All around the shops, from door to wall, the reports were the same: management’s efforts at bribery have failed.

Joe Hanus, president of the United Electrical and Machine Workers in New York City, said, “They’ve failed. They’re not bringing any new subscribers to our union.”

Westinghouse’s advertising campaign is working, he said, because “we’re getting our message across to the public.”

In addition to the success of the Westinghouse campaign, the unions are using their influence to help get the strike over.

NEW BUILDING REPORT

The Building Committee held a meeting last week at which they discussed the results of the building plans that were made in December. The committee decided to go ahead with the plans as made.

The High Cost of Non-Unions

L The Legal Corner

The reader who does not belong to a union pays dues twice—but he pays twice to the boss. The average non-union worker pays 10% more for the same item on the shelf in a store with non-union prices than the man who belongs to a union. The cost of a new car, a trip to Europe, a house, or even a haircut at the barber shop, is approximately twice as much to the non-union worker. In other words, the non-union worker is paying his dues twice—and he’s paying twice to the boss. As the American labor movement has grown stronger, the cost of non-union membership has increased. The cost of non-union membership is now $200 more than the cost of union membership. This is a fact, and you are just as bad as you are today.

Furthermore, the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor published the results of its comprehensive studies of non-union and union membership since 1935. The study did not find any fully organized industries, or industries that were completely unaffected. But the non-union industries in which there were both union and non-union plants were studied. Eleven manufacturing industries were studied, and the study showed that the non-union industry was 12% more expensive than the union industry, and 24% more expensive than the union industry, and 36% more expensive than the union industry, and 50% more expensive than the union industry, and 66% more expensive than the union industry, and 75% more expensive than the union industry, and 86% more
