Important Matters Slated For Membership Meeting

When the news hit the left, there was no wrong to note. Local 219 was still trying to find a hall large enough to fill the impetus of the membership meeting on Thursday afternoon. The news shift meeting will be held at 1 p.m., Wednesday at the same hall.

Three matters of great importance are scheduled for this meeting:

The Local 219 officers to the UE Conference Board of all locals will meet at the joint meeting of the UE and Whitewright Conventions at the Empire State Building in New York City. The joint meeting is to consider raising the voice of the membership in and with the leadership of the electrical and woodworking locals.

Reports will be made at the national UE convention by the 219 Local 219 officers.

Election of Treasurer

In addition, the membership will elect a treasurer to serve for the remainder of the year. William F. Williams will again serve. The Executive Board has nominated Mr. Williams for another term to serve as treasurer.

The UE convention has called for the election of new officers for the next quarter of 1949 to all members. For identification purposes, every member is requested to report at the convention. The local officers have called for the election of new officers for the next quarter of 1949 to all members. For identification purposes, every member is requested to report at the convention.

Next Date at Empire State Building

The convention will meet at the Empire State Building on the next Saturday at 9 a.m. to adjourn and for the next session on the next Saturday at 9 a.m. to adjourn. The convention will adjourn at 1 p.m. at the end of the meeting on Saturday.

301 Constitution

Copy of the Local 219 Constitution will be available for all members of the union to make a copy of the same.

Miners on Strike; Steel May Be Next

Miners face a growing threat to their earnings and pensions as wage-hike plans for the nation's steel industry are delayed.

Big Companies Increasing Control

In the US manufacturing sector, big companies are increasing their control, which is due to several factors. Big companies are buying out small companies, which is reducing competition and increasing their market share.

Manufacturers

Manufacturers are using their power to create monopolies in several industries. This is due to the high cost of entry for new companies and the established companies' control over essential resources.

Unions

Unions are facing challenges as big companies increase their control. This is due to the companies' ability to hire scabs and the perception that unions are no longer necessary.

Government

The government is also increasing its control over the economy. This is due to the increase in regulatory policies and the expansion of the Federal Reserve's power to control the money supply.

Protests

Protests are increasing as people become more aware of the concentration of power in the hands of a few. This is due to the rise in awareness about environmental issues and the impact of big companies on the economy.

Future

The future of the US manufacturing sector is uncertain. The increase in big company control is likely to continue, which may lead to further protests and changes in government policies.
Is THIS the Rank and File?

CIE is highlighting the personal appeals as one of its many means of approaching the issue of union vs. non-union workers, wage, and welfare.

In a letter signed by Walter Mason, Secretary-Lt. Neilson, CIE is sending out the message that the strike is not a strike for higher pay, but a strike for unionization.

The letter states that the strike is for a union contract that will provide the workers with the same benefits as those enjoyed by non-union workers. The letter also mentions that the workers are not asking for higher wages, but for the right to unionize.

CIE is urging the workers to join the union and to support the strike. The letter states that the workers will be better off in the long run if they join the union and support the strike.

The letter ends with a call to action for the workers to join the union and support the strike.

More Donations Made
To Singer Strike

The 301 Bowling League, which turned to the community during the past week for the Singer Strike, has now expanded its efforts to include the 301 bowling league. The league, which has 50 members, will distribute all donations to the strikers.

The league has raised $1,000 so far, and plans to continue collecting donations.

301 Bowling League
Anounces Program

For the 100,000 bowling league, which meets Wednesday at the bowling alley in the main hall, a few members will come in all three divisions of the league, the men's, the women's, and the junior division.

The league has also started a campaign to get the workers to come to the bowling alley during the month of August.

If you want to join the 301 bowling league, you can do so by going to the bowling alley and signing up. The league meets every Wednesday at the bowling alley.

Extra Convocation
Supplement

The convention today elected the officers of the CIE group to approve the lay-off men's membership rights.

The convention also adopted the majority report of the constitution committee interpreting the constitution to provide that all unemployed workers who maintain themselves in good standing in that local union by the union and the local union must recognize their rights.

Our delegate, Brother White, is a member of the constitution committee.

The CIE group's minority report would have let it to the by-laws of the re-elected national officers of the CIE group to determine the rights of the unemployed members. Supporters decried the unemployment workers' rights in their reports. The CIE group has followed the minority report.

The CIE group called the guarantees of lay-off men's rights a "left-wing plot" to undermine their control of locals which they bond.

Administration supporters declared that we must fight for the rights of the unemployed, and cannot have second class citizens. Unemployed members must be treated like the employed members to do more jobs, speakers said.

The 301 bowling league directed the international officers to call on the rest of locals to join a vigorous fight for the unemployed.

We can make this democracy come about of anything else in the world by fighting for and winning the 3-hour-40 minutes fight to preserve the unemployed program.
