Tonight at 8:00 o'clock in the Page Hall Gym, the Milne Varsity Basketball team will oppose the alumni. If successful the Milne squad will have four games in the win column after their clash with the "grads" as against one loss. Some of the former Milnites who will represent the Alumni are; Ray Pafunda, Bill Sharp, Dick Thompson, Bob Harding, Bill Blatner, Al Mayberry, and Kendal Getman. Coach Hall will probably start MacHarg and Blocksidge, forwards; Simmons, center; Rosenstein and Norvell, guards.

C. J. S. P. ... TO CONDUCT SPRING MEETING AT CASTLETON FEBRUARY 16

The Capital District Scholastic Press Association, of which the Crimson and White is an active member, will hold its 1935 spring convention at Castleton on Saturday, February 16. All Milne students are eligible to join the special delegation. These desires of making the trip should sign on the Bulletin Board.

NOTICE

Milk will play Mohawk on February 15, instead of February 12, as stated on the basketball schedule card.
Once upon a time there was a very greedy little monkey who, when confronted by a jar of especially meaty-looking chestnuts, plunged his little paw into it and attempted to withdraw an enormous handful. You, of course, are familiar with the ending of this particularly unprosper story. The piggish little animal was forced to release a good many of the chestnuts before he could remove his clumsily fist.

Don't, my child, be an "office-hog!" As this little fable has so clearly pointed out, the student who deliberately sets out to obtain as many honor positions as he can will soon find himself faced with the disadvantages of not being able to manage the "whole handful" successfully. It is not necessary to point out to you that any position of one student will suffer equally, whereas the few of another will stand out as being effectively taken care of.

Almost all our private and state colleges, to give an authentic flavor to the foregoing passages, have established in order to safeguard the mental and physical health of its students a "Point System" which successfully limits the number of offices a person may hold. In our own State College the limit is ten points and the more responsible positions rank higher than theirs. The editor of the NESS, for instance, receives nine credit points.

A system similar to that should by all means be established in Milne, if only to prevent the assumption of too much responsibility from affecting one's studies. A second major point in the advantages of such regulation is that many worthy students whose character and capabilities would be greatly benefited by responsibilities of which they are deprived by "office-hogs" who perhaps manifest more readily their fitness for office. High school is the ideal time for becoming accustomed to responsibility, yet the more forward students leave little or no opportunity for those who are more retiring.

Eventually the Milne March of Progress will provide some means of keeping the clever little monkeys from continually grabbing more "chestnuts" than they can handle successfully. Why not now?

MUSIC IN MILNE

The future of our orchestra is at stake! Although many of you may not be moved by this statement, you should be. More people should be interested in the orchestra and its going. More students should be concerned with its welfare and be willing to help it.

Of course, one should not neglect any other activity to support our orchestra. We should maintain our athletic ability and our high scholarship standards but we should not neglect music in the school. Music trains the mind and brings happiness. It is quite apparent, that in America, they are becoming interested in and followers of musical news and of music itself. Many people are famous because of their musical ability. However, Milne cannot be pleased among those who are famous because of their music. She has, today, a very poor orchestra. It is not because of poor direction because we have had an excellent opportunity in the very capable leader whom we have now. It is poor, because there is no support. In a school of almost four hundred pupils, surely there is enough talent or material to maintain an average-sized orchestra. The time spent is only two hours a week and the benefits received are worth many times that. As has been mentioned, music makes one more happy. If a person can appreciate the music which one hears and one does hear it all the time at present will he not be more happy? Yes, well, as to the question of material mentioned above, other schools seem to keep not only large orchestras but even a band too. If they can do this, surely Milne can keep an orchestra which can be up with the best of the other schools' they can maintain a larger orchestra. It has been proved that orchestras increase the school spirit or make the school better.

Don't hinder the Milne March of Progress but be loyal. If you play a musical instrument, join the orchestra to help the school. That better way is there to keep the songs and the new tunes fresh in the hearts and minds of the students. What better way is there to impress incoming Milnites and visitors than by a good orchestra? None! Support an orchestra! Be loyal! It will help the school as much if not more than it helps you if you do. Again I say, help the Milne March of Progress along and the orchestra.

Note: Mr. Winno also contributed last week's editorial "Support the Team" in which, through an oversight, he was not given credit.
OLIVE VROMAN ELECTED NEW PRESIDENT OF FRENCH CLUB

Olive Vroman was elected president of the French Club for the second semester at the regular meeting last Monday. Cora Randies was elected vice-president, Virginia Sipperly, secretary, and Vivian Snyder, treasurer. The program chairman for next semester will be Barbara Allen, who is the retiring president. Ganson Taggart was chosen to fill the position of marshal.

Two weeks ago at the meeting, Madame Shroka, a native French woman and also the wife of a former Milne orchestra leader, gave a very interesting talk to the club. She spoke in simple French and told of the sights which an American might see in France.

The club is now rehearsing the play Nous Verrons, directed by Mr. Allard, a sponsor of the club. The play will be presented in assembly on February 20.

SOCIETY NOTES

QUOTATIONS: Quotations were from Amy Lowell, William Rose Benet, and Sydney Lanier, whose birthdays are being celebrated this week.

The new members were excluded from the meeting as there was a discussion on initiation.

Leslie Sipperly was appointed head of the refreshment committee and Mary York, Sara Kessler, and Virginia McDERmott are in charge of the initiation ceremonies.

SIGMA: The regular meeting of the Zeta Sigma Literary Society was called to order by the president at the usual time. Nelville Amstel was sworn in as she was absent at the last meeting.

The sophomores were excused from the meeting during the discussion of the initiation plans. The ceremonies will be held Friday afternoon in room 326.

EXHIBIT: In the absence of the scheduled speaker, Harry Witte, a discussion of the Tri-Society dance and also of new members was held. A committee consisting of Edwin Blockidge, Dunton Tynan and Ganson Taggart was appointed to meet with members of the girls' societies to make final plans for the dance. A committee was also appointed to make a list of eligible candidates for the coming initiation.

DRIBBLE COLUMN

Tonight's the night! Once again interest centers in our Milne basketball team which is to hold forth on the Page Hall court tonight. They will bump up against a strong alumni team. This will be an interesting game, so show your school spirit and everybody come and bring your friends.

What do you think of a certain sophomore who buys sports shoes in the middle of the winter? Well, young Bill Hotelling thinks it's O.K. Oh well, that's Will for you, always belonging to the origin or the beginning of a thing. How about it, Royzie Wozzie?

In our next assembly I think "Dog House" Snowden and O. Jay Smith should sing their new song entitled, Oh Well, That's Life. This is no joke; I really mean it. How about it, fellows?

In bringing this week's column to a close, I just wish to give you all a good tip. This may seem funny coming from me, but just think about it for a minute. This is a new semester you all have a new start with new teachers, so give yourself a new deal in a new way, and work a little harder, and get some nice new 90's on your new report card. Even if you can not get 90's, try harder, and you will be happier when you receive your next report card.

G. A. C. PLANS TO RAISE MONEY BY BRIDGE PARTY FOR MOTHERS

Ways of raising money were discussed at a recent Girls' Athletic Council meeting. It was suggested that the council give a mother and daughter banquet or have the mothers make up tables, at a dollar a table, for bridge. Miss Elizabeth Hitchcock, instructor in physical education, came in and discussed the two suggestions. It was decided to have the bridge party and plans are under way for it.
