OUTLOOK FOR '52

Wilson Says Eat Margarine; Labor Wants Better Diet

Most financial journals are predicting a boom year for '52. But what's "boom" for big business may be a hang in the jaws for labor. The high prices and profits, the frozen wages and "poor man's" taxes, predicted by these journals may be good for big business but not for labor. A big factor in the big boys' calculation is government spending which they estimate will be far above the current rate. They even figure wages will go up 10% in the next decade or so, and they think a 15% profit margin is quite a grape.

TRUCKERS TAKE UE SETTLEMENT

The six weeks strike of the truck drivers was settled last week, as both UE and the APE announced getting a 25 cent wage increase. Numerous officials referred to the UE-APE mediator as being a symbol of the strength of UE with the APE getting a 25 cent wage increase.

The terms of the settlement are as follows:

- Drivers:
  - Hourly wage increased by 25 cents.
  - Sick leave increased to 12 days.
  - 10% increase in the drivers' retirement plan.

- Clerical Workers:
  - Hourly wage increased by 25 cents.

The UE-APE mediator, who has been mediating labor disputes for over 20 years, stated that this settlement is a significant victory for UE and the truck drivers. He praised the workers for their patience and determination during the strike.

In other news, the UE-APE mediator has been appointed as the arbitrator for the upcoming negotiations between UE and the APE. The mediator has stated that he will do his best to ensure a fair and just settlement for both parties.

CIO Chief Barred From Making Deal

Throughout several months, workers have set up a New Year's strike to back up their pay and fringe demands. The CIO president, George Meany, has threatened to make a deal with the government to give the workers what they want.

While the strike is underway, the workers' demands are brought to the attention of the unions. The unions are instructed to back up the workers' demands and make sure they are met. The workers' demands include increases in wages and benefits, and improvements in working conditions.

The strike is supported by the workers, who are determined to win. They are supported by the unions, who are fighting for their rights. The workers are united and determined, and they will not be denied.

In the meantime, the government is trying to negotiate a deal with the workers. The government is trying to find a way to satisfy the workers without having to make any changes to the current system. CIO Chief Barred From Making Deal

A council of the CIO, opposed to a new round of wage and fringe-benefit demands, has barred Executive Vice President John F. Hogan from participating in any negotiations with the United Steelworkers of America. The decision was made by the CIO's executive council, which met in Chicago last week. The CIO had previously worked with the United Steelworkers of America to reach a new agreement that would provide for wage increases and fringe-benefit improvements for workers in the steel industry.

The Season's Greetings

GE Pay Offer Still Before Wage Board

As we enter the Christmas season, the wage issue remains a major concern for many workers. The George Eastman Company has announced that it will make a pay offer to employees, but the offer has not yet been accepted by the union. The company has offered a wage increase of 5%, which is less than the $1 increase that the union has been seeking.

The UE Stewart, published by the United Electrical Workers, reports that the company has not yet announced a new offer, and that the wage issue remains unresolved. The union is continuing to negotiate with the company, and plans to meet with management again in the near future.

Merry Christmas
