This is particularly handy in view of the fact that Milne has eighteen homerooms. The names of these states will be put in a hat and a member of each homeroom will draw a name to represent New York. Sup­ posing a senior draws Rhode Island? Ah well, this is democracy. After the names have been drawn, students may attempt to in­fluence their friends in any way: pins, banners, and even logical argument. On No­ vember 8, we shall vote in home­ rooms. As the majority of the Milne students have come to realize, 1960, is an election year in the United States. On November 8, 1960, we shall choose our next president. In view of this fact, it is befitting that the students of Milne have the opportunity to express their political preferences in a manner similar to that accorded those individuals of our society who have lived twenty-one or longer. In short, Milne too, will have an election.

A mock election is being carried on in almost every school in the nation. A simple tally of votes and announcement of the winner is common and contrary to the situation as it actually exists in this country. The electoral college, with which several students may be familiar, does not afford equal representation to all states. Half of the states have a greater population than the states with the greater population have more votes.

Thus Milne, not wishing to be common, and striving as always for excellence and individuality, will not hold a "run of the mill" election. Milne will have its own electoral college. Eighteen states, representing all sizes of population, will be put in a hat and a member of each homeroom will draw a name to represent New York. The tension during this moment is sure to be great. What if a seventh grade draws the state of New York? Supposing a senior draws Rhode Island? Ah well, this is democracy.

Mr. William Kraus directs Barry Rosenstock, Scott Bunn, Janice Humphrey, and Jane Siegfried in "The Girls in 509", a timely political comedy to be presented by the senior class November 19 in Page Hall.

Societies Plan Rush
Quinn and Sigma, the girls’ literary societies, have de­cided on a project for the year. They plan to “adopt” and support a needy child through the Foster Parents’ Plan.

Because the child will cost $180 for the year, in order to raise this amount, Quinn and Sigma will sponsor several activities throughout the year. A bake sale is being planned, with its theme "food for the body and food for the mind." A dance will be held on December fifth. Other activities in the planning stage include a white elephant sale and a box lunch auction.

Milne Merry-Go-Round

Glimpses around school—junior class beginning to organize . . . Milnites fervently debating presidential campaign . . . new coed well liked—how are the calisthenics coming, boys?

Seen at a Halloween dance at the Aurora club were Sherry Press, Cathy Le Feve, Pete Dreschler, Maureen Clenahan, Steve Hutchins, Carole Hagadorn, Randy Hatt, Ian Proctor, Kris Cassiano, But Bill Butler, Teddy Brown and Dave Kermani.

The Smart Set is certainly attracting Milnites. Katie Weissinger, Tim Hamilton, Barb Faulkner, John Hiltz, Al Markowitz and “friend” as well as Mr. and Mrs. Martin—pretty wild, eh?

When the Kingston Trio visited the RPI fieldhouse a whole gang of Milne kids were on hand. Jan Meurs, Terry Galpin, Gay Dexter, Ann Russell, Margie Linn, Peggy Crane, Fred Dexter, Sue Press and Nancy Button enjoyed themselves, and so did Barb Faulkner, Lynn Wise and Betty Weinstein.

Contemp Lit’s excursion to see Jono and the Paycock was a huge success. Jim Casey, Linda Van Zandt, Kenny Lockwood, Howie Ottly and Barb Corbat all enjoyed seeing Mr. Kraus’ acting instead of directing. We know you could do it, Mr. R.

On the Western avenue bus the other morning were two record Milnites—someone counted nineteen. Ellen Karel, Sue Unger, Richi Stewart and Sue Crowley ran like mad to take it.

Congratulations to Jon Axelrod, Joyce Johnson, Sandy Berman, Joe Allison and Harvey Keck for quick action on letter-writing as the class of 61 invades the season room.

Among those at Peggy Crane’s party were Martha Lowler, Steve Gath, Ann Russell, Jeff Rider, Wendy Van Orden, Dick Blaby, Sue Zimmerman and Randy Hatt.

