Awarded $25 Weekly Compensation

There are two ways of looking at a situation in the steel industry today: one as theagements of the companies, and the other as the workers themselves. The former see it as a battle of wits and the latter see it as a battle of wills.

The battle of wits is being fought on several fronts. The workers are trying to prove that they are worthy of higher wages and better working conditions. The management is trying to prove that they can operate the plant without the union.

The battle of wills is being fought by the workers who are trying to win their demands and the management who is trying to keep them out. The workers are determined to win and the management is equally determined to resist.

This payment will be made to the seven workers who were injured while working for General Electric Co. in West Bend, Wis., on Aug. 2, 1952. The workers were employed in the electrical works, and the injury was caused by a broken pipe.

The accident occurred when the workers were trying to stop the flow of water from a broken pipe. The workers were injured when the pipe burst and the hot water sprayed over them.

The accident resulted in serious burns and the workers were taken to the hospital. The workers are now recovering and are expected to return to work soon.
