In the fall 2013 semester, UAlbany expanded its facilities at large in the United States. Scott Birge, the director of Campus Construction and Development, explained that the lounge will have a full-service Starbucks. He hopes that there will be a lounge to the Assembly Hall,” Birge said. “The bottom floor of the building will be open with a game area, and the area that was originally supposed to be the men’s and family bathroom will be transformed into something else entirely. Bathrooms will be added near that area, preparing the kitchen and making sure everything is ready for the grand opening. Architecturally, he said the building is already the process of opening could take two to three months. The new addition will have a special place for ethnic food. Southeast Asian cuisine company Star Ginger has been confirmed for this location. There will be three separate styles of food. Star Ginger won the bid for the ‘fast casual’ segment, it’s a noodle bowl and it’s got your more typical Asian fare. Everything, I mean, a food bowl, you get a noodle bowl and you get four more typical Asian food bowls. On the other hand, the company Star Ginger has been confirmed for this location. There will be three separate styles of food. Star Ginger won the bid for the ‘fast casual’ segment, it’s a noodle bowl and it’s got your more typical Asian fare. Everything, I mean, a food bowl, you get a noodle bowl and it’s got four more typical Asian food bowls.

The area that was originally supposed to be the men’s and family bathroom will be transformed into something else entirely. “The top part is now going to be a waiting room that will be a little larger than the Assembly Hall,” Birge said. “The bottom part is going to be a lounge,” Birge explained that the lounge will have a full-service Starbucks. He hopes that there will be a lounge...
Upon completing her Ph.D., she looked for a way to not only make use of her interest in writing, her passion for science, but also to steer away from the technical world she had grown up in. Her choice: biology. "I think it's just the ad hoc way that I ended up making the worst systems in animals and I ended up making the worst头 doesn't get cut off.”

She ended her discussion explaining how amazing it is to her that the human species prides itself on its ability to communicate in relationships, be them romantic or platonic. "It shows that contingent faculty and staff shouldn't be given a minimum high" to him, but the report notes that significantly improves the environment.”

Benjamin said. "It’s a very important point. That’s job security and more that they have access to years of good service to mid-year appointment," Vives said. "This is confidence to your workforce and significantly improves the environment." It says that part-time faculty position should be appointed of increasing length and two semesters per semester so they can get healthcare, whatever’s possible. “Full-time tenures are also available (FTI) should be appointed for three years following these three years of satisfactory service,” Benjamin said.

He explained that some departments are in favor of this idea, as they have full-time faculty, and it will help with the costs. "From my perspective, (calling it social justice) they’re secondary as far as I’m concerned," Benjamin said. "And Psychological Services as part of Sexuality Month. get involved!"

"If they (animals) are not communicating well they take a break,” she said. "They don’t keep hunting the deer and stick with a stick until everyone lazes each other. Later that night, Verduin re-shared her work and experiences with the rest of the UAlbany community for a free and public reading in the Campus Center. The New Critical Inquiry lecturers, which comes out to $7,000. The full range is listed as $2,500 to $7,000. The amount was put aside for graduate student assistantships. Another recommendation which has won a record-length commitments. It recommends raising the minimum per course rate of $5,000 per course to two to three years. When asked if he thought $5,000 per course is enough, Roberto J. Vives, the secretary of the department, said he was on Starr’s advice to mid-year appointment. "It’s a very important point. That’s job security and more that they have access to years of good service to mid-year appointment," Vives said. "This is confidence to your workforce and significantly improves the environment.”

The contingency committee’s report recommends salaries divide differently, assuming there are the same number of contingents the next two years. Another amount was noted for graduate student assistantships. "At the level of funding, they get it ($5,000) to three years,” Vives said.

"A lot will depend on the state’s budget this year and the number of contingents remains the same. No later than 2017, the university would also like to raise the minimum pay to $12 per hour. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189. The full range is listed as $3,215 to $12,189.
ResLife introduces changes to housing process

By JAMIE FRANK

The Department of Residential Life at the University at Albany recently made some changes to the on-campus housing policy. Freshman will still be expected to live on campus for the first year on either State Quad or Indian Quad. Now, students who were admitted as freshmen to UAlbany will also be expected to stay on campus their second year. These students will always be given a room on either Dutch Quad or Colonial Quad, but some sophomores will be able to stay on Empire Common, Library Terrace, Freedom Apartments, or Alumni Quad, according to a spokesperson for ResLife.

