Black Politics: A Lesson

By Dr. Reginald H. Gough

Dr. Gough once was the 1970 New York City State Senator, who was elected by the aggressive and successful Black Voters of the city. Dr. Gough is known to have an active interest in the political arena and is often discussed in the press due to his dynamic presence and effective communication skills.

Black Politics, as an aspect of the political arena, is a complex and multifaceted phenomenon. The political landscape is characterized by the interplay of various factors, including race, class, gender, and identity, which together shape the political agenda and influence the decision-making process. Black Politics involves the struggles and aspirations of African Americans, who seek to assert their voice and influence in the political system.

The political arena is a forum where power is exercised and decisions are made. It is a place where ideas compete, and where individuals and groups strive to have their viewpoints heard and their interests represented. Black Politics is an essential component of this arena, as it reflects the unique experiences and perspectives of African Americans, who have historically faced systemic oppression and discrimination.

The success of Black Politics depends on various factors, including the ability of Black leaders to mobilize their constituents, the effectiveness of their communication strategies, and the willingness of political allies to support their cause. Black Politics also involves the struggle for representation, as Black leaders seek to achieve equitable access to political power and opportunity.

In conclusion, Black Politics is a critical aspect of the political arena, one that requires a nuanced understanding of the complex interplay of historical, social, and economic factors. To fully grasp the significance of Black Politics, it is essential to recognize its role in shaping our political landscape and to acknowledge the struggles and achievements of Black leaders in the pursuit of civil rights and social justice.
New Peace Studies Program Seeks Non-Violent Solutions

by Elizabeth Taylor

Faithful, in a program of peace and reconciliation, has been the motto of SUNYA's Peace Studies Program. And now, the faculty of SUNYA's Peace Studies Program have embarked on a new initiative: a non-violent solutions program. The program aims to explore the causes and effects of violence, and to develop strategies for preventing and resolving conflict. The program is open to students and faculty of all disciplines, and will include courses, workshops, and seminars. The program is designed to foster a culture of non-violence and peacemaking, and to promote understanding and cooperation among people from different backgrounds.

Campus Chest Aids 'Unique Schooling'

Campus Chest of SUNYA began its second year in September with an emphasis on helping students in need. The Campus Chest is a student-run organization that raises funds through various activities, including coffee booster sales, a trivia contest, and a noon hour coffee shop. The funds raised are used to support students, and to provide a variety of services, such as counseling, tutoring, and housing assistance. The Campus Chest is staffed by students, and is run entirely by student volunteers. The goal of the Campus Chest is to support students and to create a sense of community on campus.

Recycling Project Proves Successful

by Linda Wolf

The student recycling program at SUNYA has been embraced by both students and faculty. The program encourages students and faculty to recycle, and to reduce waste. The program is run by a student committee, and is supported by the SUNYA administration. The program has been successful, and has led to a reduction in waste. The program is expected to continue, and to expand in the future.

Spring Contract Not Renegotiated for Russian Prof. Jernakoff

by David Blatt

The SUNYA administration has decided not to renegotiate the contract of Russian professor Jernakoff. The decision was made after a review of the contract, and the administration decided that no changes were necessary. The administration has stated that the decision was made in the best interest of the university, and that the administration believes that Jernakoff is a valuable member of the faculty. Jernakoff has been a member of the SUNYA faculty for many years, and has made significant contributions to the university. The administration has stated that Jernakoff will continue to be a valuable member of the faculty, and that the administration is committed to supporting Jernakoff's work.
average age was 2-1.5 years and the majority of the smokers were "dangerous drug" within the drug culture. The researchers reported that heroin still has the status of a Pot and the AM A [Pot & Copsf Heroin and Youth u,w

Something different lo keep the cramming ot slaying up pusl stomach Irom getting boied you bedtime

sesame seed bun

McDonald's Guide
to the care and feeding of the student body.

Dope Probe

On Tour

IR$ Takes Truck (early news)

HR$ RECabling PROJECT

progress report!

PYE RECYCLING PROJECT

second week:
10,000 cans for the week ending Nov. 7th...
4,000 over our estimate

We'll be moving to Colonial very soon...

keep the cans coming!

Want to help? call 7-4091

peye

Joseph Von Sterberg Film Festival

Friday, Nov. 12
The Devil Is a Woman (1935)
His last film with Dietrich.
7:30 & 9:30 in LC 25 $5.00 with tax card & ID

Saturday, Nov. 13
Morocco (1930) With Dietrich & Gary Cooper
Dishonored (1931)
With Dietrich as Agent X-27
7:30 in LC 18 $5.00 with tax card & ID
ONLY $7.50 FOR BOTH NIGHTS!
Inside History

On Friday, November 12, 1971

editorial comment

Service or Disservice?

