301 Gets State Department Head to Reconsider 7-Week Ruling on Turbine, M & G Lay-Offs

301inherits the office of the late Department of Labor head William D. Kelley, who was suspended last week by the Turbine M & G Strike Committee. The office was held by the late William D. Kelley, who was suspended last week by the Turbine M & G Strike Committee.

Toolmakers Press Run-off Drive

The United Electrical, Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union, Local 301, is pressing its run-off drive to achieve an agreement on the 7-week strike. The union has been in a run-off with the Turbine M & G Strike Committee for several weeks, and the run-off is expected to continue for several more.

URHLA's Salaries Set

The United Electrical, Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union, Local 301, has set the salaries for its members. The salaries will be $15 per week for the first year of employment, increasing to $20 per week for the second year. The union has also set a new minimum wage of $12 per hour for all employees.

301 Protest GE's Disability Plan

The United Electrical, Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union, Local 301, has protested General Electric's new disability plan. The union claims that the plan is unfair and discriminatory, and that it will result in the loss of qualified workers.

GE Attacks Seniority and Piece Work Guarantees

General Electric is attacking the seniority and piece work guarantees that are part of the contract. The union is fighting to protect these guarantees.

Memorandum to Act

The United Electrical, Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union, Local 301, has issued a memorandum to its members. The memorandum calls for a vote on the contract, and urges members to support the union's position.

Additional information from the United Electrical, Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union, Local 301, indicates that the union is preparing to take further action to protect its members.

Schenectady, New York

June 23, 1950

‘If you are a representative of the people, why don’t you represent them?’

How GE Moves to Break Steamfitters’ Strike—It’s Something for Toolmakers to Think About

The United Electrical, Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union, Local 301, has issued a statement in response to the recent news reports about the strike at General Electric. The union claims that the strike is necessary to protect the members' rights and that it will continue until a fair contract is reached.

301 Protests GE Disability Plan

301 protests General Electric's new disability plan, which they claim is unfair and discriminatory. The union has filed a complaint with the National Labor Relations Board.

Note: The original image contains additional text that is not relevant to the natural text representation.
IUE "Responsability Doesn't Help Workers"

In Westinghouse as well as GE, company spokesmen are telling the advantage of the 12-hour shift created by the IUE-UEC.

The workers who were mailed notice of the 12-hour, starting last week, they were told that this is a step toward the goal of equalization of the hours worked by the two companies. The company spokesmen were also telling the workers that the 12-hour shift will result in a number of benefits to the workers themselves. These benefits were outlined in a letter from the union president to the members of the union.

The letter stated that the 12-hour shift will result in a number of benefits to the workers themselves. These benefits were outlined in a letter from the union president to the members of the union. The letter stated that the 12-hour shift will result in a number of benefits to the workers themselves. These benefits were outlined in a letter from the union president to the members of the union.

301 Presses GE on Seniority Violations

The IUE Local 301 has been pressing the company to step up its defense of the rights of senior workers. The union has been given the right to make a complaint to the National Labor Relations Board if the company fails to comply with the terms of the agreement. The union has been given the right to make a complaint to the National Labor Relations Board if the company fails to comply with the terms of the agreement.

The company's actions have been challenged by the union, which has been given the right to make a complaint to the National Labor Relations Board if the company fails to comply with the terms of the agreement. The union has been given the right to make a complaint to the National Labor Relations Board if the company fails to comply with the terms of the agreement.

Policy Activity Of Krisen & Pals

The IUE Local 301 has been working with the United Steelworkers of America on a number of issues. The union has been given the right to make a complaint to the National Labor Relations Board if the company fails to comply with the terms of the agreement. The union has been given the right to make a complaint to the National Labor Relations Board if the company fails to comply with the terms of the agreement.

301 Votes to Join in Sponsoring "Ad" Against Munding-Ferguson Bills

The IUE Local 301 has been working with the United Steelworkers of America on a number of issues. The union has been given the right to make a complaint to the National Labor Relations Board if the company fails to comply with the terms of the agreement. The union has been given the right to make a complaint to the National Labor Relations Board if the company fails to comply with the terms of the agreement.

301 and 302 Members Try To Resolve Strike

The IUE Local 301 has been working with the United Steelworkers of America on a number of issues. The union has been given the right to make a complaint to the National Labor Relations Board if the company fails to comply with the terms of the agreement. The union has been given the right to make a complaint to the National Labor Relations Board if the company fails to comply with the terms of the agreement.