Trying to Organize SE Company Union

Efforts are now underway in New York to organize a labor union for employees of the SE Company. The SE plant in New York City has been a target for several years, but efforts to organize there have met with little success. The SE company, which manufactures electrical equipment, is known for its anti-union stance and has a history of imposing severe penalties on workers who attempt to organize.

No Answer Received

From Philip Murray

Local 301 has received no reply to a letter sent by Murray to the company, asking for negotiations between the two parties. Murray has been trying to reach the company for several weeks to discuss the possibility of a union contract, but has not received a response. The company has not replied to any of Murray's letters, despite the fact that the union has been trying to reach them for over a month.

GE Meetings Will Start Soon

Confidential negotiations between the General Electric Company and the United Electrical Workers (UE) are expected to start soon. The two sides are reportedly close to a deal, and the meetings are expected to begin within the next week or two. The negotiations have been ongoing for several months, and the company and union are reportedly close to an agreement.

Outsiders Electorere In 301 Vote

A special election to fill the seat of an outgoing member of the International Union of Electrical Workers (IUE) has been held in the 301 area. The election was held on October 3, and the winner was declared on October 5. The new member will begin serving on the local union board immediately.

301 to Circulate Petitions on MBA

The 301 local union plans to circulate petitions to the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) to challenge the MBA's representation of the union members. The union has been trying to organize the workers at MBA for several years, and the NLRB has ruled in favor of the union in previous attempts to organize the company.

301 Membership, Stewards to Meet

The 301 local union will hold a meeting of its membership and stewards on October 10. The meeting is expected to discuss issues of concern to the union, including the company's anti-union activities and the need for stronger organizing efforts.

CIO Leaders' Record In Fight on T-H Law

As a result of the fight for T-H Labor Law ended in the Senate of Representatives on the floor of the House, the CIO and AFL walked out of the fight after 20 days delay. The walkout left the T-H group with control of both Houses of Congress and the Senate and House committee on labor legislation.

Outsiders Election in Local 301 Contest

Local 301, operating on the T-H Law in the Chicago area, held an election for new officers on June 1. The election was held in the wake of the walkout by the CIO leaders and the AFL. The election was won by outsiders, who are now in control of the local.

Petitions on M.A.A.

M.A.A., the main union in the industry, is the only union that has not yet signed a contract with the T-H group. The union is against the walkout by the CIO leaders and the AFL. The union is currently negotiating a new contract with the T-H group.

Attorney's Hours

Attorney's hours at the T-H Law office are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. The attorney is available for consultations during these hours. However, the attorney is not available on weekends.

Local 301 Launches Solicitors Checkup

Local 301, the union representing the workers at the T-H Law plant, has launched a solicitors checkup program to help workers understand their rights and benefits. The solicitors checkup is a free service provided by the union to help workers understand their rights and benefits.

Dangers of Mundis-Novin-Ferguson Bill

The Mundis-Novin-Ferguson Bill is a dangerous bill that would take away the rights of workers. The bill is being supported by the T-H group and is opposed by the CIO leaders and the AFL. The bill would take away the rights of workers and give the T-H group control over the labor market.

Unemployment Mounts Under Marshall Plan

Under the Marshall Plan, unemployment has increased due to the economic policies implemented. The plan has led to a decrease in consumer spending, which has led to a decrease in demand for goods and services. This has led to a decrease in employment opportunities, resulting in an increase in unemployment.

More Workers on Farms

With the increase in unemployment, more workers are turning to the agricultural sector to find employment. However, the agricultural sector is not a sustainable long-term solution for employment. The lack of job security and the physical demands of farming make it an unsuitable option for many workers.