Dr. Gardner, off-campus this year in Uganda, has a unique traffic problem—he has to wait for the elephants, he breathes deeply.

Leslie Murphy had a swingin’ party that was enjoyed by Sue Ashworth, Jack Baldes, Karen Thorsen, Mo Glasean, Jim Hengerer and Curt Congrave. Happy day—Jim Casey got his draft card. Now you’re a man.

Karen Hoffman, Joan Griffin, Marcia Pitts, Marilyn Hesser, Kris Cassiano, Carole Hagadorn, Barbara Teoole, Stuy, Gerhard, Dede Smith, Marcia Hutchings and Judy Lennon had a spooky time at Barbara Leach’s Halloween party.

Congratulations to Jackie Bold, Ellen Price and Pat Cinotti, who made the semifinals in the Merit Scholarship competitions.

Among those who thought Ben Hur was a wonderful picture are Penny Pritchard and Andre Donikian. Linda Van Zandt is a swell looking gal—especially when she comes into the locker room with her hair in curlers.

“Kindly toss off a few thousand words on Schubert” was a very familiar phrase to Julie Propp, Dave Blaby and Glenn Simmons, as they adapt themselves to Humanities.

The Assassin

They huddled together
In that druggy cell.
Drunk on a drink called
Anarchy,
An hundred-proof brew.
One part intellect,
Nine parts poetry.

Their dedicated Leader vows:
Red with passion, his lonely visage
Swept above the candle.
Lady Katrina will die tomorrow.
Choose the method.
Accomplish the end.
She must die.

They thought not of the irony
That the almighty Ruble
Bore the invincible likeness
Of Nicholas II.

The Leader tossed the coin into
The dump air
Where it hung.

Every eye reflected in its gleam.

The student gasped
As the coin struck the table
And rolled in his direction.

It veered East
But returned true to its intent,
Singling him out.

Him: condemned to destroy
Lady Katrina.

The others arse and vanished.
His head fell into his hands,
He breathed deeply
Thinking—

How to kill a lady
Their footsteps died
Into the darkness.

Innocent and doomed . . .

PLAYDAY RIDES AGAIN

M.G.A.A. held a playday for 7:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. on October 29. Volleyball, dodgeball, punchball, and relay races were played. Teams were set up, with about ten girls on each team. The theme of the playday was Halloween, with teams appropriate. Milne girls brought their lunches with them, but soda and ice cream was also served.

Presidential Poll

One day last week when the girls were playing volleyball, Miss Murray decided to spring her presidential poll. She asked for all the Nixon-fans to form one team, and all Kennedy fans to form another team. Then, for ten minutes the two teams were to oppose each other in a game of volleyball. At the end of the day, after six games had played, it was clearly evident that Nixon fans were in greater numbers than Kennedy fans, and that Nixon fans were victorious in two of the games. The students who voted in this presidential poll that Miss Murray has taken has always turned out that the man the Milne girls picked as their president is the United States, at least according to us he will.

Volleyball Is Over

No more fights before gym period for the good volleyball, or suffering after two serves with the hard, heavy ball (if you last that long). Why? ’Cause volleyball is now officially over for the year. The captains have graded the marks and are in.

M.G.A.A. is also over. The senior high Volleys, captained by Barbara Currey, came out in first place winning seven games in a row. The defeated teams were The Bloomer Girls led by Judy Kehlitz; The Blue Nothings, captained by Penny Pritchard; and the Clod Squad led by Patti Cinnotti.

The sports next to be taken up by Milne girls will be field hockey for the senior high and speedball for the junior high.

$—Money Matters—$

During the one week the Milne girls sold magazine subscriptions, we went way over last year’s total profit. Milne girls earned one thousand, two hundred, twenty-six dollars and twenty-two cents this year.