“It works out that Colonial and Dutch Quads have just enough space to provide our current freshmen to be housed as sophomores,” ResLife said in an email correspondence.

Aller current freshman sign up for housing, upperclassmen can also live on Colonial and Dutch quads, according to UAlbany Director of Media Relations Karl Luntta.

These changes to freshmen and sophomore housing do not affect students who commute.

“The policy is that if you live within 50 miles of campus, you have the option of living at home and attending,” ResLife said. Alumni Quad will now be available to more students.

“We have added Alumni Quad to the choice this year for upper class housing selection,” Res Life said and later added, “Alumni Quad will still be used to house transfer and international students, there are no changes there.”

The changes are being made in order to make sure there is enough space for everyone on campus.

“When we have had a shortage of space in the past, this has impacted the new student areas,” ResLife said. “More so the freshmen quads, as we have had to increase rooms and occupy temporary areas.”

Upperclassman housing signup begins Feb. 22nd. Current freshman may sign up beginning Feb. 29.
African American Expressions

From September through May by the Albany Student Center Corporation, an independent, not-for-profit organization.

Contact the ASP for information and publicity regarding student publications and other opportunities.

The ASP is registered as a trade mark of the Albany Student Press Corporation. Use of this mark requires written permission of the owner.

Email: asp.advertising@gmail.com; asp.reporter@gmail.com

www.albanystudentpress.net

In The News

Incarceration Education

By Daniel Pinzon

A n individual free from prison is not necessarily worthy of employment. Prisoners have negative connotations slapped on them by society. An ex-prisoner has to go around and remind themselves and others that they have been incarcerated, so employers see someone who is not worthy of employment. The Second Chance Pell Program was established in 2013 to give incarcerated individuals, who are due to be released in the next five years, grants for a college education starting this year. Because society gives prisoners little to no value post-prison, it is fair that criminal have access to basically a free education starting this year.

We all are entitled to free education starting this year. Whether we want to or not, Americans, as taxpayers, send taxes to the criminal justice system. So instead of paying to keep criminals in, we could put away as many law violators as we can. Whether we want to or not, Americans, as taxpayers, send taxes to the criminal justice system. So instead of paying to keep criminals in, we could put away as many law violators as we can. Whether we want to or not, Americans, as taxpayers, send taxes to the criminal justice system. So instead of paying to keep criminals in, we could put away as many law violators as we can.

The Albany Student Press is published Tuesdays of the Fall and Spring Semesters at the University at Albany. “I’d rather have someone who studies and does physics work, and people are listening more to them than to what they were taught in school.”

It is clear that Ciappa’s intentions are not harmful, but it is surprising to see how little media has covered the series of photographs. Some of the celebrities that I shot are heterosexual, but it was as important to me as it was to the members of the LGBT community. It is clear that Ciappa has intentions not harmful, but it is surprising to see how little media has covered the series of photographs.

Incarceration doesn’t even the right thing that someone committing a crime could be stepping out of society. Some are mentally ill, some are driven to crime as a last resort and some are convicted for some kind of social, political or economic activity.

The Second Chance Pell Program was established in 2013 to give incarcerated individuals, who are due to be released in the next five years, grants for a college education starting this year. Because society gives prisoners little to no value post-prison, it is fair that criminal have access to basically a free education starting this year.

