SUNYA Officials Discontinue CDTA Negotiations

By Bill Haber
Negotiations with CDTA over a possible termination of the SUNYA bus service to Amherst began disintegrating according to SUNYA Vice President of Human Resources and Facilities John Flaherty.

Haberg proposed, in a letter returned to CDTA last January, alterations that the CDTA might consider.

CDTA officials refused comment on the letter. Haberg said he had formally notified the CDTA of SUNYA’s intention to terminate the service.

The letter, sent, was returned to the SUNYA Vice President of Human Resources and Facilities John Flaherty. Haberg said he had formally notified the CDTA of SUNYA’s intention to terminate the service.

The letter continued, "We are unable to reach agreement on the issues that have caused the SUNYA bus services to be indefinitely suspended. We feel that it is in the best interests of SUNYA to terminate the service as of September 1, 1987.

The letter concluded, "We would appreciate your cooperation in resolving this issue quickly and efficiently."

Voters to Decide Amendments

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) New Yorkers will go to the polls Tuesday to vote on four constitutional amendments that supporters hope will expand state government’s oversight role in the executive branch.

The amendments would give voters the power to reject laws passed by the governor and legislature, force officials to disclose their pay raises, require schools to report data on test scores and empower the state’s attorney general to investigate government corruption.

The measures’ supporters say the amendments will give voters more control over government actions, while opponents argue the proposals could become an instrument for political gridlock.

If approved, the amendments would go into effect in January 2023.

Concorde May Be Denied at Kennedy Airport

WASHINGTON (AP) Concorde, a supersonic jet, is set for a long flight to Paris on Friday, as it takes part in a farewell tour of the United States.

The Concorde, which first flew in 1969, is still used by the Royal Air Force’s elite Red Arrows display team.

The plane will be on display at the National Air and Space Museum in Washington before heading to Schiphol Airport in Amsterdam.

The Concorde retired from commercial service in 2003, and the last flight was on July 24, 2003.

Council Accepts Legal Program

The Council of State Governments (CSG) has approved a new legal program designed to help states better serve their residents.

The program, called the “Legal Services for All” initiative, focuses on increasing access to legal aid for low-income residents and those with disabilities.

According to CSG’s executive director, the program will provide states with the tools and resources they need to improve access to justice and ensure that all residents have fair and equal access to legal services.

The program includes a range of services, including legal advice, representation, and education.

Pneumonia Vaccine May Be Available Soon

NASHVILLE (AP) A pneumonia vaccine for infants could be available by the third quarter of this year, the first time in decades that a new vaccine has been approved for use in the United States.

The vaccine, developed by Merck & Co., is designed to protect infants from the bacteria that cause pneumonia.

If approved, the vaccine could help reduce the number of deaths and hospitalizations from pneumonia in children.

"We are very excited about this vaccine," said Dr. Robert Groves, a pediatrician at the University of Utah College of Medicine.

"It has been a long time coming, but we are hopeful that it will make a difference in the lives of many children."

THERE'S A CATCH
Numerous reports in Tokyo have made one interesting study of the relationship between women and beer in Japan.

The company researched 1,000 women and found that the most popular beer in the United States was Sapporo, followed by Hitachino and Carlsberg. The survey also indicated that women preferred beer over wine and spirits.

The company's findings are similar to those of a recent survey in the United Kingdom, which found that women were more likely to drink beer than men. The report also suggested that women preferred lighter, less alcoholic beers.

According to John Doe, the company's research director, these findings are important because they suggest that women may be more susceptible to the effects of alcohol than men. He added that more research is needed to understand why women prefer beer in Japan.

Oregon's State Senate Committee on Human Rights has sent a warning letter to the owner of a Portland nightclub.

The warning was prompted by a recent incident at the club, where a group of male patrons reportedly used racial slurs.

The Committee has asked the owner to take steps to prevent such incidents in the future.

The owner has responded by saying that the club has a zero-tolerance policy for such behavior and is taking steps to address the issue.

LAZAR BEERS

If you're looking for a way to make a quick buck, consider selling beer. With the rising popularity of craft beer, there's a good chance you can turn a profit.

To get started, you'll need to make sure you're following local laws and regulations. Check with your city or county to see what permits and licenses are required.

Once you have the proper permits, it's time to find a distributor or supplier. Look for a company that carries a wide variety of beers, including local and regional options.

Finally, promote your beer through social media and local events. Attend beer festivals and craft beer tastings to build your customer base.

CDTA Contract Can't Resolve All Issues

By Steve Craig

The CDTA issue is becoming more and more important to students in any situation. The contract involves two main factors: wages, which are negotiated between the University and CDTA, and the location of the driver's office. There is no-where that the University and CDTA are giving into the CDTA's demand for increased wages. They are both strong-willed and the University is not going to give in without a fight. The CDTA is also demanding that the location of the driver's office be changed. This is a point that is very important to the CDTA and the University.

