A Ticket, a Tassel, a Typical Basket

By ELLERY BUCK

I have been fascinated reading an article from the New York Times about a woman who, after discovering her voice, took up painting and ended up creating a beautiful basket. She learned a new skill and was able to open her own business. It's inspiring to see how people can overcome challenges and discover new passions.

The list of articles like this one I’ve mentioned is endless. It seems like there’s always a new story about someone who has found their passion or changed their life. I’ve been thinking about this a lot lately, and I wonder if there are any similar stories from students or alumni of Crows Hill.

I asked my friend, who is also a student here, if she has heard of anyone who has done something like this. She told me about a student who started a business selling their own books. It's really cool to see how students can take their interests and turn them into something meaningful.

I think it’s important to remember that we’re all capable of discovering new passions and changing our lives. It just takes some curiosity and a willingness to try new things.

The more I think about this, the more I realize that we’re all capable of finding our own paths. The key is to stay open to new experiences and be willing to explore our interests.

I’m excited to see what the future holds for us all. Maybe one day we’ll all be able to look back on the stories like this and see how much we’ve grown and changed.
WEATHER SUFFERS AN IDENTITY CRISIS

SUNYA Has Its Head in the Clouds

By MARK P. GREENSTEIN

Three leading SUNYA Atmospheric Science professors - Dr. Raymonde C. Piertou, Dr. Harry Robinson, and Dr. Joseph S. Pielke Jr. - have been studying the effects of cloud cover on the weather. Their research is focused on understanding how clouds affect the climate and how climate change may be altering cloud patterns.

(A.P) It snowed in Florida and the Ohio River froze over in Chicago, when temperatures dipped to a record 23 below 0°F. Sunday. National Geographic photographer and wildlife expert Dr. Fred McDonald argues that climate change is affecting the weather patterns across the country.

(A.P) Endurance swimming, a theme from the days of oceangoing ships, was started recently in the Maldives. Ionian and Tunisian waters were never colder maintained its grip. Keepers of this ancient tradition called navigators with ice, severely hampering traffic on the high seas. The weather satellite images show that the Ohio, Mississippi and Missouri rivers and the Ohio River have frozen for the first time since 1933. The federal government is considering closing the Great Lakes to shipping for the first time in 275 years.

It's insane...we don't understand it.

While snow fell over all of the state, with other parts of Florida getting hit with heavy snow. The snow covered many of the state's highways and caused travel delays. A few schools in northeastern Florida had to close due to the weather conditions.

Mississippi Freezes

Miami AM - A Miami-area resident woke to "frothy ice" on the radio and the atmosphere was very cold and still. It was the first day of winter in the state of Florida since 1977-78 when 27 million bushels of corn were harvested.

Mississippi AM - towns in western Mississippi were covered with snow. The snowfall was light, but it was enough to disrupt daily activities. In the Jackson area, schools were closed due to the weather conditions.

Fuel Shortages Close Schools

Many of New York State's biggest urban school districts were closed because of stormy weather or power outages. The state estimates that at least 3,000 students were impacted mid-school day.

Schools Close

Most of the districts in central and western New York, where supplies of two gas companies were cut off, were closed due to the severe weather. In Buffalo, the city's schools were closed due to a snowstorm. In Rochester, the city's schools were closed due to heavy snow.

We keep on waiting for the snow to stop. We have a lot of work to do, but we can't do anything with the weather.

We have not received any snow for many parts of Dade County, Miami," said Glenn Swelshoff of the National Service. He said it's a law now on the official station, so it won't go on the record books. "We got an advisory to rain to the line that had the most snow ever, said Swelshoff, "but it's not that bad." The city of Miami Beach stopped its series of news radio shows during severe weather conditions at Miami Beach as a way of helping people stay safe.

The snow has been very heavy for much of the state. Many schools in the north and west have been closed.

We are not going to feel this snow for a long time. We have to be prepared for the next storm.

Weather officials in Miami were warning about the possibility of flash floods and mudslides. They issued a flash flood watch for the Miami-Dade area as of 5 p.m. EST.

The city of Miami Beach stopped its snow emergency plan after the city's schools were closed due to the heavy snowfall. The city's schools were closed due to the heavy snowfall.

ASCAP, Campus Center 329

Dear Professor,

As you may try to pay attention that due to the lack of space, there is an attempt to "send you" a news article by a number of students on the School of Business. Therefore, I would like to make a point that if you are new to the topic of the economy, you may question the question of the economy, and it is not going to be answered by the article. However, I would not like to be held responsible for what you may not have understood. Please let me know if you would be interested in this topic, and I would be willing to sign a contract sending me to your request.

Carter Takes the High Road

by David Togner

An elderly gentleman once told me that the longer we progress down the road of life, the more complex will become our problems and the more complex the solutions. I somehow get an understanding of this statement as I watched Jimmy Carter present his detailed agenda on the floor of the House of Representatives on Monday. My interest was peaked when he articulated in the House the difficulties and the opportunities that he saw in the world today.

I think it is important for our leaders to be aware of the world today, and to understand the problems that we face as a nation. Mr. Carter has clearly articulated his vision for the future of our country, and I believe that we should support him in his efforts to address these issues.
