Stoppage—Bldg. 89

The workers in the Indianapolis Division, Bldg. 89, stopped work last Friday in protest at the answer the Company made to the same issue that had been processed through the grievance procedure.

The chemical workers and the development cell makers requested a recognition of their craftsmanship. The Company saw it as an opportunity to downsize the workers who seek raises. The Company also asked for a reorganization of the work in order to allow other work to be outsourced. After many discussions with the management on all levels, the request was turned down.

The workers involved were completely devastated by the Company’s position. To make the situation worse, the Rate Department refused to give a legitimate reason as to why they made these changes. This move was then presented to local management and turned down.

The Secretary-Treasurers have been negotiating about their working conditions, trying to negotiate a new contract, but have not been able to settle on a satisfactory deal.

The Union officials notified the management that their committee had agreed to a new contract with the workers in the store that had been negotiated. However, the Agreement was not accepted, leaving the workers in a difficult position.

The workers have been forced to go on strike Tuesday to reject a new contract.

Frank Panino Acquitted

Despite the earlier acquittal of the publisher, the judge in Washington, D.C., ruled that the defense was not warranted. He found that Panino had not violated the injunction against the publication of false statements about the League.

This is the second case to be decided in favor of the League. The first was decided in favor of the publisher, the League, and a number of the newspapers. The second case was decided in favor of the publisher, the League, and a number of the newspapers.

Cost of Living Escalator Clauses

The main objective of any Union is to improve the quality of living of its members. Billions of dollars are saved, therefore, through the use of escalator clauses in union contracts. These clauses usually stipulate that a percentage of the increase in the cost of living over the previous year be added to the wages of the workers. This is usually done by formula that is agreed upon by the parties to the contract. For example, the formula might be that the percentage increase in the cost of living is added to the workers' wages at the end of each year.

The formula is usually used in the case of long-term employees, who have been with the company for a long time. The formula is usually used in the case of long-term employees, who have been with the company for a long time.
