Citizens Committee Formed to Hunt Jobs

For the first time in its history, a Citizens Committee representing labor, industry, small business, government, communicators and clergy, joined in a common purpose to address an objective issue and seek possible solutions.

The committee was formed to address the problem of unemployment and to work towards finding jobs for the unemployed and those who are expected to lose their jobs in the near future.

The representation of the N.Y. State Unemployment Insurance Division reported that the present number of unemployed unemployment benefits is 3,500, which includes those who have not yet obtained their 26 weeks of unemployment and those who are benefiting by the 13 weeks extension passed by the Legislature last year.

The committee directed its discussions on wages and means of acquiring work in the immediate future, along with the long-range possibility that would bring additional industry to the Schenectady area.

Les Jared, Business Agent, pointed out that if this committee is to successfully acquire work for Schenectady in the immediate future, we cannot proceed on a "Business as Usual" basis. We must gear ourselves to a "War Effort" and be willing to change some staff-bound policies that have developed in the past few years. Directing his remarks to GE's decentralization policies which places Schenectady in a position to compete with larger cities for heavy commercial appliance sales will be increased (possibly a two year outlook), Jared said, "The products we work on this time are being produced by General Electric and should be marketed into Schenectady and we should utilize some of the people that are here."

Membership Cites Sam Stratton

At the October membership meeting of Local 301, Unions, Mayor of Schenectady and Democratic candidate for Congress was cited for his endorsement of the IUE Employment Stability Program, the 8 Points that were the basis of the 1954 campaign promises of the Democratic ticket.

"In the name of the majority of all laborers everywhere with one voice, we challenge the policy of the United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers which seeks to economic depression and class antagonism."

The Congressional candidate endorsed the Employment Stability Program of the IUE-CIO and supported the 8 Points that were the basis of the 1954 campaign promises of the Democratic ticket.

The movement on the other hand has been giving its support to the Republican ticket, which has been regarded as a "New Deal" ticket and the opposition to the Employment Stability Program, which has been regarded as a "New Deal" program.
