Peds Boot Game Away To RPI; Ten Errors Recorded by Albany

At Annual Awards Banquet

By John Panos

Tuesday afternoon, the Peds played host to RPI and went down to defeat, 8-2. The rattle around twin runs in the fourth inning and two unearned runs, and three in the fifth. State's two runs came in the bottom of the eighth. RPI was threatening earlier in the contest when Albany committed a double play according to the threat. However, a stolen base, two hits and some poor playing allowed two runs to score. In the third inning, with two men on base, a mile-marked an attempted pickoff at first allowed two more runs to score.

To the RPI, State had only one error, a field error by Ken O'Brien in the first inning. These hits allowed the RPI to score as many runs as the Peds. Ten errors were committed by Albany, giving the RPI an edge in this contest. The Peds committed two errors in each of the first two innings.

The State bench was upset at the errors recorded by the team. The final tally was 8-2, and the Peds were down for the count.

TROUBLE WITH THE SENTENCE

The sentence is not clear due to the missing context. It appears to be a sports-related context, possibly discussing a baseball game or an error in a sports game. However, without additional information, it is difficult to provide a complete and accurate representation of the natural text.
Library Facilities Needed

In two weeks another round of final exams will be upon us. There will be a burst of pressure and last-minute situations, of the natural phenomenon called student study sessions. We do not know how.

To say that the dormitories are ready to receive the student is to say that the warmness in student study sessions is still needed to be warm. The checkout of rooms in the dormitories is the only solution to the problem.

The paramount commodity that one sees during the exam period is a quiet and solitary place to study. With limited space in the dormitories, facilities provided many, the library remains one of the only solutions to the problem.

The library is open during the day, and open until ten o'clock. However, finally bringing an end to the library is on Saturdays. Since the library is closed at 10 p.m. on Fridays, space is put at a premium.

We would hope that for at least the two weeks involved in the final exam period the Hawley Library will remain open until ten o'clock. We are sure that the facilities that the library is needed for during those most crucial two weeks.

Dippikill Referendum

We hate to resurrect old issues, but we feel that it is time once again to discuss our fellow student, the Dippikill Referendum. As a reminder, a referendum was held to see if the dorm would be available to students during the exam period.

As far as clearing up the buildings, the only solution to the problem is to make sure that students are aware of the time limit. It is an easy matter for the night watchman to quickly check for any strange activity in the building. Daytime use of empty rooms is ordinary and frequent, and these rooms are available in all dormitories.

The results of having such a referendum still remain in doubt. We freely admit that Dippikill is in no way a central part of a major party. However, the principle involved is a precedent in so doing. We hope that this will serve as an example.
