The honor roll has increased as compared with last month. The number on this is just about the average number, but it would be nice if we could still have some more. Vivian Snyder, a ninth grade student, again had the highest average with 94%.

The honor roll is as follows:

7th Grade: Wilson Hume, Hazel Roberts, Elizabeth Simmons, Barbara Soper, Virginia Tripp
8th Grade: Jean Ambler, Frances Bronner, Ethel Pasold, William Hotelling, Thomas Farran, Jane Weir
9th Grade: Jane Fanning, Beth Mann, Vivian Snyder

Home room charts improve

This month, the home room charts have gone up in everything. The average of scholastic work has gone up a great deal, showing that everybody has brought his marks up from last month. There were 69 failings also, which was much better compared with 119 of the month before. This number should still be decreased in order to have only a few. The number of people sent to the office has also decreased. There were 16 last month, while there were 20 the month before. The charts are as follows:

There are a few vacancies in the Glee Club for boys. Those who wish to try-out, see John Winne of homeroom 129.

Junior High School has party tonight

The Junior High School party will be conducted tonight in the old State College gymnasium from 8 to 11.

Those who have been asked to attend are: Mary Cavin and Kenneth Snowden of the Senior class; Dorothy Duffy and Tom Watkins of the Junior class; and Mary York and Eichard Masterson of the Sophomore class.

Many of the faculty are expected to attend.

Milne to participate in boys' week

Professor Sayles called all the boys of the school into assembly at 11:00 Wednesday morning to tell them about the Boys' week program that will be held in Albany starting tomorrow.

There was a vote taken to choose a boy to act as Mayor of Albany for one day. The Mayor will be a student of some school in the city.

Other officers voted for were:
License Clerk, Industrial Commissioner, and State Insurance Clerk.

Home room 223 presents minstrel show

Home room 223 gave a minstrel show in assembly yesterday. Interlocutor was Seeley Park, and men were Erastus Davis and Jimmy Griffin. The soloists were Lois Blessing, Erastus Davis, Margaret Charles, and Lois Hayner. The tap dancers were Betty Douglas and Peggy Jantz.

Mr. Robinson of State College sponsored the show and Mr. Baker, also of State College, played the piano. Miss Wheeling is the home room sponsor.

Combined assembly program to be given May 11.

The Glee club will share their assembly program with the Traffic Club May 11. The Glee club program will be "Soldier's Chorus," "Blind Pig," a selection by Priscilla Simpson; "Flowers that Bloom in the Spring," "Swae Genevieve," "My Heart's in the Highlands" and the "Eelca Song."

EXAMS ARE NEAR

Now that Easter vacation is over, people can come to school and start their regular work, but we must realize how near our exams are. After all, there is only one more month before them, and we should work hard to get all we can out of this last month of school.

We should all start out by behaving well, and striving to do good work, so that when we get our reports after exams we can say, "My English mark was 90," or "My Latin was 92", and not, "I flunked one thing or another". However, in order for most of us to say, "I received all good marks," we have to study and pay attention in class. Therefore, if everyone would start off with a real purpose of learning, we might even be surprised with some of our marks.

WE ARE CHALLENGED

We, in Junior High School, in eight or nine more years, will be the voters and law-makers of this great country called America. Will we be fit for this job? Are we having the right preparation? Is it a challenge to the students of today to see if we are fitted for our future offices in life. A challenge that asks us whether we will be successes or failures.

By studying civics and social science in school, we can learn how our government is run and see about politics. It will give us a clearer idea of the difficulties of our government and there are difficulties. There are difficulties in everything, today, and the government is not an exception. (concluded)

Will you accept the challenge? Do you want to support your country when you’re older? This is the challenge. Why not prepare yourself for it now and therefore be ready to meet it with courage and an understanding of the position you will hold as a citizen of the United States?

QUESTION BOX

Question: Should we have a field day this year where boys and girls can participate in outdoor sports?

Dorothy Sherman: Yes, because we could go together and have a lot of fun.

John Akullian: Yes, because it would show people the sports we have in Milne.

Milla Hall: Yes, because we could show what athletic sports we have.

Ralph Norvell: I think it would help introduce track, in which I think Milne should participate.

Alice Wander: Yes, because it gives the boys and girls equal chances to show what they have learned in school this year.

HOW WE DO OUR HOMEWORK
IN THE SPRING

Scene: The home of any Milner.

Two girls are doing their homework. First Girl: "What’s the Latin? Oh, yes, fifth declension nouns; decline res, rei, re. Oh, do you know our Latin teacher is bow-legged? That reminds me, have you seen my new hat? Not the blue one, the little green one with the bows on it. Mother is going to buy me a suit to match it. Isn’t this Latin terrible? I’m going to do Biology now.

The iris protects the pupil. I you see those swanky corsages at the flower show? Weren’t those orchids gorgeous? "The pupil protects the iris. The pupil protects,"—oh, what am I saying? I guess I shouldn’t try to do Biology and something else at the same time or I will have flowers and the eye all mixed up.

"Let’s start Algebra now. If I have to sit in the front of the room any longer, I will do something desperate. As I said before, let’s get some roller skates. Everybody is skating to school, so let’s be included in the crowd. I guess I had better come back to earth again. I equals., oh, boy, are you going to wear ankle socks this year?" and this continued on into the night.
