301 Complain of Bus Service

A delegation from Local 301 met with officials of the Schenectady Railway Co. and the Transportation Union recently to discuss complaints about bus service in the area. The delegation was headed by President William Templeton, a representative of the Transportation Union, and members of the Schenectady Railway Co., including William A. Pratt, president of the company, and John S. Smith, vice-president and general manager.

The delegation complained of slow and erratic service, with buses frequently arriving late or not at all. They also reported incidents of broken buses and delayed schedules. The delegation requested an immediate investigation to determine the causes of the problems and to take necessary actions to improve service.

Company Agrees On Call-In Pay

Two workers who lost their jobs from the General Electric plant last December due to the strike, were rehired by the company after they signed agreements to return to work. The workers, who were assigned to the 'Call-In' payment plan, are now making good their agreements to return to work.

The company, which had previously announced its intention to rehire the workers, agreed to the workers' terms of rehiring and to continue to pay them under the 'Call-In' plan. The workers are now earning the same wage as they did before the strike.

Decision of Governor

Governor Dewey's executive order was not enforced by the Mayor, who said the matter was not urgent. The Mayor said he would continue to enforce the order until a new Governor is sworn in.

The Mayor's decision not to enforce the order does not mean that the workers will lose their jobs. The Mayor said that he would continue to enforce the order until a new Governor is sworn in.

Kearney Votes for Measure To Weaken Wage-Hour Act

Representative Kearney of the State Assembly wants to weaken the Wage-Hour Act. He has introduced a bill that would allow employers to pay workers less than the minimum wage for work performed in a week.

The bill has been opposed by labor leaders and other groups who believe it would weaken the Wage-Hour Act and allow employers to pay workers less than the minimum wage.

ANTI-UNION PRESS

Gunning for UE

As reported in this paper a month ago, the anti-union publicity directed by the 261st UE News in opposition to the UE has been stepped up with unusual intensity and a new organization. The newspaper campaign is an important part of the drive to unionize the UE against the UE and to wreck its organization. The UE News is a frequent contributor to the UE.
