UE Observers Say T-H Repeal Remains as Labor's Top Task

U.S. observers of the Washington meeting made it clear this week that the number one legislative movement for the UE is the T-H Repeal of the Taft-Hartley law.

The union's Washington representatives emphasized this as they met yesterday in conference on the UE's legislative program in Congress this year.

In all, about 18 bills dealing with labor issues have been put forward. These measures range from the proposals of a few individual legislation requests to 10 bills to bring both the Wagner Act, to which big business is agout to kill the act, and the Taft-Hartley law, which is to be amended by the Wagner Act, to bring into being a system of federal en masse representation.

The next few weeks will see a lot of activity in Congress as the T-H Repeal bill is the top priority for the UE.

On the other hand, the National Association of Manufacturers has made the Taft-Hartley law its top priority.

Sale of Giveaway Tix Highly Successful as Drawing Nears

Meany Blasts T-H

The two bills, which were both presented to the Senate by Sen. David Keating, are likely to be voted on this week.

The bill to repeal the Taft-Hartley law was defeated in the Senate last week, but there is still a chance it could be passed in the House.

Labor Could Win Major Gains in '53 Contract Negotiations

With the wage freeze abandoned and contract negotiations on tap in nearly every major industry, the American labor movement has an opportunity to make 1953 a year of major gains for working men and women.

In fact, a program of selective action by the union would make this the year in which the workers improve their lot and their standard of living.

In the electrical industry, wage and job security agreements are almost certain to be negotiated.

A. M. Problems Solved

A. M. problems, which have been a major sticking point in past negotiations, are expected to be solved in this year's negotiations.