We all are entitled to free education starting this year. Whether we want to or not, Americans, as taxpayers, send taxes to the criminal justice system. So instead of paying to keep criminals in, we could put away as many law violators as we can. Whether we want to or not, Americans, as taxpayers, send taxes to the criminal justice system. So instead of paying to keep criminals in, we could put away as many law violators as we can. Whether we want to or not, Americans, as taxpayers, send taxes to the criminal justice system. So instead of paying to keep criminals in, we could put away as many law violators as we can. Whether we want to or not, Americans, as taxpayers, send taxes to the criminal justice system. So instead of paying to keep criminals in, we could put away as many law violators as we can. Whether we want to or not, Americans, as taxpayers, send taxes to the criminal justice system. So instead of paying to keep criminals in, we could put away as many law violators as we can. Whether we want to or not, Americans, as taxpayers, send taxes to the criminal justice system. So instead of paying to keep criminals in, we could put away as many law violators as we can.
Tinder is a very popular dating app, however it was criticized for enabling the spread of STD among its users. It is now featuring a link to the site, Healthvana, which provides STD testing locator to the app. According to the CDC’s data, cases of chlamydia, gonorrhea, and syphilis are on the rise. An interesting, yet not surprising finding, is that Tinder users have one question: Is this enough? It is a huge step for Tinder to allow outside testing sites to provide its user with the option to locate STD testing locations only helps, more so, the spreading of disease. While this seems appealing, it is not a direct correlation between the app and spread of STD. As of 2016, Tinder has about 50 million users according to a report from The New York Times. It is the sun rose on Feb. 2, it brought a fresh new face to the dating world. The new app, Tinder, has quickly become the talk of the town. People are flocking to this new app to find love in the digital age. But, with so many different apps available, how do you know which one is right for you? One thing that sets Tinder apart from other dating apps is its focus on people instead of looks. In order to use the app, you need to create a profile with a photo and a short bio. From there, you can browse through other people’s profiles and swipe right if you’re interested or left if you’re not. Once you match with someone, you can start chatting and getting to know them better. However, it is important to remember that online dating is just that — online. It’s important to be cautious and protect yourself online. Always make sure to verify the person’s identity before meeting them in person. Additionally, if you are concerned about your safety, consider meeting in a public place and bringing a friend along for support. Overall, Tinder has revolutionized the dating world by making it more accessible and convenient for users. Whether you’re looking for a quick hook-up or a long-term relationship, Tinder has you covered.
The University Art Museum opened its new exhibit, "Gerard & Kelly," last Thursday, Feb. 3, hosting acclaimed artist Brennan Gerard and Ryan Kelly, whose multidisciplinary works address questions of "sexuality, collective memory, and the formation of queer consciousness."

The presentation opened on Thursday, Feb. 4 by Gerard and Kelly commenced with a live demonstration of their piece, "Dancing," which was first presented as part of a solo exhibition at The Kitchen, New York, and later as part of the Curatorial Residency at the Guggenheim Museum in New York City in 2015. The piece consisted of two artists circling the room in seemingly random circles, simultaneously discussing personal events that occurred only with the permission phase, "in reverse."

They performed the bonding force of memory both to one's own narrative and to one another, while also exploring the digital nature of time as in other non-conventional patterns that weave in and out of one's life. Themes of desire for belonging and kinship relations were directly investigated and leveraged through the instrumental framing of performers who fell on all spectrums of intimacy.

Their subsequently presented pieces, "Kiss Solo" (2011) and "Reusable Parts/Endless Love" (2012) were created in the image of Tino Sehgal's work, "Kiss" (2010), displayed at the Guggenheim Museum in 2010. These pieces inquisitively deconstruct the heteronormative nature of Sehgal's piece. In the former, a single actor performs the choreography described from Sehgal's work, shifting and combining pronouns in response to the text, retelling the intimate steps of the kiss in his own voice.

The latter piece includes the swapping of partners, moving the construction and focus of the piece beyond that of individual identities through its procedural, mimetic approach. The artists affirm that their goal was not to create a spectacle, but instead to question representations of love in how they are produced, narrated and consumed.

These pieces were part a select few of the artists' provocative repertoire, including other works such as "P.O.D.E. (People, Objects, Language, Exchange)" (2014), "Two Brothers" (2014), "Revurbishers" (2015) and "Transcripts" (2014), which raise social commentary regarding our interactions with history, subjectivity and resistance.

The politics of intimacy were a prevailing theme of the artists' work, contained in multidimensional content. The artists describe the effects on the ego in relation to intimacy exchange to be of particular interest to them, as well as the ironic implications of distance and discomfort that intimate acts can forge for a person.

Gerard and Kelly's expressive and innovative works present stirring commentary regarding identity, personal narrative, and relations of objectivity and subjectivity that underlie and universally pertain to the human experience.

The performance installation, "Reusable Parts/Endless Love," will be presented on Friday, Feb. 12 at 7 p.m. at the UAlbany Performing Arts Center after a reception from 5-7 p.m. at the University Art Museum. A video exhibition displaying the artists' work over the past five years will be screened as a single-channel video projection at the University Art Museum until April 2.

The works of Brennan Gerard and Ryan Kelly are on display until April 2.
Dave Coulier will reprise his role as Joey on “Fuller House,” premiering Feb. 26.

veh on vacation in Hawaii, and immediately thought, “The Terminator’s here to kill me.” Referencing other celebrities, Henry said that he set his location, actress Jaime Pressly welcomed him to begin his session. Henry connected with the spirit, he explained, “Jersey Shore.”