In Albany State's Community Service program truly serves, from the Albany Community College, to the N.Y.U. High School of Washington Heights. The senior program, now in its second year, is sponsored by the College of Social Work. The program is run by a member of the Social Work faculty and ten student volunteers. Over the past year the program has been a part of the Urban Community College and its goal is to provide opportunities for students to work with underprivileged youth. The program is designed to allow students to work in community centers, agencies, or in other social welfare agencies.

The desire of the administration to provide work opportunities for students is one of the main reasons for the creation of the Community Service program. Students who participate in the program are able to gain valuable experience in working with children and youth. This experience is beneficial not only to the students but also to the communities they work in. Participating students are also able to learn more about the social welfare system and the challenges that face it.

The program is supported by the College of Social Work and is supervised by the administration. The college provides funding and resources to support the program and the administration provides guidance and support to the students. The program is open to all students who are interested in participating and who meet the eligibility requirements.

The success of the program can be measured by the number of students who participate and the level of their involvement in the communities they work in. The college is committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The program has been well received by the students and the communities they work in. The students have gained valuable experience and the communities have benefited from their work. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in.

The program is an example of the kind of service that is needed in the community. It is a way for students to give back to the community and to learn more about it. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

In summary, the Albany State's Community Service program is a valuable opportunity for students to gain valuable experience and to give back to the community. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.

The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities. The program is a win-win situation for both the students and the communities they work in. The college and the administration are committed to continuing the program and expanding its scope to include more students and more communities.
The Words Of The Prophets Are Written On The...

I'm an empty tin can
With my lid slit open
I'm a rusty juice can
With holes inside of me
I'm feeling no pain
Just counting the rain
As it washes the life from me.

To Do is to Be.
- John S. Mill
To Be is to Do
- Albert Camus

Do Be Do Be Do
Do Be a Do Be

NIXON
6 ROSEMARY'S
BABY

A young woman a girl can share it longer than they can blow on the grass.

Jesus is love
Love is never having to say you're sorry
I'm not sorry
I'm Jesus

Love means having to say you're sorry every 5 minutes
- John F. Kennedy

SUNYA SPELLED BACKWARDS IS...

ATTICA MEANS:
FIGHT BACK!

IF YOU GAVE NIXON AN ENEMA
You could fit him into a shoe box.

Ellis O. 12c00

GOD IS DEAD
- Sam

SAM IS GOD

Great Mens
God doesn't show who is right
only who is left.
November 15, the last home football game with the
GREAT DANES

Dr. Richard Orville

Atmospheric Electricity

refresments served afterward!
CREATION '71, the comic art convention held at New York's Grand Hyatt Hotel (34th Street and 8th Avenue). Sixty years after its founding, the convention has continued to draw large crowds, with admission set at $1.50. Two-hundred dealers are expected to set up booths at the 1971 CONVENTION, which this year will be held in the New York Hilton. Admission is $2.00, and the event is sponsored by the American Comic Art Foundation. The convention, which draws many of the stars of the comic book industry, is considered a must-attend event for serious fans and collectors. The event is held annually in November, and this year's event is scheduled for November 12-14.

Some Vintage Miles

by Harvey Goldblatt

Some Vintage Miles, a vinyl album released in 1964, is the first studio album by Miles Davis, recorded in 1963. The album features the classic Miles Davis quintet, including John Coltrane, Cannonball Adderley, Bill Evans, and Paul Chambers, and was produced by John Coltrane. The album is considered a masterpiece of modern jazz and has been widely praised for its innovative approach to jazz composition and improvisation. The album features a number of compositions that have become jazz standards, including "Miles Ahead," "So What," and "H条例e's That Thing." Miles Davis is considered one of the most influential musicians in the history of jazz, and his work is widely celebrated for its creativity and innovation.

Some Vintage Miles

Some Vintage Miles, a vinyl album released in 1964, is the first studio album by Miles Davis, recorded in 1963. The album features the classic Miles Davis quintet, including John Coltrane, Cannonball Adderley, Bill Evans, and Paul Chambers, and was produced by John Coltrane. The album is considered a masterpiece of modern jazz and has been widely praised for its innovative approach to jazz composition and improvisation. The album features a number of compositions that have become jazz standards, including "Miles Ahead," "So What," and "H条例e's That Thing." Miles Davis is considered one of the most influential musicians in the history of jazz, and his work is widely celebrated for its creativity and innovation.