If a Milne girl has left something outside her locker, and Mrs. Wetting picks it up and puts it into the lost and found locker and herself biffed 5c when she comes to reclaim it. If a locker is left unclosed, the girl is fined 5c. If a Milne girl is caught eating in the girls’ room, she is billed 25c. When the lost and found locker becomes too full, an auction is held, and money is made by this method. At this rate, one might think that the girls’ locker room is a money making proposition. Well, it is, and the 1965 Women’s International Hockey Competition in Pennsylvania will benefit. The United States is acting as hostess in 1963 for the non-profit competition, and schools from all over the U. S. are helping to support it. So far, Milne’s money-making schemes have netted over $220 and this purpose.

More Hockey

November 19th and 20th, at Saint Joseph’s School, the North-Eastern Field Hockey Tournament competition will take place. Teams from all over Northeastern U. S. will compete, and the winning two teams will be sent to California to represent the Northeast at the National Tournament. There will be a small admission charge.
Epitaph of a Pressured Senior

By TIM HAMILTON

For five years a scholar is staying. He’s got the world on a string, or so goes the saying. Then comes the last year, the year of the senior. Now no strings are pulled. For this is the tensest year. Comes fall, and the onslaught begins. Take warning oh carefree youth. For you may be kept. In a game of few wins. Be it the Boards of college, or Regents, or Merit. The pressure is great. Pressured by his parents, his teachers, you’re sure to go. One will fail my boy, and then you’re on your own. But you’ll do well to bear it. "Fare well, my son," the father says. "You’ll do well if you bear it." His recitations become frantic. Yet often the pressure looms too great. His labors hastened by his fears. The youth crams and studies. When clearly midst all this insanity, he must be warned. Which must be scorned. A student’s present honor dissipates. And once in a while he cheats. So once in a while he weakens. The pupil it seems, is falsely driven. Goldfish? We just aren’t doing anything right.

Can there be wisdom? In the face of this madness. Let someone from the council know. If you approve of this idea, please let someone from the council know.

Senior Spotlight

STU HORN

It is the first day of school, and the unknown student teacher is calling the role. As he (or she) gets down to the h’s, he comes upon the name Stuart Horn. "Is Stuart present?" he asks. STU PLEASE, is the return! This, of course, leads to confusion among the student teachers, but not to Stu’s classmates, most of whom have known him ever since he made his first appearance at Milne in the seventh grade.

Born on May 27, 193, Stu attended P.S. 18. From there he came to our fair school, and became a hit immediately. The activities that he has been engaged in since have been so numerous that you begin to wonder whether he has any time for schoolwork. Among these activities are his post as literary editor of the yearbook, membership on the student-faculty committee, and active membership in Hams incorporated. For a complete list, see Stu.

Next year Stu hopes to attend Hamilton or Cornell. I know he has talked with his smooth salesman’s line, developed over the summer, he’ll probably end up selling something! By MARTHA and DAVE

SUE NEWMAN

You name it—she does it. Who? Sue Newman! Even a quick glance at her many activities shows what a versatile gal she is. This year Sue is an active member of G.A.A. and Sigma and as well the hard-working editor of the Bricks and Ivy. She has been a Girl scout for almost a decade, and two years ago she enjoyed the privilege of attending the International Girl Scout Roundup in Colorado. Her other activities include volunteer church and hospital work.

Sue spent most of her vacation this year at her family’s summer home on Saratoga lake. She and her sister enjoyed many happy hours there riding their two horses. Sue’s future plans include college with a possible major in biology. If you want to see Sue in action this year, you will see Jon Axelrod, the actor.

By his own admission, he is a very inactive member of the NFTY Youth Group but he spends many snowy winter weekends skiing. Most people hate snow—he loves it.

If in about ten years you need a good lawyer, just contact Jon. He is a present treasurer and past vice-president of Hi-Y and last year won $25 for the best highway safety bill introduced at the Hi-Y Youth and Government Assembly. He is presently serving as photography editor for both the yearbook and the C&W. If you don’t know Jon by now, you are in the wrong school!