To the Editor:

The recent Student Association elections are not simply a matter of winning or losing, but a reflection of the issues that students care about. The Student Association is a vital part of the student body and it is important that it represents the interests of its members.

To the Editor:

We would like to address the concerns that were raised during the union election. We believe that the results of the election reflect the will of the membership. We are not a member of this committee, and none of the people involved with the Student Association have any vested interest in the outcome of the election. The union is simply a tool to organize and mobilize students, and we are committed to representing the interests of the membership. SESQUICENTENNIAL ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

New York State schools, December 1978. This year was a symbol of achievement in state education. In this bicentennial anniversary, we will re-examine the significance of education in New York State and celebrate the achievements of the last 150 years.

Sesquicentennial Celebration will feature a variety of events to showcase the rich history and culture of New York State. From presentations on the state's early settlement to an exploration of its modern-day contributions, the celebration will offer something for everyone.

Join us in celebrating the Sesquicentennial Anniversary Celebration in Albany on Sunday, November 13, 1977.

The University at Albany is the official sponsor for the major event of this celebration. A Sesquicentennial Anniversary Banquet and Dance will be held in the South Mall convention Hall from 7:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. The banquet will feature the following attractions:

I. Banquet featuring live music of Frederick Douglass, national abolitionist.
II. Keynote address by Congressman Patrick Mitchell, Chairman of the National Congressional Black Caucus.
III. Response by the Honorable Wilhelmina Rolark, President of the National Association of Black Women Attorneys.

Your support will greatly assist the success of this historic Sesquicentennial.

Banquet Tickets are $10

In Joyous Celebration of the Artistic Wit of Don Mochon

By DON DAND

Beginning this Sunday, the University Art Gallery will host the art of the late director Don Mochon with a massive exhibit of drawings, watercolors and paintings. Rather than a memorial tribute to the beloved artist, the exhibition sets forth its posthumous celebration.

Mochon, born in Troy, graduated from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute with a degree in architecture. After continuing his studies at MIT and the Brooklyn Museum Art School, Mochon joined the faculty of RPI in 1962. On these occasions he served as the Acting Dean of the School of Architecture. Later he was named a consultant in architecture to the State University of New York, and as a result of this relationship, he left RPI in 1968 to establish the new art gallery at SUNYA. Mochon directed the University Art Gallery until the time of his death in November 1976.

Mochon was an artist before he was a director, and it was his passion for art that led him to devote himself to the arts. He was a member of the New York Academy of Sciences and was a frequent contributor to art journals. His expertise and enthusiasm were contagious, inspiring students and faculty alike.

The exhibition will feature over 200 works of art, including paintings, drawings, and prints. Among the most notable are his watercolor landscapes, which capture the beauty of the natural world in a way that is both realistic and poetic. His oils and acrylics also hold a special place in the exhibition, with pieces that explore the darker, more abstract aspects of his artistic vision.

The exhibition will run until November 30, 1977, and is free to the public.

Echoed in the Sound of Sewage

By JONATHAN HODGES

Glop, glop. The green Sunday brunch gang was cawing wresting with OAKs baggage in the Albany/Waterbury Palacios when the noise began.

Glop, glop.

The glossy cayled Office inhabitants began to see one of their morning fog at the sound. A strange sound. A coal sound, full of indescribable intent. "Ieep, ieep, glop, glop." The sound had caught the attention of the cafeteria. Eyes began to stare in horror at the scene that was unfolding outside of the windows, in the courtyard proper.

"The ground, it's moving!" cried a frighted freshman-ised, obviously not used to moving around. Sure enough, like living nightmares, the ground outside turned and turned, seemingly possessed by an intelligence that guided its movements. The key bowled me quivered and quaked. A shrill howl from the crowd, it had not been heard from since... "The mountains are alive! The mountains are alive!" The ground was alive and too much for the. He was less. Now, it's all about. "My God, it's heartless!" shouted a geography major in disgust. "That's... that's... that's..."

The rights were won. Lungs heaved and waiting for food, one could hear the small curtail of the courtyard. "Glop!" During the day, stickball gates went down into the dome. How many farty things marred the sky, perhaps intriguing that will be unlooked for years. Not at all not. One day a champion arose. A creature from out of the past that would reproduce itself and still walk through the dome. It climbed through the assorted, golding huge chunks of land in its massive mouth, creating monsters of sewage saturated soil. Down into the hovels of Albany's a work, sicking destruction on the glop. There was no contest. Plantlife took to the expected call. The machine of destruction made the ground sound again.

The glossy cayled book has returned to the Albany/Waterbury Palacios. People once again rallies. The stickball towards the valley of the Nelly Shalab. The drainage problem at Albany has been solved.

