Intramural Debate

The Intramural Debate Bureau recently conducted a debate between groups of freshmen and seniors. The seniors successfully coped with a principal’s point made by the freshmen. The contest was held in the library on February 11.

The students will be divided into classes before, and may become eligible by attending classes for the present session. The seniors, who have received a rush bid, need not attend one of their classes, and see the rush bid as something not in the line of business. They must be an equal number of seniors and juniors.

The rush bid will have to be approved by the freshmen, who will act as prospective members of the classes. They must be an equal number of seniors and juniors. They have been received by the judges, some of whom were Miss Grace Martin, instructor in art, Miss Eunice Perine, instructor in art, and Mr. Charles Ruoff, head of the music department.

MUST SUCH THINGS BE?

Few things can arouse our "dander" as much as the cliques that are common in the social life at college. Too often the student is induced to sign a permit by a principal for a position, decided in the negative by the director, or in the acceptance by a small group of students, and too often they are permitted to influence the minds of others. A principal position is just as much a party position as any other. The student should take up the burden of debate and make a public protest against such practices.

STATE'S STAGE

As an evening's entertainment, the three plays presented Tuesday night at the Greek Theatre were quite successful. The most outstanding was the original play, "The Man of State," which was varied in choice of plays, and in acting and production. "Drama" was quite a letdown, but "The Man of State" gave a perfect example of the work of the Drama and Arts association.
