Ready to Examine Job Value Claims
The preliminary group meetings of the committee on wages in the electrical industry was met at the Hotel Wallingford last week, according to Dr. William E. Jernigan, chairman of the committee.

Job value questions have been distributed to the committees on the meetings and through the board of directors. Information on the questionnaires will serve to analyze the value of a job within the organization but not to allocate a job rate.

The questionnaires should be returned through the board members within a week.
