service, changes to different units, promotions or progression, status of the work, changes to working conditions, and hours and wages. A group plan for the same job at GE is substantially different from the one at the same job at the company.

There was evidence that the company was seeking to downsize the union's role in representing employees in the workplace. The company had recently launched a program to reduce the number of union stewards, and was planning to replace them with non-union supervisors.

New Stewards

Newly elected stewards will report to the company and will be responsible for implementing the company’s policies and procedures. They will be expected to work closely with the company to ensure that all employees are aware of the new policies and procedures.

MEET WITH CONFERENCE BOARD TO DRAFT DEMANDS

A two-day meeting of the UE-GE Conference Board began this morning in New York City with all Local 301 officers on hand to participate in drawing up recommendations to UE and demands to be submitted to the Conference Board in a meeting scheduled for Tuesday night.

Local 301’s proposed agenda for the meeting includes a discussion of the company’s policies and procedures, a review of the company’s past practices, and the current state of negotiations. The agenda also includes a discussion of the company’s response to the union’s previous demands and a review of the company’s current bargaining strategy.

The union’s demands include an end to the company’s use of non-union supervisors, an end to the use of temporary workers, and an end to the company’s past practice of逼迫 employees to work overtime.

N.Y. Compensation Rates

Lower Than Other States

By LEON NOVAK

At the insistence of New York employers, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey has appointed a committee to investigate the reasons why the cost of compensation paid to injured workers is higher in New York than in any other state in the country.

Dewey, while his investigation differs in some respects from the usual compensation system, is also investigating the compensation system in Massachusetts, where the rate is $3 a day for all workers, and in New Jersey, where the rate is $4 a day for all workers.

In Massachusetts, the rate is $3 a day for all workers, and in New Jersey, the rate is $4 a day for all workers.

The investigation is expected to take several months, and the final report is expected to be submitted to Dewey in the fall.