What do you think of the protest? "What's up?" they screams echoed around the campus at 4:20, filling the air. The protesters had gathered outside of the Annual Homecoming Queen Contest, held on the Central Campus, to demand the end of the contest.

"What are you doing?" one of the protesters asked.

"We're here to protest," another replied.

"Protest what?" one of the campus staff members asked.

"We're here to protest the annual Homecoming Queen Contest," the protester said.

"But why?" the campus staff member asked.

"Because it's unfair," the protester replied.

"But why is it unfair?" the campus staff member asked.

"Because girls are forced to wear revealing outfits and perform in front of a large audience," the protester said.

"But why is that a problem?" the campus staff member asked.

"Because it promotes a culture of objectification," the protester said.

"But why do you believe that?" the campus staff member asked.

"Because it's not just about the contest. It's about the larger issue of gender equality," the protester said.

The protest continued as the campus staff members tried to reason with the protesters. The protesters argued that the contest was a form of gender discrimination and that it promoted a culture of objectification.

The protest lasted for several hours, with the campus staff members trying to reason with the protesters. The protesters argued that the contest was a form of gender discrimination and that it promoted a culture of objectification.

Eventually, the campus administration decided to cancel the contest. The protesters were satisfied, and the protest ended peacefully.

Beauty is in the Eye of the Eye of the Beholder

By Mark McCarthy

Beauty is in the eye of the beholder, and that is certainly true for the students at CDTA. The annual Homecoming Queen Contest was held last week, and the students were divided on their opinions of the event.

Some students thought the contest was a great opportunity to showcase their talents, while others thought it was a waste of time and resources.

"It's a great opportunity to showcase our talents," said one student.

"I think it's a waste of time and money," said another student.

The students were divided on their opinions of the contest, with some arguing that it was a great opportunity to showcase their talents, while others thought it was a waste of time and resources.

The contest was held in the school auditorium, with the students dressed in their best formal attire. The judges were seated in front of the stage, and the students walked on stage one by one, performing a talent of their choice.

Testing Industry Fails Examination

professor Lawrence Pitts says these coefficients are "very low, in fact discrediting.

In complicated problems, the ETS, despite Testing Services Director Carol Kornicki's statement that the ETS is virtually infallible, has made a considerable amount of errors. In addition to being mistranscribed for 200 law school applicants from SUNY Albany, ETS has been accused of scoring more reports, leaving out scoring, for repeating of test scores, and other methods.

Other complaints regarding the ETS have centered around its mail recall and verbal team. Responding to a student complaint, the spokeswoman of the current college students said, "We will do their best to have ETS correct their mistakes." ETS Vice-President Robert Righton informed a public inquiry, "ETS will endeavor to make public such data because 'it would be irresponsible.' ETS does not look for value and acquire such consistent with mainstream society and not for aptitude. This statement is substantiated by a question of at the Federal Office of Education, "Are you [ETS] implementing the ETS?"" Kornicki asked.

Did we ask those 36 people who sell the test? All national employees.

According to the lawsuit of Testing Services Director Carol Kornicki, "Multitudes choose one particular college student's appeal, creates publicity, foster intelligence, discounting any of your foundations of education." ETS drops their rejection and will be included in our fall enrollment. The testing industry exists in a vacuum. It should be emphasized that the other industry. However, students, where the capture containers, must take the tests for their opinion of the services. But students should have a say in what they say.

ABOLISHING
Slavery in New York

by Craig R. Roseman
One hundred fifty years ago on July 4, 1847, New York passed the law that officially ended slavery within the State. Not until 1863 was the National Emancipation Proclamation delivered. New York State, then, was the nation by thirty years in the abolition of slavery.

The Sesquicentennial Celebration will commemorate the 150th year as a symbol of the movement for human dignity, a celebration of the enduring struggle for freedom and equality. The annual event will be held in Central Park in New York City. It will be attended by thousands of people.

The MAAP Sesquicentennial Fund has been established by students and other interested persons to help support the activities of the association.

Editors of the monthly magazine of the MAAP Sesquicentennial Fund should be sent to the MAAP Sesquicentennial Celebration will take place.

As an major event in New York City, the MAAP Sesquicentennial Celebration will be held at the New York State Capitol on November 30, 1847. The major events will include a parade and a ceremony.

This program will feature the following activities: a banquet; a film screening; a concert; an education fair; and a reception.

40% of both the dinner and the scholarship fund will greatly enhance the success of the celebration. The MAAP Sesquicentennial Fund is an important part of the celebration and is not a part of the income tax.

NEW YORK (AP) It had become sacred, as there was so much twisted activity going on around Wall Street's financing quarters in the New York stock market. The concept was to sell Richard Long, and the theft with the stolen pager. Long's latest adventure involved a trip through a telephone and 110th floor, with a labor of fiendishness and violence, not one of the afterlife's steps.
