UE Calls IUE-CIO Bluff; Forces Vote Sept. 14 — Before GE Negotiations

The company union IUE-CIO, which petitioned for an NLRB election in Schenectady on the basis of a petition full of fraudulent cards, had its bluff called by UE Local 301 Wednesday afternoon. Although IUE-CIO squeaked and protested, it wasn't able to get out of an early election at the GE plant, and finally signed papers for an election September 14. UE representatives called IUE-CIO's bluff at a conference called by the NLRB in its regional office in New York City.

Although UE knew that IUE-CIO's cards were a fake and its election demand a bluff, UE also knew that the NLRB would keep GE plant in a turmoil for months, before and during the coming national negotiations between UE and GE.

The UE therefore demanded an election before Sept. 15th, opening date of negotiations. We suggested Sept. 14th.

At this, IUE-CIO representatives fell into a panic and called for a meeting. After more than an hour, they came back saying the Sept. 14th date. Then UE added that it would leave the negotiations. As a result, IUE-CIO decided to submit its objection to the NLRB.

IUE-CIO Now Minority in Lynn: UE Local 201 Keeps Up Fight

After a year of collective bargaining effort at the Lynn GE plant, the IUE-CIO's record of regressive grievances, irresponsibility and insularity procedures has brought it down to the status of a minority union in the plant.

Although IUE-CIO managed to hang on to the Lynn plant in an NLRB election August 10, with the active help of the Tech-Merger Board and the anti-labor Brass Workers-CIO, it received only 268 votes out of a bargaining unit of 16,884. IUE-CIO now faces a union election by 12,995 Lynn GE workers with UE-CIO, offering a year of negotiations.

IUE-CIO's workers are organized by Lynn GE workers with UE-CIO, although the IUE votes are solicited by the IUE, although it claims only 1,295 votes in the election, the voting figures are increased by UE.

UE Gets 8,600 Votes

Despite the open opposition to IUE-CIO on the part of the Tech-Merger Board, despite the National Labor Relations Board's report condemning the IUE-CIO in the Lynn plant for their behavior, UE Local 201 received 8,600 votes in the election.

Lynn Workers Leave IUE-CIO

Several hundred IUE-CIO members in the Lynn GE Plant of the General Electric Co. Lynn voted to leave the IUE-CIO and join the A.F. of L. in the NLRB election last week. Out of over 50,000 votes cast, the IUE-CIO lost the election.

A.F. of L. 197

No Union 218

IUE-CIO 35

IUE-CIO supporters would be on strike. During the week of the election, 3,000 long-service employees were out of work.

(Continued on page 4)
WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION
How the Law Can Be Improved

"It's all very well to say that we are not to blame, but if you are going to hold us responsible for the accident, you are going to have to establish the fact that we caused it."

The Workers' Compensation Law of the United States is a system that seeks to ensure that those who suffer injuries on the job are fairly compensated for their losses. The system is designed to protect workers from the financial consequences of workplace injuries and illnesses. However, the law is not always effective in ensuring that workers receive the benefits they are entitled to, and there are often disputes about who is responsible for an injury. This article discusses some of the reasons why the Workers' Compensation Law may need to be improved and some of the ways in which it can be made more effective.

CONGRESSMAN Dripp

By WOMEN

"If you can live on this for a week, I'll eat that new natural salt you passed."

The worker may testify that his injury was caused by a specific event, such as an accident that occurred while he was on duty. However, in many cases, the injury is caused by a series of events that took place over a period of time. The worker may also testify that he suffers from a disease that he developed as a result of his employment, such as cancer or a neurological disorder.

The worker's employer will have the opportunity to present evidence that the injury was not caused by the accident. This evidence may include medical records, expert testimony, and other evidence that shows that the injury was not caused by the accident.

The worker's compensation claim will be reviewed by a judge, who will consider the evidence presented by both sides. The judge will then make a decision about whether the worker is entitled to compensation and, if so, how much.

The decision of the judge will be based on the evidence presented and the laws that apply in the worker's jurisdiction. The laws that apply to workers' compensation claims vary from state to state, and in some cases, from country to country. In general, workers' compensation laws are designed to provide a fair and just system that ensures that workers are fairly compensated for their losses.

In conclusion, workers' compensation laws are designed to provide a fair and just system that ensures that workers are fairly compensated for their losses. These laws are important because they provide workers with the financial resources they need to recover from workplace injuries and illnesses. However, these laws need to be improved in order to ensure that workers receive the benefits they are entitled to. By doing so, we can help to create a system that is fair and just, and that ensures that workers are given the support they need to recover from workplace injuries and illnesses.

U.E. Local 301 Petitions For Truck Drivers

The United Steelworkers of America, which represents the workers in the United States, has petitioned the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) to investigate the conditions under which truck drivers are employed. The U.S. has accused the trucking industry of violating the terms of the Collective Bargaining Agreement (CBA) by failing to provide adequate safety measures and to ensure that drivers are paid fairly.

The U.S. claims that truck drivers are exposed to dangerous conditions, including long hours on the road and inadequate休息. The U.S. further claims that the trucking industry is using illegal methods to avoid paying drivers for their work. The U.S. has asked the NLRB to order the trucking industry to comply with the terms of the CBA and to provide adequate safety measures for drivers.

CE Conference Board Meeting

The Conference Board, an organization that conducts research on economic and business trends, is scheduled to hold a meeting on September 15. The meeting will focus on the current state of the economy and the factors that are shaping it. The meeting will include discussions on topics such as inflation, employment, and investment. The meeting will be attended by business leaders, economists, and policymakers from around the world.

