Progress Is...

Time and true again we have been critical of many acute of State College, we would like to take the opportunity to indicate some of the most important changes that have been made in the past few months. Among these, the most important is the implementation of a new and improved schedule. This will help us to achieve better results in the future.

Question...

Myth is so tricky anymore. In the past, the senior class has been held in high esteem by the student body as a whole, but it seems that this is no longer the case. Although it may be true that the senior class is not as involved as it was in the past, this does not mean that it is not as important. The senior class is actually more important now, because it is currently the focus of the most attention. The senior class is currently being used as a way to promote the image of the college, and as such, it is crucial to the college's success.

One Man's Opinion

By LLOYD SEYMOUR

Don't ask about student government. Perhaps one of the basic things that the student government should do is spend more time on the college budget. The student government has a budget of $1,000,000, and it is the responsibility of the student government to see that this money is used effectively. The student government should also be more involved in the decision-making process of the college.

The problem is obvious: the student government is not involved in the decision-making process. It is the responsibility of the student government to see that the money is used effectively. The student government should also be more involved in the decision-making process of the college.

Communications

By the Editor

I read the first issue of the Park School News last week and was very impressed. The Park School News is a fine example of good communication. Each issue contains a variety of topics, and the articles are well written. I hope that the Park School News continues to be a valuable resource for the Park School community.
Students Should Understand Government - Then Revise

By Robert DiBella

Each week the Student Senate, and its constituent legislative bodies, deliberates and votes on a host of issues that affect the student body and the college community. As students, we are expected to attend these meetings, voice our opinion, ask questions, and participate in the decision-making process. Yet, many students do not take advantage of this opportunity, either due to lack of interest or simply not knowing how to engage in the process.

An interesting question is: if students do not understand the workings of the college government, and therefore do not take part in its decision-making, how are they going to advocate for their needs and desires? How will they ensure that their voices are heard and their concerns addressed? It is crucial for students to have a clear understanding of how the college is governed, what their role is in that governance, and how they can effectively participate in the decision-making process.

One way to boost student involvement is to hold open forums where students can learn about the college government, ask questions, and receive feedback from those in charge. Another way is to hold workshops or seminars that teach students about the college’s policies and procedures, and how they can influence them.

We encourage all students to attend the Senate meetings and voice their opinions. By doing so, we can ensure that our voices are heard and our needs are met. After all, we are the ones who will be affected by the decisions made, and it is our responsibility to advocate for ourselves.
Harvey, Bosomworth To Lead '58 Peds; Leathy Most Valuable

By DAVE MILLER

A triumphant season for State ended two weeks ago at the hands of mighty Syracuse. And so, when the program's champions and other key individuals met for a final meeting of the year, they were both exultant and exhausted. The veterans knew the program had climbed its highest peak in over a decade and the rookies knew that the time had come to look ahead to next year's promise. The program's leaders met and elected the captains who will succeed the hard-charging co-captains for wrestling next year.

Bosomworth and Wayne Harvey, along with Ozzie Leahy, when they named Mayer and Hill Cummins, indicated the program had been successfully turned over to the next generation.

Ridge Ties For Bowling Lead; Eight Keglers Top "500" Circle

As the season drew to a close last week, Ridge Hyde, Don Bearden, and Dick Reuterdahl tore into the records book at Page Gym to become the third individuals to top the "500" circle. Hyde, Bearden, and Reuterdahl all reached the 500 mark before the season's end. Hyde, who has a total of 516 points, is the only man to score a full 1,000 points in the season. The second leading bowler was Bearden, who has 497 points, and Reuterdahl, who has 485 points. The third man to reach the 500 mark was Don Mayer, who has 478 points.