Henry’s session with TV personality Snooki from “Jersey Shore.”

“Jersey Shore.”

During his reading for Nene Leakes, Henry received a “very special email. That email was full of information. It was so special.”

Connections begin when the spirit shows him “random images and symbols.” Using a notepad, Henry sketches images to help piece together to reveal the final picture. Henry revealed that sometimes he has a sense of adrenaline. The film slate did just comfortably between camaraderie and comedy. With blood and brains often splattering while staining dresses and brooches, one can’t help but feel a sense of admiration. The film is not meant to be taken too seriously since its source material is a parody of Austen’s acclaimed book, but it is just strong enough to stand on its own merits, particularly for those not well-versed in the classics.

Terminator’s here to kill me.” Referencing other celebrities, Henry said that he set his location, actress Jaime Pressly welcomed him to begin his session. Henry connected with the spirit, he explained, “Jersey Shore.”

Connections begin when the spirit shows him “random images and symbols.” Using a notepad, Henry sketches connections to help piece together to reveal the final picture. Henry revealed that sometimes he has a sense of adrenaline. The film slate did just comfortably between camaraderie and comedy. With blood and brains often splattering while staining dresses and brooches, one can’t help but feel a sense of admiration. The film is not meant to be taken too seriously since its source material is a parody of Austen’s acclaimed book, but it is just strong enough to stand on its own merits, particularly for those not well-versed in the classics.

Terminator’s here to kill me.” Referencing other celebrities, Henry said that he set his location, actress Jaime Pressly welcomed him to begin his session. Henry connected with the spirit, he explained, “Jersey Shore.”

Connections begin when the spirit shows him “random images and symbols.” Using a notepad, Henry sketches connections to help piece together to reveal the final picture. Henry revealed that sometimes he has a sense of adrenaline. The film slate did just comfortably between camaraderie and comedy. With blood and brains often splattering while staining dresses and brooches, one can’t help but feel a sense of admiration. The film is not meant to be taken too seriously since its source material is a parody of Austen’s acclaimed book, but it is just strong enough to stand on its own merits, particularly for those not well-versed in the classics.
Want to become a teacher? or Already teaching and want to diversify your skills and credentials?

The Division of Special Education at the University at Albany can help!

We offer the ONLY graduate degree programs in the Capital Region that can lead to multiple certifications in elementary school, reading, and/or special education teaching. Learn from experienced faculty who have expertise in the latest evidence-based teaching methods and who conduct and publish cutting-edge research.

For more information, contact:
Bruce Saddler,
Director, Division of Special Education
Email: bsaddler@albany.edu
Website: albany.edu/special.education

---

From the Cover

This space could be yours!

Buy a classified ad from the ASP.

Email asp.advertising@gmail.com for more information or to place an ad.

---

FIND COLDSTONE HERE:

ADDRESS
COLD STONE CREAMERY STUYVESANT PLAZA
1475 WESTERN AVE.
ALBANY, NY 12203

PHONE
518.514.2003

CLASSIFIEDS: VALENTINE’S EDITION

Julia,
Even though you knew I would do this, I went ahead and did it anyway. I love you, and I’ll always want you to be my valentine.

Love,
Eric
The life of a student-athlete is hectic, leaving little time to focus on anything other than sports and academics. The Student-Athlete Advisory Committee (SAAC) is an organization that each year tries to alleviate this stress on student-athletes. It also tries to help them become positive and well-rounded individuals, both on and off the field. The committee serves as the voice of all student-athletes and representatives receive encouragement to “provide insight on the student-athlete experience and offer input on the rules, regulations and policies that affect student-athletes’ lives on campus,” according to NCAA.com.

SAAC is an NCAA-affiliated committee comprised of only student-athletes. At the nationwide Division I level—which the University at Albany participates in—one student-athlete from every school in the Atlantic 10 conference is selected to represent his or her respective school.

In addition to sending one of its own student-athletes to SAAC to represent the school at the national level, UAlbany is one of many across the nation who has its own SAAC branch made up of only UAlbany student-athletes. This year, more than the usual 25, UAlbany’s SAAC is focused on a role that University at Albany student-athletes commit to every year at the 2016 NCAA Convention.

“The role [SAAC] plays here at Albany is to provide a platform for student-athletes to be heard by coaches, faculty, and our administration,” said Carl Anderson, associate athletic director, president and player of UAlbany’s SAAC.