Some Vintage Miles

Some Vintage Miles, a vinyl album released in 1964, is the first studio album by Miles Davis, recorded in 1963. The album features the classic Miles Davis quintet, including John Coltrane, Cannonball Adderley, Bill Evans, and Paul Chambers, and was produced by John Coltrane. The album is considered a masterpiece of modern jazz and has been widely praised for its innovative approach to jazz composition and improvisation. The album features a number of compositions that have become jazz standards, including "Miles Ahead," "So What," and "H条例e's That Thing." Miles Davis is considered one of the most influential musicians in the history of jazz, and his work is widely celebrated for its creativity and innovation.

Some Vintage Miles

Some Vintage Miles, a vinyl album released in 1964, is the first studio album by Miles Davis, recorded in 1963. The album features the classic Miles Davis quintet, including John Coltrane, Cannonball Adderley, Bill Evans, and Paul Chambers, and was produced by John Coltrane. The album is considered a masterpiece of modern jazz and has been widely praised for its innovative approach to jazz composition and improvisation. The album features a number of compositions that have become jazz standards, including "Miles Ahead," "So What," and "H条例e's That Thing." Miles Davis is considered one of the most influential musicians in the history of jazz, and his work is widely celebrated for its creativity and innovation.

Some Vintage Miles

Some Vintage Miles, a vinyl album released in 1964, is the first studio album by Miles Davis, recorded in 1963. The album features the classic Miles Davis quintet, including John Coltrane, Cannonball Adderley, Bill Evans, and Paul Chambers, and was produced by John Coltrane. The album is considered a masterpiece of modern jazz and has been widely praised for its innovative approach to jazz composition and improvisation. The album features a number of compositions that have become jazz standards, including "Miles Ahead," "So What," and "H条例e's That Thing." Miles Davis is considered one of the most influential musicians in the history of jazz, and his work is widely celebrated for its creativity and innovation.

Some Vintage Miles

Some Vintage Miles, a vinyl album released in 1964, is the first studio album by Miles Davis, recorded in 1963. The album features the classic Miles Davis quintet, including John Coltrane, Cannonball Adderley, Bill Evans, and Paul Chambers, and was produced by John Coltrane. The album is considered a masterpiece of modern jazz and has been widely praised for its innovative approach to jazz composition and improvisation. The album features a number of compositions that have become jazz standards, including "Miles Ahead," "So What," and "H条例e's That Thing." Miles Davis is considered one of the most influential musicians in the history of jazz, and his work is widely celebrated for its creativity and innovation.

Some Vintage Miles

Some Vintage Miles, a vinyl album released in 1964, is the first studio album by Miles Davis, recorded in 1963. The album features the classic Miles Davis quintet, including John Coltrane, Cannonball Adderley, Bill Evans, and Paul Chambers, and was produced by John Coltrane. The album is considered a masterpiece of modern jazz and has been widely praised for its innovative approach to jazz composition and improvisation. The album features a number of compositions that have become jazz standards, including "Miles Ahead," "So What," and "H条例e's That Thing." Miles Davis is considered one of the most influential musicians in the history of jazz, and his work is widely celebrated for its creativity and innovation.

Some Vintage Miles

Some Vintage Miles, a vinyl album released in 1964, is the first studio album by Miles Davis, recorded in 1963. The album features the classic Miles Davis quintet, including John Coltrane, Cannonball Adderley, Bill Evans, and Paul Chambers, and was produced by John Coltrane. The album is considered a masterpiece of modern jazz and has been widely praised for its innovative approach to jazz composition and improvisation. The album features a number of compositions that have become jazz standards, including "Miles Ahead," "So What," and "H条例e's That Thing." Miles Davis is considered one of the most influential musicians in the history of jazz, and his work is widely celebrated for its creativity and innovation.

Some Vintage Miles

Some Vintage Miles, a vinyl album released in 1964, is the first studio album by Miles Davis, recorded in 1963. The album features the classic Miles Davis quintet, including John Coltrane, Cannonball Adderley, Bill Evans, and Paul Chambers, and was produced by John Coltrane. The album is considered a masterpiece of modern jazz and has been widely praised for its innovative approach to jazz composition and improvisation. The album features a number of compositions that have become jazz standards, including "Miles Ahead," "So What," and "H条例e's That Thing." Miles Davis is considered one of the most influential musicians in the history of jazz, and his work is widely celebrated for its creativity and innovation.

Some Vintage Miles

Some Vintage Miles, a vinyl album released in 1964, is the first studio album by Miles Davis, recorded in 1963. The album features the classic Miles Davis quintet, including John Coltrane, Cannonball Adderley, Bill Evans, and Paul Chambers, and was produced by John Coltrane. The album is considered a masterpiece of modern jazz and has been widely praised for its innovative approach to jazz composition and improvisation. The album features a number of compositions that have become jazz standards, including "Miles Ahead," "So What," and "H条例e's That Thing." Miles Davis is considered one of the most influential musicians in the history of jazz, and his work is widely celebrated for its creativity and innovation.

