January 14, 1969

ELECTRICAL UNION NEWS

Warms of Danger To Atomic Case

The U.S. most recent case against the Atomic Energy Commission of the General Electric Company is evidently the most serious yet, according to Newsweek, and one arising out of recent incidents involving a number of General Electric workers. The incident, which has been reported to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), involves an incident at the General Electric plant in Louisville, Kentucky, where a worker was exposed to radiation.

Local 301 Board, Officers Installed

The General Electric Company has appointed a new Board of Directors for its local union, Local 301. The board consists of 15 members, including the president, vice president, secretary-treasurer, and four elected officers. The new board will serve for a term of three years, and is expected to be re-elected in 1972.

Turbine Division Faces Problems On Pay and Hours

The Turbine Division of General Electric Company has announced that it will be instituting a 10% wage increase for all employees effective immediately. The increase is retroactive to January 1, 1969, and applies to all hourly workers in the division.

Six Delegates Elected to Conference Board

Local 301 has elected six delegates to the International Union Conference Board. The delegates are: Donald A. Flanagan, secretary-treasurer; John J. O'Connor, business agent; Frank J. Flanagan, steward; John J. Flanagan, steward; John J. McElroy, steward; and William J. McElroy, steward.

Local 301, Officers Installed

Officers and Executive Board members of Local 301 for 1969 were installed by the International Union Conference Board. The officers elected are: President, Donald A. Flanagan; Vice President, John J. O'Connor; Secretary-Treasurer, Frank J. Flanagan; and Stewards, John J. Flanagan and John J. McElroy.

Akers for Unity

A new unity policy was adopted by the Local 301 executive board at its meeting on January 14, 1969. The policy is designed to ensure a more unified approach to the bargaining process and to strengthen the unity of Local 301 members.

GE Moves Work To South Africa

The General Electric Company has moved its manufacturing facilities to South Africa, where it plans to open a new plant. The plant is expected to be operational by the end of 1969, and will manufacture a variety of electrical equipment.

Bouwhuis Is Back At Same Old Stand

After his brief stay in the U.S., Bouwhuis is now back in his old position at the same old stand. His return is expected to be beneficial to the company, as his expertise in the field of electrical engineering is highly valued.

Holiday Pay Grievances

Grievances are being heard in the Holiday Pay category, as Local 301 members have been protestive about the company's position on the matter. The union is seeking a settlement that will provide for a fair and equitable resolution of the issue.

Washington's Birthday

Washington's Birthday will be observed by the company on February 20th, 1969. The day will be observed as a company holiday, and all employees are expected to participate in the celebrations.

Basketball Victories

Local 301 has continued its winning streak in the company's basketball league. The team has won several games in a row, and is currently ranked second in the league.

As of now, the company is being held accountable for all work performed by Local 301 members. The union is working to ensure that all members receive fair compensation for their work.

Electrical News Union

The Electrical News Union is a national union representing electrical workers in the United States. The union is committed to protecting the rights of its members and ensuring fair working conditions.

January 21, 1969

Schenectady, New York

Local 301 Board, Officers Installed

Officers and Executive Board members of Local 301 for 1969 were installed by the International Union Conference Board. The officers elected are: President, Donald A. Flanagan; Vice President, John J. O'Connor; Secretary-Treasurer, Frank J. Flanagan; and Stewards, John J. Flanagan and John J. McElroy.

Six Delegates Elected to Conference Board

Local 301 has elected six delegates to the International Union Conference Board. The delegates are: Donald A. Flanagan, secretary-treasurer; John J. O'Connor, business agent; Frank J. Flanagan, steward; John J. Flanagan, steward; John J. McElroy, steward; and William J. McElroy, steward.

Akers for Unity

A new unity policy was adopted by the Local 301 executive board at its meeting on January 14, 1969. The policy is designed to ensure a more unified approach to the bargaining process and to strengthen the unity of Local 301 members.

GE Moves Work To South Africa

The General Electric Company has moved its manufacturing facilities to South Africa, where it plans to open a new plant. The plant is expected to be operational by the end of 1969, and will manufacture a variety of electrical equipment.

Bouwhuis Is Back At Same Old Stand

After his brief stay in the U.S., Bouwhuis is now back in his old position at the same old stand. His return is expected to be beneficial to the company, as his expertise in the field of electrical engineering is highly valued.

Holiday Pay Grievances

Grievances are being heard in the Holiday Pay category, as Local 301 members have been protestive about the company's position on the matter. The union is seeking a settlement that will provide for a fair and equitable resolution of the issue.

Washington's Birthday

Washington's Birthday will be observed by the company on February 20th, 1969. The day will be observed as a company holiday, and all employees are expected to participate in the celebrations.

Basketball Victories

Local 301 has continued its winning streak in the company's basketball league. The team has won several games in a row, and is currently ranked second in the league.

As of now, the company is being held accountable for all work performed by Local 301 members. The union is working to ensure that all members receive fair compensation for their work.

Electrical News Union

The Electrical News Union is a national union representing electrical workers in the United States. The union is committed to protecting the rights of its members and ensuring fair working conditions.
Protests Transferred To Work In Europe

The U.S. steel industry has been hit by a wave of pro-management protests over the past week. The latest example is a series of strikes by workers at the U.S. Steel plant in Sheffield, England.

The company announced that it would lay off 1,000 workers at the plant and that it would close one of its steel mills. The workers, who are members of the United Steelworkers of America, have been protesting for higher wages and better working conditions.

The company said that it was forced to take these actions due to the ongoing strike at its plant in Birmingham, Alabama. U.S. Steel has said that it will continue to produce steel at the Sheffield plant, but that it will have to do so with fewer workers.

The Sheffield plant is one of the largest in the United States, and it employs more than 10,000 workers. The company said that it would work with the local union to find a way to resolve the dispute.

GE Speaker Frank To Say Least

Recent remarks by General Electric Corporation (GE) CEO John Flannery indicate that the company may be facing a major challenge in the coming months.

In a letter to employees, Flannery said that the company would have to make some tough decisions in the near future. He said that the company would have to cut costs and reduce its workforce.

The comments come as GE stock has fallen by more than 20% in the past week. The company is facing a number of challenges, including a decline in demand for its equipment and a rising cost of debt.

Flannery’s remarks suggest that the company is likely to announce more layoffs in the near future. The company has already announced plans to cut 12,000 jobs over the next two years.

GE’s struggling financial performance has been a source of concern for investors. The company has been struggling to turn around its business, and it has faced a number of challenges, including a decline in demand for its equipment and a rising cost of debt.

The comments come as GE stock has fallen by more than 20% in the past week. The company is facing a number of challenges, including a decline in demand for its equipment and a rising cost of debt.

Flannery’s remarks suggest that the company is likely to announce more layoffs in the near future. The company has already announced plans to cut 12,000 jobs over the next two years.

The comments come as GE stock has fallen by more than 20% in the past week. The company is facing a number of challenges, including a decline in demand for its equipment and a rising cost of debt.

Flannery’s remarks suggest that the company is likely to announce more layoffs in the near future. The company has already announced plans to cut 12,000 jobs over the next two years.

The comments come as GE stock has fallen by more than 20% in the past week. The company is facing a number of challenges, including a decline in demand for its equipment and a rising cost of debt.