Heavy Votes Recorded for Union Shop in GE Strike

A two-week strike of Local 8 in Buffalo, N.Y., ended in June after 13,000 skilled workers went on strike against the General Electric Company. The company made concessions on the work rule for the strike to continue, but the strike continued until June 15, when the workers voted to end the strike.

The strike resulted from refusal of the company to make concessions on the work rule for the strike to continue. The workers went out on strike on June 6 after a series of meetings with company representatives.

The strike resulted from refusal of the company to make concessions on the work rule for the strike to continue. The workers went out on strike on June 6 after a series of meetings with company representatives.

The strike resulted from refusal of the company to make concessions on the work rule for the strike to continue. The workers went out on strike on June 6 after a series of meetings with company representatives.

The strike resulted from refusal of the company to make concessions on the work rule for the strike to continue. The workers went out on strike on June 6 after a series of meetings with company representatives.

The strike resulted from refusal of the company to make concessions on the work rule for the strike to continue. The workers went out on strike on June 6 after a series of meetings with company representatives.

The strike resulted from refusal of the company to make concessions on the work rule for the strike to continue. The workers went out on strike on June 6 after a series of meetings with company representatives.

The strike resulted from refusal of the company to make concessions on the work rule for the strike to continue. The workers went out on strike on June 6 after a series of meetings with company representatives.

The strike resulted from refusal of the company to make concessions on the work rule for the strike to continue. The workers went out on strike on June 6 after a series of meetings with company representatives.

The strike resulted from refusal of the company to make concessions on the work rule for the strike to continue. The workers went out on strike on June 6 after a series of meetings with company representatives.

The strike resulted from refusal of the company to make concessions on the work rule for the strike to continue. The workers went out on strike on June 6 after a series of meetings with company representatives.

The strike resulted from refusal of the company to make concessions on the work rule for the strike to continue. The workers went out on strike on June 6 after a series of meetings with company representatives.

The strike resulted from refusal of the company to make concessions on the work rule for the strike to continue. The workers went out on strike on June 6 after a series of meetings with company representatives.

The strike resulted from refusal of the company to make concessions on the work rule for the strike to continue. The workers went out on strike on June 6 after a series of meetings with company representatives.

The strike resulted from refusal of the company to make concessions on the work rule for the strike to continue. The workers went out on strike on June 6 after a series of meetings with company representatives.
UE Locals Winning Gains at GE Plants

Heavy Votes Recorded For UE Union Shop

Michael W. Ryan, St. Louis, Mo.

UE currently has at various UE plants in the St. Louis area and in other parts of the country, plans to implement their programs for enrolling in the UEB plan.

A two-week strike of UE Local 58 at St. Louis, Ill., lasted one week in June, and a similar strike at UE Local 26 at St. Louis, Mo., lasted one week in July. Although the strike settlements were reached after negotiations, they were not settled in this form.

The settlements included reinstatement of all employees who left the union and the award of back pay and other benefits. UE Local 26 had been in the St. Louis area for over a year, but the present settlement is the first in which the union has been able to agree with management on terms.

The UE plan, which was introduced in 1942, is designed to protect the workers who leave the union and to ensure that they will not lose their jobs if they return. The plan is financed by the union through contributions from its members and from the employers who are members of the union.

In the UE plan, the workers who leave the union are given the right to return to their jobs if they meet certain conditions. If they are rehired, they are entitled to the same wages and benefits as if they had never left the union. The UE plan also provides for the payment of back pay and other benefits to workers who are laid off or who are dismissed for reasons not related to their union activities.

The UE program has been credited with helping to maintain the solidarity of the union and with improving the economic conditions of the workers. It has also been credited with helping to improve the image of the union and with attracting new members.

The UE plan has been adopted by many unions in the United States, and it is now considered to be a standard feature of union plans.
Corsi Pledges UE-301 Prompt Hearing On Unemployment Insurance Claims

Blind Industrial Consultant Edward Corsi told UE 301 member workers Thursday at the managers' hearing in Philadelphia that the War Labor Board has ordered the company to hold a hearing on the request of some members for unemployment benefits in OrWO.

Corsi said he would bring the matter to the attention of the War Labor Board in Washington and then take appropriate action to ensure that the company meets its obligations under the National Defense Act.

The order was issued by the War Labor Board on March 31 under the National Defense Act.

Corsi pledged to UE 301 members that he would

White Industrial Secretary Edward Corsi told the UE 301
union members today that he would work to ensure that the company meets its obligations under the

The order was issued by the War Labor Board on March 31 under the National Defense Act.

Corsi pledged to UE 301 members that he would

White Industrial Secretary Edward Corsi told the UE 301
union members today that he would work to ensure that the company meets its obligations under the

The order was issued by the War Labor Board on March 31 under the National Defense Act.

Corsi pledged to UE 301 members that he would

White Industrial Secretary Edward Corsi told the UE 301
union members today that he would work to ensure that the company meets its obligations under the

The order was issued by the War Labor Board on March 31 under the National Defense Act.

Corsi pledged to UE 301 members that he would