The Conference Board's meeting will be held in New York City. The meeting will take place on Wednesday, September 15, from 9:00 am to 5:00 pm. The meeting will be open to the public, and interested parties are invited to attend.

Big Business Benefits Again

Big business has once again been shown to be a major beneficiary of the policies of the current administration. The administration's policies have resulted in significant tax cuts for corporations, which have allowed them to invest more in research and development. These investments have led to the development of new products and services, which have created jobs and increased wages for workers.

In addition to the tax cuts, the administration has implemented policies that have helped to reduce the costs of doing business. These policies include deregulation, which has made it easier for companies to enter new markets and to expand their operations. The administration's efforts to reduce regulations have allowed companies to operate more efficiently and to create more jobs.

The administration's policies have also helped to reduce the cost of health care for workers. The administration's efforts to reduce the cost of health care have allowed companies to offer more comprehensive health care benefits to their employees. These benefits have helped to reduce the cost of health care for workers and have allowed companies to retain and attract more workers.

In conclusion, the administration's policies have been beneficial for big business. These policies have helped to reduce the costs of doing business, to increase the competitiveness of American companies, and to create jobs and increase wages for workers. The administration's efforts to reduce regulations and to increase the competitiveness of American companies have helped to create a strong economy and to provide workers with the opportunities they need to succeed.

Unemployment Insurance

Unemployment insurance is a form of financial assistance that is provided to workers who lose their jobs due to factors beyond their control. The purpose of unemployment insurance is to provide a temporary source of income to workers who are out of work and to help them to find new jobs.

In the United States, unemployment insurance is provided by the federal government and by the states. The federal government provides unemployment insurance to workers who are unemployed due to factors beyond their control, such as layoffs or plant closings. The states provide unemployment insurance to workers who are unemployed due to factors not beyond their control, such as theft or fraud.

Workers who are eligible for unemployment insurance must meet certain eligibility requirements. These requirements include having worked in a job that is covered by unemployment insurance, having worked for a sufficient period of time, and being unemployed due to factors beyond their control.

If a worker is eligible for unemployment insurance, the worker will receive a portion of their previous wages as a form of financial assistance. The amount of unemployment insurance that a worker receives will depend on the amount of wages that the worker earned in their previous job.

In conclusion, unemployment insurance is a form of financial assistance that is provided to workers who lose their jobs due to factors beyond their control. The purpose of unemployment insurance is to provide a temporary source of income to workers who are out of work and to help them to find new jobs. The federal government provides unemployment insurance to workers who are unemployed due to factors beyond their control, such as layoffs or plant closings. The states provide unemployment insurance to workers who are unemployed due to factors not beyond their control, such as theft or fraud.

In the United States, unemployment insurance is provided by the federal government and by the states. The federal government provides unemployment insurance to workers who are unemployed due to factors beyond their control, such as layoffs or plant closings. The states provide unemployment insurance to workers who are unemployed due to factors not beyond their control, such as theft or fraud.

Pensioned workers who have reported recently on the status of the United States Unemployment Insurance Board are being given a renewed assurance that their benefits will continue to be paid.

It appears that the current administration is committed to providing financial assistance to workers who are out of work. The administration is committed to increasing the amount of unemployment insurance that workers receive and to making it easier for workers to find new jobs.

In addition to providing financial assistance to workers who are out of work, the administration is committed to increasing the competitiveness of American companies. The administration is committed to reducing regulations and to increasing the competitiveness of American companies, which will help to create jobs and increase wages for workers.
These Are The Issues!

Our Job In Negotiations

In the national negotiations with GE next month we will be fighting for wage increases to keep up with the real rise in the cost of living, for increases in the rates of day workers and the skilled crafts. We are fighting against discrimination on the rates of women workers and for fair pay and equal job opportunities for all GE employees.

By red-baiting and name-calling, IUE-CIO is trying to break up our fight.

We Run Our Own Affairs

WE IN UE Local 301 have built and maintained a rank and file, American union, where the decisions are made by the membership. Our UE Constitution guarantees the membership the right to vote on all contracts, strikes and settlements.

By red-baiting and name-calling, IUE-CIO will try to frighten us into giving up the right to run our own affairs. They ask us to accept an imitation union run by a little clique of dictators who have sold themselves and their members to the employers and politicians. The UE-CIO constitution deprives UE-CIO members of the right to vote on strikes, settlements or contracts. Everything is decided by top.

The company union IUE-CIO had counted on a campaign of months of red scare and hysteria to divide us. They had hoped the company could stop us from helping our brothers and sisters. But by sticking together during the past 15 years we have built a union that has more than doubled the wages of GE workers. We have established job protection through seniority. We have set up grievance procedure that handles thousands of cases every year. We have the best possible contracts for production and maintenance workers and holidays with pay. All these things and many others, such as protection of the earnings of incentive workers, are protected in the union contract we have built up over the years.

By red-baiting and name-calling, IUE-CIO will try to frighten us into giving up all this up.

GE Workers Build UE Local 301

The real issues in the election on September 14 are simple.

UE Local 301 was built by the people in GE to protect and advance their interests. By sticking together during the past 15 years we have built a union that has more than doubled the wages of GE workers. We have established job protection through seniority. We have set up grievance procedure that handles thousands of cases every year. We have the best possible contracts for production and maintenance workers and holidays with pay. All these things and many others, such as protection of the earnings of incentive workers, are protected in the union contract we have built up over the years.

By red-baiting and name-calling, IUE-CIO will try to frighten us into giving up all this up.

---

VOTE UE LOCAL 301---