Company Agrees to New Check-Off Cards

Kelsey Pledges 301 Aid in Negro Rights Fight

The continual support of Negro civil-rights groups, both in the fight to end discrimination and in the fight to bring about equality and social justice for all Americans, is the aim of the newly formed Negro Rights group, Kelsey Pledges 301.

Kelsey Pledges 301 was organized in the fall of 1949 by a group of students at the University of Michigan, who wanted to do something to help bring about civil rights for all Americans. The group's main goal is to raise money and send it to organizations working for civil rights, such as the NAACP and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

The group's first meeting was held in the Michigan Union on November 15, 1949, and since then they have held monthly meetings to discuss the issues and plan their activities.

Kelsey Pledges 301 is named after University President Elihu Kelsey, who was a strong supporter of civil rights and fought against discrimination during his tenure as president.

Jandrea Addresses
Lynn UE Workers

Lynn, Mass. (UE Local 239) Jandrea, the UE District President, addressed the Lynn UE workers about the current struggle for better wages and working conditions.

Jandrea said that the UE workers have been fighting for better wages and conditions for too long without any results. The workers have been forced to work long hours for low pay, and the company has been ignoring their demands.

Jandrea called on the workers to stand together and fight for their rights. He said that the UE workers have the power to make change happen, and that they must not give up.

The UE workers are currently involved in a strike at the International Paper Company, and Jandrea urged the workers to support their colleagues in the strike.

The UE workers are demanding better wages, improved working conditions, and an end to the company's use of strikebreakers.

The UE Local 239 is one of the largest UE locals in the country, and it has a long history of fighting for workers' rights.

The UE has a national network of locals and is affiliated with the International Worker's Order, a non-profit organization that supports workers' rights and social justice.
