CLUBS TO HAVE LAST MEETING

The clubs will hold their last meeting for this semester on Wednesday, January 16, 1935.

Soon after that the homeroom teacher will inquire as to whether students wish to join a different club. Any pupil who is dissatisfied may change his club then.

Anyone wishing to start a new club, must get a petition from Miss Halter or the Student Council. Petitions must be in by the end of January. Clubs will resume their meetings on Wednesday, February 16, under the new sponsors.

HOMEROOM 130 WINS PRIZE

Homeroom 130 won the first prize for their Christmas box in the contest held before school closed for Christmas vacation. The attractive box was made to represent a sail boat.

NOTICE

The poem, "Thanksgiving," which was printed in the Christmas issue of the Crimson and White, was written by Adele Corwin '39, instead of Althea Wallace '38.

STUDENT COUNCIL NOTES

The date of the next Junior High party, January 22, may have to be changed since there is a basketball game scheduled for that night. Nevertheless, plans for the party are being made by the Student Council. The committee for the party consists of Mary Winburn, Lois Hosbitt, and Donna Atwood.

The homerooms will discuss the following propositions concerning the parties:

1. One evening party with orchestra and one evening party without.
2. One evening party without orchestra and one afternoon party with orchestra.
3. One evening party with orchestra and one afternoon party without orchestra.
4. One big evening party.

HOMEROOM NOTES

Homeroom 127 has elected Alfred Metz as their new sergeant-at-arms with Millicent Murphy for his assistant to replace Roy McCormack and Eleanor Parsons.

Homeroom 227, during the business meeting this week, selected the play, "Six Who Passed While the Lentils Boiled," to present in assembly.

Homeroom 135 will present one or two short plays in assembly on March 12. They are reading plays in their English classes and expect to make their selections from them.

Homeroom 129 held a meeting on Monday, January 7, 1935. It was decided that Ruth Selkirk, Louise Rothman, Lyn Sims, and Bernice Swarts would give an entertainment for the class on Friday afternoon, January 11, 1935.

Homeroom 228 decided that they would like one afternoon party and one evening party. They voted on changing dues, but it was not carried.

Homeroom 130 is very happy to have won first prize for the best Christmas box.

A few months ago our Student Council spread the news through the school that it had planned a pet show. A committee to take charge of the arrangements was appointed, but what happened? The rules of the show were announced. The date was reported to be "In the near future."

Yet, in spite of all these plans and preparations no positive date was set. The students are still waiting for the promised pet show.

The students were interested in this affair, and pets were all ready to be exhibited. This precedent as a general practice is not to be applauded.

HAVE YOU A BRIGHT IDEA?

The Girls' Athletics Club of Milne is sponsoring a contest to obtain new cheers from the talent of the student body. Perhaps you've never tried your luck at making cheers, but now is a good time to start. As an incentive the C.A.C. is offering a two dollar prize to the student who submits the best original cheer. These cheers must have actions to go with them. Either write out the actions on the paper or show them to Senior High cheer leader.

Just remember, if you want new cheers, you must work for them. Try anyway; you may win!

NOTE OF THANKS

Recently Milne High received a letter of thanks from Walter E. Young, of The Family Welfare Society, from which Milne received the list of unfortunate people who were given Christmas boxes. Mr. Young expressed his gratitude to the students of this school for their help in making people happy.

CLASSROOM ETIQUETTE
By Prof. Ikny

As first president, founder, and member of the A.E.P.S. (Anti-Emily-Post Society), I take it upon myself to speak to the members of Milne High School.

The manners of Milne High students are absolutely vindictive. Each time the buzzer buzzes for class dismissal, everyone crowds to the door to get him self out first. It shouldn't be that way! If everyone would help everyone else push, it would be O.K. Under the "Gnu Deelo," we need and demand bigger and better pushes.

Another point I want to bring up is that of throwing "spitballs." They're horrid for the simple reason that one's hands get all messed up in making them.

NOW all this would be simplified if one used "Ikny's Patented Collapsible Bean Shooter!" They're accurate! Sold exclusively at Schwolsky's Super-Department Stores (adv.).

Milne students should not only shake hands to start their wrist-watches but also cut of courtesy. Speaking of wrist-watches, I wanted to tell you of mine! It's such a good one that it will do an hour in forty-five minutes.

Well, remember what I told you and watch out for your "Et-ic—Et-ic—or un—Et-ic—Et-ic—Et-ic—I mean manners.

BOOK REPORT
LITTLE SHEPHERD OF KINGDOM COME
By John Fox, Jr.

When the plague kills his family, Chad and his dog, Jack, are suddenly left alone in the world with no one to care for them. Chadwick wanders through the mountains and is taken in by a kind family, with whom he lives for quite a while. One day he goes down the river on a raft to the city. Missing the train back, he is given a ride by an old gentleman who grows to like him. Chad grows up, goes to college, and falls in love with Margaret, a young lady living next door to his grandfather.

The Civil War breaks out, and Chad goes to fight for the North, much to his grandfather's grief. Margaret's family is southern, and she refuses to see Chad because of this. During the war Chad saves Margaret's two brothers, who are fighting on opposite sides. After the war, Margaret marries Chad.

This is a love story and an adventure story. It is very human. Both boys and girls will like it.
