1700 Still Out
With Service

According to a report from local management, approximately 1700 employees are unemployed who have no opportunity for service. This group has been in attendance at the plant with the same employees, according to the report, with 999 men and 700 women.

Because of the rapid expansion of some departments, especially in the repair of machinery and heavy equipment, there has been a reduction in the normal labor force. Management claims that new service employees who are not employed have been discharged for various reasons, and have turned to other employments.

The job is being filled with new workers.

When the President and General Manager start their reduction of forms next month, many of these openings will be filled through promotions in the organization. In the meantime, the union feels that workers who are not employed should be given every opportunity to fill the openings at the company.

By far the largest union contribution is from the United Auto Workers and the United Textile Workers.

According to the AFL-CIO Industrial Workers Department, the total funds provided by the locals range from $25,000 to $50,000. The number of locals contributing includes the CWA, the United Auto, the United Textile, the United Mine, the United Food and Agricultural, the United Paper Workers, the United Rubber, and the United Tobacco.

The total settlement of $30,000 is fair to all workers in the industry.

Unitarians Hear Labor's Problems

Last Wednesday the Unitarian Church held an open meeting on the subject of the National Agreement. The meeting was attended by approximately 50 members of the Unitarian Church and other interested individuals.

The discussion centered around the problems facing the labor movement today. The speakers included union leaders, labor activists, and representatives of the management.

The main points discussed were the need for unity among labor, the importance of organizing new industries, and the challenges facing the labor movement.

WESTINGHOUSE STRIKE SETTLED
23 WEEKS ON PICKET LINES

This strike will go down in labor history as one of the most courageous fights that working men and women have made to protect their wages and working conditions. The strike is the longest involving such a large number of people in the last 20 years.

The final settlement is far short of the union's original demands, however, it is also considerably more satisfactory and adequate than the original company offer. In the company's original offer, which was made on a "take it or leave it" basis, the highly controversial question of time study of data workers would have included up to 25,000 days workers who would be subjected to time study and production quotas. The October 1963 offer of the company limited arbitration to issues that were not satisfactory and would permit laying off and wage cutting. The original wage offer was from 3.5% to 1.5%.

The Management's Rights Clause would allow the Company to do practically anything regardless of the outcome affecting working conditions and wages.

1. The final settlement secures the time studies to data workers employed on direct labor work which will attract approximately 1250.
2. Any disputes on job standards shall be arbitrated on the basis of a fair day's pay for a fair day's work.
3. Job classifications shall be subject to arbitration.
4. No changes in method of wage payment (incentive or day work) will be permitted without agreement between the union and the Company.

Legislative Representative Reports

William Storer, Legislative Representative for Local 301 and District 66, reported the following activity in Albany this past week:

Associated Industry Committee tried to get Bill 2410 through Assembly. This bill would limit and lower down the expensing of compensation cases taken up on appeal. The bill was defeated in the Assembly last Thursday by a vote of 73 to 72. Representative of Organized Labor were kept busy labors for the defeat of this legislation.

The Assembly passed Bill 4377 that will benefit those who are unemployed as a result of catastrophic by requiring a waiting period before becoming eligible for benefits.

A bill that will benefit victims of Silicosis and Pneumoconiosis passed the Assembly (Bill 4451). It now goes to the Senate. The Senate Industry Committee for their recommendations. Legislative representatives are trying to get this bill out of committee for final action.

There is no indication that the Assembly will act on increasing the minimum in Unemployment Compensation before adjournment. There is a terrific campaign going on between Labor and Industry representatives in the legislative lobby on this question at the present time.

Serious Accident at Chemical Plant

As we go to press, the Union is in the process of establishing the cause of the explosion at the plant. The explosion occurred at approximately 10:00 a.m. today. The blast caused severe damage to several buildings and injured at least 15 people. The cause is under investigation by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA).

The blast reportedly caused the death of one worker and several others were injured. The Union has called for a full investigation of the incident and called for the closure of the plant until safety measures are in place.

Despite the severity of the incident, the Union remains committed to ensuring the safety of its members.

Kohler Strike

Local 383, UAW

March 17: Kohler employees at the Kohler Company in Wisconsin went on strike, demanding better working conditions and higher wages. The strike was supported by the United Auto Workers (UAW) and the international union, which has been involved in a series of negotiations with the company.

The company has offered a 3% wage increase and a 1% cost-of-living adjustment, but the workers are demanding at least a 10% raise. The strike has prompted concerns about the potential impact on local economies and supply chains.

Western Union Strike

Local 331 Will Protest Disabled Workers and Their Families

Western Union employees at Local 331 in New York City will hold a protest on April 15 to demand better wages and working conditions for disabled workers. The union has been working with disabled employees to negotiate for better compensation and protection.

The protest is part of a broader national campaign by disabled workers to demand equal treatment and opportunities in the workplace. The union has been advocating for the needs of disabled workers and has called for increased funding for job training and support services.

Company's Cry of High Compensation Costs Not Fair to Injured Workers

A press release from the company's spokesperson states that the company's compensation costs are not fair to injured workers. The company has been facing significant costs due to workplace injuries and is seeking ways to reduce these expenses.

The company's spokesperson says that the compensation costs are not just a matter of fairness but also a matter of safety. The company is committed to ensuring the safety of its workers and is seeking ways to make the workplace safer.
