A LOOK AT THE RECORD

With GE, It's Spelled PAYtriotism

General Electric has just entered a new era, as the President of GE, Frank B. Grinnell, has announced a policy of giving GE employees a share in the profits of the company. This move is expected to increase employee morale and productivity, and to make GE a more competitive company.

GE makes a commitment to its employees, stating that they will share in the profits of the company. This commitment is backed by a new profit-sharing plan that will be implemented next month. The plan will provide employees with a share of the company's profits, with the amount determined by the company's performance.

One Thing GE Doesn't Ignore

The company's move is not just about profits, however. GE is also committed to giving back to its community. The company has already announced a significant contribution to a local charity, and more such contributions are expected in the future.

Take The Question of Pay Increases

For all GE workers, this is huge. The company's commitment to pay increases is a major step forward in the fight for fair wages.

The Same Applies to Profits?

The company's commitment to profits is as strong as its commitment to pay increases. GE is determined to ensure that its employees are fairly compensated for their hard work.

Another Kind of Patriotism

GE's commitment to its employees is a clear demonstration of the company's commitment to its country. By giving its employees a share in the profits of the company, GE is helping to ensure that America's workers have a stake in the success of the country.

Steel Seizure Threatens Tightened Wage Freeze

When President Truman ordered government seizure of the steel industry at midnight last Tuesday, with a well-organized boycott of steel companies, the result was a tightening of the wage freeze. This action was taken in response to the steel companies' refusal to operate under the terms of the wage freeze, which had been in effect since November. The steel companies have been operating at a loss, resulting in a shortage of steel.

Under a new order, effective immediately, steel companies will be forced to operate under the terms of the wage freeze, which includes a 25% wage cut for all employees. This will help to ensure that the steel industry remains viable, and that there is enough steel to meet the nation's needs.

Fair Equipment, Land

Last night's Fair Equipment Program Amendment makes it clear that the amendment was passed in order to ensure a fair and equitable distribution of equipment and land to all employees.

Membership Cards

The United Steelworkers of America have been working hard to ensure that every Union member has a membership card. These cards are essential for membership verification and for accessing Union benefits.

Cmpl. Ave. — Race Track Moves Groves Log-Jam

The United action of Campbell Ave. — Race Track workers in "bumping" their "homeowners" a couple of weeks ago has started breaking a long-log jam of grievances that division superintendents have consistently refused to recognize.

Following months of evasive attempts to settle, with all sides admitting as much as 100% to 200% of the settle amount, in the end the workers found themselves stuck in the middle of a negotiation that was no longer feasible.

Following months of no progress, the workers felt there was no choice but to take matters into their own hands. They staged a walkout on March 1st, which led to a sit-down strike on March 2nd.

The situation has since deteriorated, with negotiations at a standstill.

U.S. Bureau Spurs Equal Pay Drive

The drive to secure equal pay for all workers has been gaining momentum. The Bureau of Labor Statistics has released data showing that women still earn less than men, even when controlling for education and experience.

The Bureau has called on Congress to act on its recommendations and pass legislation to ensure equal pay for all workers.

Mine-Meal Skews 25c

Calling for the "fair kind of work and recognition" which has not been the case with the steel companies, the wages freeze was described as "a hash-up" by the Steel Workers. The Steel Workers' Union is calling for a new wage freeze that will ensure fair pay for all workers.

Scribner To Speak At Conference

The Tri-City Civil Liberties Conference announced that David Scribner, a labor lawyer, will be the main speaker at the conference. Scribner will be discussing the need for equal pay for all workers, and the role of government in ensuring fair wages.

The conference will be held on Saturday, with a theme of "Democracy and Equal Pay." Scribner will be discussing the importance of equal pay in a democratic society, and will make a case for why the government must do more to ensure fair wages for all workers.