This year, the student-athletes met with officials from the Athletic Director’s Office to discuss what they needed to work on. The group has discussed ways to better connect the student-athletes with the community and one way is the “You Can Play” project which works to help promote inclusivity and diversity in the community.

This year, the SAAC’s event is scheduled for Feb. 25, where the group will first tour the “You Can Play” project and later, at the women’s basketball game against Harvard.

SAAC’s next event is scheduled for April 9, where it will help promote the “You Can Play” project at the men’s soccer and women’s volleyball games.

At the national level, UAlbany’s SAAC branch made up of only UAlbany student-athletes committed to bringing a really cool thing to be proud of, said Berger. He represents UAlbany earlier this year at the 2016 NCAA Convention, said, “The SAAC is driving the conversation. When change goes into effect, it’s going to be because SAAC, not someone else, was incredibly inspiring.”

SAAC is a student-athletes’ forum where it will help promote inclusivity and diversity in sports and society. This year, their goal is to “get better and bigger.”

SAAC’s next event is scheduled for April 9, where it will help promote the “You Can Play” project at the men’s soccer and women’s volleyball games. UAlbany’s SAAC is comprised of only UAlbany student-athletes and represents the school at the national level, according to NCAA.com.

SAAC was created in 1994 and is one of many across the country. The SAAC’s goal is to “provide insight on the student-athlete experience and offer input on the rules, regulations and policies that affect student-athletes’ lives on campus,” according to NCAA.com.
By TROY FARKAS

Ray Sanders had 10 points, behind Peter Hooley and Evan Singletary’s 20-point night.

He’s shown that he can do in the last year and a half,” Hooley said. “I was surprised when he came out. I wasn’t wowed and he was zero at the half,” Brown said of Singletary. “You see how good he was in the second half. And we needed that.”

The purple and gold will suit similar performances from the Danes if they hope to reach the NCAA tournament for the fourth consecutive year.

“We know what’s on the line in terms of standings. Good teams find a way to win on the road,” Hooley said.

The Big Purple Growl had a solid out crowd on Saturday night.

By MICHAEL TURAY

The University at Albany men’s lacrosse team kicked off its 2016 campaign by hosting Colgate University in a preseason tune up Saturday at John Fallon Field. Despite cold conditions and a chronic wind chill, fans were thrilled to get a chance to cheer on their Great Danes who are ranked 12th in this year’s preseason USILA Coaches Poll.

The Danes are coming off yet another successful season under the helm of Coach Scott Marr who led the team to a record of 16-5, including a third straight America East Conference title. The Danes defeated Cornell in their opening round game in last year’s NCAA Tournament, only to fall to No. 1 seed Notre Dame 14-10 in the third period.

“I think something we need to work on is not taking as many penalties, because we went up 4-0 and we then got some penalties that let them back in the game,” said compliments attack Connor Fields. Fields scored two goals in the second half. After some spotty first half defense, the team looked sharp coming out of halftime and held Colgate scoreless in the third period.

“We were all struggling in the first half,” Hooley said. “I’d say the sign of a true leader to step up.”

Jonathan Peters / Albany Student Press

Team defense is a focus for the team during their 2016 season.

LACROSSE

Danes pull off close win in first scrimmage of the season

By MICHAEL TURAY

The University at Albany men’s lacrosse team kicked off its 2016 campaign by hosting Colgate University in a preseason tune up Saturday at John Fallon Field. Despite cold conditions and a chronic wind chill, fans were thrilled to get a chance to cheer on their Great Danes who are ranked 12th in this year’s preseason USILA Coaches Poll.

The Danes are coming off yet another successful season under the helm of Coach Scott Marr who led the team to a record of 16-5, including a third straight America East Conference title. The Danes defeated Cornell in their opening round game in last year’s NCAA Tournament, only to fall to No. 1 seed Notre Dame 14-10 in the third period.

“Troy Farkas

LEGENDS AT THE BIG PURPLE GROWL

By TROY FARKAS

On a night that the University at Albany honored its men’s basketball legends, a packed Big Purple Growl crowd at SEFCU Arena witnessed a vintage performance from the Great Danes’ current legends in the making.

A Hooley three sent SEFCU crowd of 4,538.

A Hooley three sent SEFCU crowd of 4,538.

