Question and Answer Corner

Every day in the union we face many challenges. Some of these challenges are more significant than others. As union members, we must work together to overcome these challenges.

Question: What role do you think the UFC plays in providing a voice for workers?

Answer: The UFC is committed to advocating for the rights of workers. We work to ensure that workers have a voice in the workplace and that their rights are protected. We also work to negotiate contracts that provide fair wages, benefits, and working conditions.

Negotiations Deadlocked as GE Refuses To Budge from 'Zero or Less' Proposal

General Electric management Tuesday refused to budge from its arrogant "zero or less" offer to UFC members, bringing the negotiations between the company and union to an almost complete deadlock.

Union demands are for a substantial wage increase, payment for 38 IBEW helpers and two special pay boosts for days off, including skilled workers and vendors.

UFC negotiating committee presented the management representatives with the workers' counter-demand that will be included in its response to the union.

This film depicts the life and accomplishments of FDR and includes a number of interviews of famous Roosevelt speakers. In addition, there is a commentary which clearly outlines the role of the late president in shaping the course of American politics.

UE has proposed a meeting with leaders of two striking coal companies to discuss the working conditions of the miners. This proposal was made in light of the fact that the miners are striking for better working conditions.

Philadelphia—For the second time in three months, the union negotiated a contract with the company for the workers. The contract was negotiated without the presence of management representatives.
