Dutch Quad’s polling place moved to nursing home

By Marc Bernstein

The shift in location came about because members of the Interfaith Collegiate Council Board, which runs Chapel House, was recently handed down to SA by the university. The decision to relocate the polling place that is accessible to the students was made in order to give students more space and to move the polling place away from the library.

"All we want is a polling place that is accessible to the students," Steve Garvey, said. "If the students want to vote, they should be able to do so without having to leave the library."

According to Garvey, "We have now four polling places and two transfer voting locations," he continued. "We have an additional one in the fall and on the second floor of Deake Hall."

ALBANY '84-85: World records and activism

SUNY Albany's student newspaper, the Albany Student Press, discusses the rise of student activism in the 1980s, particularly in response to increased tuition and cuts in federal support. The article highlights the role of student organizations in raising awareness and mobilizing public opinion.

Grouper Law violators urged to act as good citizens

The article reports on the enforcement of a new law that fines students for living together without proper permits. The law was intended to prevent the creation of student ghettos and ensure the proper handling of student grievances. The article also discusses the potential impact of the new law on student activism and the role of student organizations in addressing the issue.

SA finds new phone system to be expensive, low quality

The article discusses the implementation of a new phone system on campus and its associated costs and drawbacks. The new system was intended to provide better service and connectivity but has raised concerns among students and faculty due to its high costs and technical issues.

Students learn to use media to spread their message

The article explores the role of student media in activism and the strategies used to effectively communicate with the public. It highlights the importance of media literacy in today's society and the challenges faced by student journalists in producing high-quality content.

Ramaley gets new title in departmental shuffle

By Tom Bacon

Albany University President Vincent O'Leary's plan to shuffle titles and responsibilities among the top vice presidents of SUNY has been submitted to the SUNY Chancellor's office for approval.

Among the top vice presidents at the University for Academic Affairs Judith Ramaley, who will become SUNY's first Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs, John Schumaker will become SUNY's Vice President for Academic Planning and Development as part of the reorganization.

The plan is the result of months of work by O'Leary's team, which has been studying the current structure of the university.

Changes for Ramaley

Ramaley presently earns $122,000, which is 10 percent less than her current salary. She was appointed to the position in 2005, and has been serving as the University's first woman vice president.

Changes for Schumaker

Schumaker presently earns $112,000, which is 10 percent less than his current salary. He was appointed to the position in 2005, and has been serving as the University's first assistant vice president.

The changes are expected to be completed by the end of the year.
GALA offers all incoming frosh the chance to learn about self, others

By Tatiana Richtman

The State University of New York at Albany (SUNYA) is home to a large population of students who identify as gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender (LGBT). The Gay and Lesbian Alliance (GALA) is one of the organizations that provides support and resources to these students. GALA organizes events and programs throughout the year to bring awareness to the LGBTQ+ community and to provide a safe space for its members. This year, GALA's activities will include the annual GALA office hours, which are open to the public and will feature films, outings, parties, and live classes. The Gay and Lesbian Alliance was founded in 1971 to serve the entire community. GALA's mission is to promote an understanding of gay and lesbian issues and to encourage the participation of everyone in the community. GALA was open during the summer, Saturday hours are posted on the office doors, and the GALA office is located in the Multicultural Center. GALA offers all incoming students the chance to learn about self, others, and the importance of equality.
Keep the faith

Since this University's inception, Chapel House has been a haven for students of various religious denominations. It is a place where students can come together to pray, study, and reflect on their faith. Chapel House is not just a building, but a community where people from different backgrounds can find a sense of belonging.

A Freshman's nightmare

When I was a kid, I had a buttered-tongue nightmare. It's like you wake up and you can't talk at all, you just have this huge tongue and you can't articulate anything. I'd always feel like I was building things but would never be able to use them.

Alice Margaret

When I was a freshman, my dream came true. I arrived in Albany, all excited and ready, and it was my college experience. At first, I was overwhelmed by the size of the building and the number of people. I thought I was going to be alone, but then I realized that everyone was there to help me. I started to feel like I was part of something bigger.

During the fall, many students have offered only negative comments about this university and about the co-operative education program. A positive comment is long overdue.

At the end of December, a Christmas party was held at the University, Student Association house. WQBK (WQBX) sponsors free outdoor concerts featuring local Albany bands. "Party on the Plaza" is a musical alternative to the often unreachable and often expensive alternative of Albany's high-school districts. The door is always open. The Albany Student Association offers countless opportunities in the country and one that has historically prided itself on being a leader in the pursuit of student rights. No student organization has ever reached momentum with the Albany Student Association (ASA). High student activism and student participation in the democratic movement are being heard around the nation. It seems that everywhere students are becoming politically aware and involve themselves in the issues outside the confines of our University, Student Association has achieved many great successes. However, it has also experienced enough failure to make students realize that much more must be done. Although there is heavy responsibility of seeing that ASA is always relatively successful, ASA is not a monopoly organization. The Albany Student Association can only be truly effective with more students taking part in its activities. The Albany Student Association offers countless opportunities for social justice and for social change. The Albany Student Association is the only student organization on SUNYA, which is facing with many new and challenging academic responsibilities. Some students are leaving the campus for another experience at the University. Many of the students who are leaving the campus for another experience are not qualified for those qualities in the academic world. Mushrooms forecast to be newest campus drug fad

COLUMBIA PRESS SERVICE A new recreational drug made of magic mushrooms could be taking root on college campuses, researchers say.

