

“I went from the clerical series to this due to various educational opportunities CSEA offered in its programs, especially in the Women’s Committee. CSEA taught me how to be a local union officer for DMV. But the Women’s Committee programs taught me about networking, the value of education, setting goals and not being afraid to reach for those goals.”

Waltz explained that because of CSEA she continued her education and then used her life experience to qualify for the job she now enjoys.
DMNA workers friends of local police

NEW WINDSOR — CSEA members at the National Guard Base at Stewart Airport often reach out to help local police.

Security Patrolman Mike Sellett is secretary of CSEA DMNA Local 252. While on the job at the air base, he helped in a burglary investigation when he notified police about a man entering a vacant house.

It turned out the house had been used to hide jewelry stolen in a string of burglaries. Police found fingerprints and now have solid leads in the case.

Newburgh Town Police Detective Gary Cooper said Sellett’s quick action helped the investigation.

Another time, a drunk driver was apprehended thanks to the quick action of Sellett’s co-workers, Tony Kavouras, Chris Brodbeck and Dale Winchester.

The driver approached them while they were on duty at the gate.

“We could smell alcohol on his breath,” Brodbeck said. “We stopped him and then he put the car in reverse and tried to run us over. Then he went down a one-way exit.”

Brodbeck said he called the State Police and gave chase. They found the car crashed and the driver banging on the door of a closed store and yelling for repairs. Police learned the man had a number of prior charges.

The security staff also works with the Secret Service. Stewart Airport hosts many VIPs on their way to meetings at nearby West Point and the United Nations. The President has visited several times, as have foreign dignitaries including the King and Queen of Sweden, the Prince of Monaco and guests who attended former President Nixon's funeral in New Jersey.

During Operation Desert Storm, DMNA employees helped to keep the base secure. When a Federal Express airplane made a fiery emergency landing last fall, the DMNA members put out the fire.

"People think that all the personnel who work on the base are military," Sellett said. "It’s not true. Many of us are state employees."

AFSCME Women’s Conference

The 1997 AFSCME Eastern Region Women’s Conference will be held June 20 through 22 at the Regal Cincinnati Hotel, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The conference is open to CSEA rank and file members, activists and leaders who have an interest in women’s issues. Registration and hotel reservation deadline is May 19.

Accommodations are 889 plus 10.5 percent tax per night, single or double. Some meals are provided. Discount airfares have been negotiated with Delta Airlines.

No organizational leave will be provided and no reimbursement will be made to locals or units by CSEA. This is a legitimate expense for CSEA locals and units. For registration/housing forms and other information, contact your CSEA local or unit president, or call Kathleen Cahalan at CSEA Headquarters, 1-800-342-4146 or (518) 434-0191 Ext. 306.

Scholarship deadline April 15

Application forms are available now for $14,000 in scholarships being offered by CSEA. A single application covers three scholarship programs.

Eighteen $500 Irving Flamenbaum Memorial Scholarships will be awarded to graduating high school seniors. One $2,500 Jardine Award will be given to a graduating high school senior entering higher education in the SUNY system. The top 2 percent of scholastic achievers, based on high school average, class rank and SAT scores, will comprise the eligibility pool for this scholarship.

One $2,500 Travelers Award will be given to a graduating high school senior and is not limited to a student entering the SUNY system.

Applications deadline is April 15

Application forms are available by contacting your CSEA local and/or unit president. Applications may also be obtained by contacting your CSEA region office. For additional information, contact Denise Futia, CSEA Headquarters, 1-800-342-4146 or 434-0191 Ext. 319.

How your dentist can join the panel

The CSEA EBF panel of dental providers changes periodically, so always check with your dentist to confirm that he or she is still a plan participant before service is actually rendered.

It continues to be somewhat difficult to recruit dentists in some rural areas because a lack of competition reduces the incentive for dentists to accept discounted fees in return for higher patient volume.

CSEA members can assist in the recruitment process statewide by providing the EBF with names and addresses of potential dental providers. If your dentist is not a CSEA EBF participating dentist and you would like him or her to consider participating, simply fill out the request for information form below and return it to the EBF.

Your Dentist will be supplied with information and an application to become an EBF participant.

Retire in style; plan ahead

CSEA continues offering its successful, free retirement counseling services to help members prepare for retirement.

More than 60 years ago CSEA enlisted the help of Jardine Group Services Corporation, the union's insurance administrator, to provide a variety of insurance products and services. One such program, Retirement Counseling, has helped members plan for the financial security they need for a happy retirement.

Retirement counseling is a free, no-obligation service available only to CSEA members who have been employed by New York state for a minimum of 10 years. Four CSEA counseling specialists, located throughout the state, are available to answer your questions and talk with you about the best ways to maximize your income and help protect your spouse and family members. In addition, the counseling specialists will:

- Develop guidelines to create flexibility within your pension;
- Suggest and advise you on what you can do with the money in your pension;
- Provide you with an overview of your retirement options;
- Outline how your CSEA Security Life Insurance can continue to serve as additional protection for your family after your retirement.

CSEA negotiated on your behalf to provide this invaluable, tailored retirement counseling service. You've worked hard and you've earned it. So let this CSEA-sponsored service provide you with the knowledge you need to prepare for a long and happy retirement.

Q: WE'RE PUBLIC EMPLOYEES.
Should we care about welfare reform?

A: ABSOLUTELY, because your jobs could be at stake!

Everyone wants welfare reform. But none of us wants reform to take away our jobs, our pay and our benefits.

Right now there are a lot of unanswered questions about how New York will implement the federal welfare reform.

Unless New York lawmakers are very clear about protecting the rights of workers, workfare requirements could be a big threat to our job security.

New York has to put 81,000 welfare recipients to work in 1997 alone. If there aren't enough private sector jobs available, these individuals may end up in our worksites.

CSEA wants public officials to know:

- Existing workers must not be displaced to make room for workfare recipients;
- Workfare recipients should not be exploited as a cheap source of labor that undermines our wages, benefits and rights.

DON'T LET WELFARE REFORM TAKE YOUR JOB!
