Steelworkers' Strike Defends Bread and Butter Safeguards

Although the big corporation-controlled propaganda machines have been hammering away at the strikers that the wire strike is caused entirely by the CIW strikers demand for a wage, a study of the facts shows that several major and better issues are at least equally important. Basically, it boils down to this: the big corporation would like to get back to the old days of the depression when they can work for a pittance and under conditions they described as "safeguards.