The drug, which comes from the same family as LSD, is called psilocybin. It is similar to LSD but is found naturally in hallucinogenic mushrooms. The mushroom species that produce psilocybin are called 'magic mushrooms' and are found in parts of the world where they are not readily available or legal.

Researchers have found that psilocybin can produce effects similar to but milder than those of LSD. It is often described as a natural hallucinogen with effects on perception, mood, and behavior that can be experienced by users.

The drug is gaining popularity on college campuses, according to the researchers. They note that the use of psilocybin is increasing on a national scale, with more students and non-students experimenting with it.

According to the researchers, the use of psilocybin is likely to continue to grow in popularity as it becomes more widely available and legal in some parts of the world. They recommend that further research be conducted to understand the effects of psilocybin on users and the potential risks associated with its use.

The researchers call for the development of better education programs to help students understand the effects of psilocybin and make informed choices about its use. They also recommend that further research be conducted to understand the effects of psilocybin on users and the potential risks associated with its use.
The new phone rates also mean the University saves on long distance calls, said Neveu. The old system gave the University access to WATTS lines, which are considered to be "cheaper" than New York Telephone's lines. "When they are switched, the University will be aggressively looking for what amount we can save," said Neveu. New York Telephone officials interviewed said members plan to see the rate differences and make the decision not to change the local telephone services implementation.

There is the possibility to "include the University into either system" if New York Telephone's line increase enough so to make the CONTEL system economical, said Neveu.

The launch of "in line" linking the new systems and the implications in order to get economical phone service, were by the end of October, Neveu.

According to Pelto, S.A.'s initiative has been "well-received by CONTEL representatives," and they are actively seeking out new locations to add to their network. CONTEL is a subsidiary of New York Telephone Company, which acquired the New England Telephone Company in 1982.

"We have been contacted by CONTEL representatives," said Pelto. "They are interested in expanding their service into the Albany area." CONTEL's main goal is to provide service for business and residential customers.

According to CONTEL, their main focus is to provide service to the local community. They are currently looking for ways to expand their service to other areas of the country.

The new telephone system also saves the University money on long distance calls, said Neveu. "The University has access to WATTS lines, provided discount rates for long distance calls," said Neveu. "We are currently negotiating with CONTEL to obtain the best rates possible for the University's phone service."

The University's current phone system will be replaced with the new CONTEL system, which is expected to be installed within the next two weeks.

Campbell is the king of chess at Albany

By Marc Berman

Campbell, a senior and member of the Suny Albany Chess Club, has earned the title of 'candidate master' — also termed the status of 'candidate master' — also termed as a 'provisional master who dropped by Albany to present a series to the Danes, who have a 2-0 record so far this season.

Former Student Association Vice President Bob Lordley, who has coached the Danes since 1980, said Campbell's point total exceeds 2199. "If Campbell's point total exceeds 2199, she's a candidate master," he said. "If she gets more, she could be a candidate master in the next few years. The title is almost certain to be hers."

Campbell's career has included a number of notable achievements, including a title as the World Chess Champion in 1978. She has also won numerous tournaments and has held various positions in chess organizations. Campbell is a member of the World Chess Federation, and has been an active member of the Suny Albany Chess Club for many years.

Campbell's success in chess has been due in large part to her dedication and hard work. She has always been a serious competitor, and has put in many hours of practice to improve her skills. Campbell has also been a valuable mentor to other players, and has helped many up-and-coming chess players develop their own style.

Campbell's achievement is a testament to the power of hard work and dedication, and serves as an inspiration to all who wish to pursue excellence in their own fields. Her success is a reminder that with passion and perseverance, any goal is within reach.
Gibbons shines for crew at Empire State Regatta

By Marc Herman

Albany State crew member Marianne Gibbons was the biggest star at this year's Empire State Regatta, which was held on Lake George, New York. Gibbons, a senior, had an outstanding performance, leading her team to a 15-6-1 record and a national title.

"We were very happy for her," said her coach, Longhi. "She took first place in her event last year and this year she showed her potential to go even further."

In the first race, Gibbons won the Women's Single event, setting a new course record. She then went on to win the Women's Double event, helping her team to a 15-6-1 record.

"It was like a homecoming," said Longhi. "We rowed in the Hudson River, which is something we haven't done before."

Gibbons' performance was not only important for her team, but also for herself. "It was a great experience for me," she said. "I'm really proud of what we've accomplished as a team."