Some Vintage Miles

Some Vintage Miles, a vinyl album released in 1964, is the first studio album by Miles Davis, recorded in 1963. The album features the classic Miles Davis quintet, including John Coltrane, Cannonball Adderley, Bill Evans, and Paul Chambers, and was produced by John Coltrane. The album is considered a masterpiece of modern jazz and has been widely praised for its innovative approach to jazz composition and improvisation. The album features a number of compositions that have become jazz standards, including "Miles Ahead," "So What," and "H条例e's That Thing." Miles Davis is considered one of the most influential musicians in the history of jazz, and his work is widely celebrated for its creativity and innovation.

Some Vintage Miles

Some Vintage Miles, a vinyl album released in 1964, is the first studio album by Miles Davis, recorded in 1963. The album features the classic Miles Davis quintet, including John Coltrane, Cannonball Adderley, Bill Evans, and Paul Chambers, and was produced by John Coltrane. The album is considered a masterpiece of modern jazz and has been widely praised for its innovative approach to jazz composition and improvisation. The album features a number of compositions that have become jazz standards, including "Miles Ahead," "So What," and "H条例e's That Thing." Miles Davis is considered one of the most influential musicians in the history of jazz, and his work is widely celebrated for its creativity and innovation.
Jews in the New Left

With the advent of a few right-wing Jewish nationalist groups lauding ancient Jewish holydays, many of us in the left who are Jewish and want to be Jewish must reassess who we are and what we stand for. We should not be afraid of intellectual diversity and change, but rather allow ourselves to be challenged. We must think carefully about what Jewish nationalism means and how it is to be implemented and operated. We must also critically examine the relationship between Judaism and the state, and the role of the state in the promotion of Jewish culture and identity.

One of the big issues, besides keeping the "Jewish" (capitalist) state in control, is the establishment of some kind of Jewish democracy or self-governance. Jews should not be afraid of a democratic process, but rather should work towards it, although probably not in a nationalistic manner, with all the implications and problems of such a process. I feel that Jewish nationalism in order to be successful in the fight for Jewish rights, must be able to attract people from all walks of life, both Jews and non-Jews, to its cause. The main obstacle to this is the refusal of the Jewish establishment to recognize the rights of the non-Jewish peoples to self-determination and freedom.

Many Jews are also afraid of the idea of a Jewish state or the establishment of a Jewish country. They fear that such a state or country would be undemocratic, authoritarian, and oppressive. They also fear that it would lead to the denial of the civil and political rights of non-Jewish peoples. I believe that these fears are unfounded, and that a Jewish state or country could be democratic and respect the rights of all peoples. It would also be possible to have Jewish cultural and religious autonomy without it leading to the oppression of non-Jewish peoples.

In summary, I believe that Jewish nationalism is a necessary step towards the establishment of a just and democratic world. It is not a solution in itself, but it is a necessary step towards the realization of a world where all peoples have the right to self-determination and freedom. I believe that Jews should not be afraid of a Jewish state or country, but rather should welcome it, as it would be a step towards the realization of a just and democratic world.
Albany Student Press

PAGE 16

Friday, November 12, 1971

---

Blacks Recruited For Law Careers

by Albert Thompson

The Council of Legal Education Opportunity is a program designed for minority students who are interested in the law career. Dr. Raymond E. Gilmore Jr., President of American University in Washington, was the Regional Representative of the Council of Legal Education Opportunity.

In 1970, the Council helped place over 100 Black students into law schools and established the program. The definition is increased opportunity is openness, though as present, Blacks are only 0.3% of the people of the United States. The first recruiting classes of substantial numbers of Black students will be this year, with many more working toward the goal. The NAACP Legal Defense Fund Intern Program is one of the most successful programs. The program, which has been operating in the legal community, offers financial assistance to Black students who have a goal of becoming attorneys and who meet the criteria.

---

Student Dollars Cover FSA Losses

An ASP Feature

SUNYA Students Involved in Alleged Senate Scandal

Alby Scilla

This is a story about absenteeism, cheating, and general dishonesty in the student government, as well as the inter-relationship that exists between the student government and the faculty and administration.

---

The FSA Story (Part Five):

Vol. LVIII No. 54

Albany Student Press

State University of New York at Albany

Tuesday, November 16, 1971

---

FOOD SERVICE

BOOKSTORE

HOUSING

AUXILIARY SERVICES

VENDING

---

The Campus Center has lost money since the day we opened it.

---

The final tally shows FSA as being $338,487.39 in the red.

---

Every quadrangle dining hall has made a steady profit over the last three years...