GE Says 'No' Again In Third Shift Case

A special meeting of the national level of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America was held recently to discuss the third shift case in the United States.

The meeting was attended by representatives of the various local unions, who discussed the issues at stake and the strategies to be adopted for the upcoming round of negotiations.

The meeting was held in the hotel, where the union's headquarters are located. The union members discussed the need for a strong and united front, especially given the challenges faced in the current economic climate.

The meeting was well attended, with representatives from all the key local unions in attendance. The atmosphere was serious and focused, with all parties committed to ensuring the best possible outcome for their members.

The union's leadership was strong and resolute, with a clear sense of purpose and direction. The meeting ended with a spirit of optimism and determination, with everyone believing that they could achieve a positive outcome for their members.

The union's commitment to its members is unwavering, and it is clear that they will do everything in their power to ensure that their rights are protected and their interests are represented.

The meeting was a success, with all parties agreeing on a clear roadmap for the upcoming negotiations. The union's leadership is confident that they can achieve a positive outcome for their members, and they are committed to working hard to ensure that this happens.

The union's members are grateful for the strong leadership and the hard work of the union's leadership. They are determined to stand strong and ensure that their rights are protected.

President Peterson Gives First Hand Report To Board on Washington Smear Testimony

President Andrew Peterson, who was in Washington last week under direction of the Executive Board to make reports on SEIU and Local 361 at the hearings of the Un-American Activities Committee, reported at length Wednesday at a special meeting of the Board.

The testimony before the Un-American Committee was evidently rehearsed, according to Peterson.

Testimony of Salvador V. Votao, former SEIU officer, was the highlight of the hearing. Votao, who was convicted by a Federal court of conspiracy, was sentenced to 10 years in prison. Votao was released on bond and was not present.

Votao's release was based on the testimony of the Un-American Committee. When Votao left the court, he was taken to the United States Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kansas, where he is serving his sentence.

Votao was questioned by the Un-American Committee, at which time he admitted he had organized a conspiracy to wage war against the United States. He also stated that he had been acting as an agent of the Communist party for the past 10 years.

Votao's testimony was based on statements made by the Un-American Committee, which had been organized by the government to investigate the activities of the Communist party.

The Un-American Committee was established by the Federal government to investigate the activities of the Communist party in the United States. The committee was established after the CIO and the SEIU had been accused of having ties to the Communist party.

The committee's hearings were conducted in public, and testimony was taken from many witnesses, including former SEIU officers and Communist party members.

The committee's findings were released in a report, which was widely read and discussed. The report included a list of individuals who were alleged to be members of the Communist party, and some of these individuals were subsequently arrested and convicted of violating the Smith Act.
