New Contract Rate Facts

Increases

Win 14c at Supreme (New York Times story)

UE Presses for Vote at Mica

Despite Management Stalling

Mailing Associates Aim to Find a Strike of a Workman’s Union Strikes (Associated Press story)

Radio Series Ends

Donations to Girls’ Club

Volume 30, No. 29

October 17, 1953

301 T Elec 10 Delegates to National UE Convention in Meeting Vote Monday

UE will elect 10 delegates to the 1953 UE national convention at a combined meeting of members and stewards on Monday. The elected delegates will go to the national meeting with a crowded agenda to deal with. In addition to the election of the delegates, the local will hold the task of drawing up a platform and an organizational campaign.

Retired

Chris R. Johnson

ELECTRICAL UNION NEWS

THE VOICE OF THE UNITED ELECTRICAL, RADLO & MACHINE WORKERS OF AMERICA (UE)

Mailing Associates Aim to Find a Strike

The Mailing Associates of the United Electrical, Radlo & Machine Workers of America, Local 301, have been negotiating with their employers for 15 years.

Mailing Associates Aim to Find a Strike

The Mailing Associates Union Local 301, represented by the Focal Union, has been negotiating with their employers since 1938. The union, which represents approximately 1,000 workers at the plant, has been demanding fair wages and working conditions for the last 15 years.

Radio Series Ends

The Radio Series program of the UE Local 301 ended on October 30th with a special broadcast. The series was hosted by UE Local 301 President Bill Johnson and featured talks on various labor-related topics.

Donations to Girls’ Club

Donations to the Girls’ Club of the United Electrical Union Local 301 are being accepted. The club provides a safe and supportive environment for young girls and aims to provide them with the tools they need to succeed in life.
Matthews Forced Out After Clergy Attack

United action by representatives of the AFL, CIO, and other labor groups led to the forced resignation of J. B. Matthews, executive director of the National Council to Combat Discrimination in Employment, by a group of union leaders, who voted to withdraw their support for Matthews.

The Wisconsin state president of the AFL, CIO, and other labor groups led to the forced resignation of J. B. Matthews, executive director of the National Council to Combat Discrimination in Employment, by a group of union leaders, who voted to withdraw their support for Matthews. Matthews, who has been a leader in the fight against discrimination in employment, was forced to resign after a series of attacks on his work by the National Council to Combat Discrimination in Employment.

The Wisconsin state president of the AFL, CIO, and other labor groups led to the forced resignation of J. B. Matthews, executive director of the National Council to Combat Discrimination in Employment, by a group of union leaders, who voted to withdraw their support for Matthews. Matthews, who has been a leader in the fight against discrimination in employment, was forced to resign after a series of attacks on his work by the National Council to Combat Discrimination in Employment.

IUE Use of Anti-Union Lies To Aid Raid on AFL Exposed

A few months ago, a newspaper was published in Newton, Mass., which was a collection of anti-union trash from all over the country. This newspaper, under the title of "IUE Disaster," contained some of the most lopsided, one-sided information that has ever been printed about the IUE. The IUE is a labor union that represents electrical workers in the United States.

In the newspaper, the IUE union presented facts and figures to support their anti-union stance. They claimed that the IUE was fighting against the forces of monopoly and that their members were dedicated to the principles of unionism. The facts and figures were taken from a variety of sources, including court records and union reports.

The IUE also made some unsubstantiated claims about the AFL. They accused the AFL of being corrupt and of working against the interests of the working class. These claims were not supported by any evidence, but they were presented as if they were facts.

The IUE's use of anti-union lies was not limited to the newspaper. They also used these lies in their organizing drives. They would go door-to-door, telling people about the "dangers" of the AFL and the benefits of joining the IUE. They would use the newspaper as a tool to spread these messages.

The IUE's anti-union campaign was successful, and they were able to gain a foothold in some of the industries they targeted. However, their tactics were irresponsible and unethical. They used misinformation to gain an advantage over their competitors, and they undermined the principles of unionism.

In conclusion, the IUE's use of anti-union lies was a tactic that was not only unethical, but also ineffective. It was based on misinformation and propaganda, and it failed to win over the hearts and minds of the workers. The real lesson to be learned from this is that labor unions must be transparent and honest in their dealings with workers and the public. Only then can they earn the trust and support of the people they represent.