The Danes came out roaring in the first half behind some outstanding play from Peter Hooley and Evan Singletary.

“The duo finished the game with 20 points each,” Brown said.

“I think they expected me to throw things off the wall, yell, scream and throw tantrums at 8 a.m. tomorrow. But I told them I can’t do that, ’em,’” Brown said.

Brown said that when he addressed his team at halftime, he didn’t rant and rave, but let the team cool down and figure things out for themselves.

“I was surprised when he came out. I wasn’t wowed and he was zero at the half,” Brown said of Singletary. “You see how good he was in the second half. And we needed that.”

The purple and gold will suit similar performances from the Danes if they hope to reach the NCAA tournament for the fourth consecutive year.

“We know what’s on the line in terms of standings. Good teams find a way to win on the road,” Hooley said.

The Big Purple Growl had a solid out crowd on Saturday night.

Jonathan Peters / Albany Student Press

Team defense is a focus for the team during their 2016 season.

LACROSSE

Danes pull off close win in first scrimmage of the season

By MICHAEL TURAY

The University at Albany men’s lacrosse team kicked off its 2016 campaign by hosting Colgate University in a preseason tune up Saturday at John Fallon Field. Despite cold conditions and a chronic wind chill, fans were thrilled to get a chance to cheer on their Great Danes who are ranked 12th in this year’s preseason USILA Coaches Poll.

The Danes are coming off yet another successful season under the helm of Coach Scott Marr who led the team to a record of 16-5, including a third straight America East Conference title. The Danes defeated Cornell in their opening round game in last year’s NCAA Tournament, only to fall to No. 1 seed Notre Dame 14-10 in the third period.

“I think something we need to work on is not taking as many penalties, because we went up 4-0 and we then got some penalties that let them back in the game,” said compliments attack Connor Fields. Fields scored two goals in the second half. After some spotty first half defense, the team looked sharp coming out of halftime and held Colgate scoreless in the third period.

“We were all struggling in the first half,” Hooley said. “I’d say the sign of a true leader to step up.”

Jonathan Peters / Albany Student Press

Team defense is a focus for the team during their 2016 season.

LACROSSE

Danes pull off close win in first scrimmage of the season

By MICHAEL TURAY

The University at Albany men’s lacrosse team kicked off its 2016 campaign by hosting Colgate University in a preseason tune up Saturday at John Fallon Field. Despite cold conditions and a chronic wind chill, fans were thrilled to get a chance to cheer on their Great Danes who are ranked 12th in this year’s preseason USILA Coaches Poll.

The Danes are coming off yet another successful season under the helm of Coach Scott Marr who led the team to a record of 16-5, including a third straight America East Conference title. The Danes defeated Cornell in their opening round game in last year’s NCAA Tournament, only to fall to No. 1 seed Notre Dame 14-10 in the third period.

“I think something we need to work on is not taking as many penalties, because we went up 4-0 and we then got some penalties that let them back in the game,” said compliments attack Connor Fields. Fields scored two goals in the second half. After some spotty first half defense, the team looked sharp coming out of halftime and held Colgate scoreless in the third period.

“We were all struggling in the first half,” Hooley said. “I’d say the sign of a true leader to step up.”

Jonathan Peters / Albany Student Press

Team defense is a focus for the team during their 2016 season.

LACROSSE

Danes pull off close win in first scrimmage of the season

By MICHAEL TURAY

The University at Albany men’s lacrosse team kicked off its 2016 campaign by hosting Colgate University in a preseason tune up Saturday at John Fallon Field. Despite cold conditions and a chronic wind chill, fans were thrilled to get a chance to cheer on their Great Danes who are ranked 12th in this year’s preseason USILA Coaches Poll.

The Danes are coming off yet another successful season under the helm of Coach Scott Marr who led the team to a record of 16-5, including a third straight America East Conference title. The Danes defeated Cornell in their opening round game in last year’s NCAA Tournament, only to fall to No. 1 seed Notre Dame 14-10 in the third period.

“I think something we need to work on is not taking as many penalties, because we went up 4-0 and we then got some penalties that let them back in the game,” said compliments attack Connor Fields. Fields scored two goals in the second half. After some spotty first half defense, the team looked sharp coming out of halftime and held Colgate scoreless in the third period.

“We were all struggling in the first half,” Hooley said. “I’d say the sign of a true leader to step up.”

Jonathan Peters / Albany Student Press

Team defense is a focus for the team during their 2016 season.