Albany Great Danes — A Reason for Optimism

1981-82 Year in Review

By MICHAEL CARNIEN

Season over, in many ways. We took the honors we had to give three times, the opening season with the Majesty’s; we bowled them for the second time. Perhaps we didn’t do enough to win. Perhaps we didn’t do enough to win. Perhaps we just didn’t do enough. Perhaps we just didn’t do enough.

Bob Ford’s corps started the season off with a bang. The Danes and Donna Chaiel in helping to accumulate point leaders that has accumulated point leaders. The women eventual tournaments were not able to shine in the national record. The defense allowed only 50 points, but Bob Bricn established a new school record for interceptions with eight while in the victory, Tom Pratt, to man the wishbone attack. The Danes had a 7-3 record and found a 1-4 record for interceptions with eight with Bob Bricn established a new school record for interceptions with eight with Bob Bricn established a new school record for interceptions with eight.

Looking Back On Last Year’s News Events

Springboks Visit Albany

The South African rugby team’s tour of America incpolated several events in Albany. The team’s December 28th appearance at Riverfront Stadium was the top of the representations of a world-wide tour.

The stadium was packed, Mayor Dever was on hand to greet the team, Governor Stratton made several short speeches, and SUNY Albany students and faculty members mingled with the players. The team was taken to the Student Union offices in protest of an April resolution urging the University not to sponsor any future sporting events with the team.

SA Elections Held

The Student Association held its annual elections throughout the month of May. Winning the presidential office for the first time was the Student Fairfax office of the ASP.

ASP Offices Taken Over

Ten weeks after the fact, over 300 people are still questioning the ASP situation. The ASP’s main office was opened with an ra in the ASP office.

The UWSA, under the leadership of Scott Wexler, was able to take over the ASP offices.

Budget Cuts Bring Protest

Governor Carey’s 1984 budget is raising serious problems with SUNY. Students from outside SUNY complained of the lack of funding in the SUNY budget.

SUNY Central’s office was not directly affected by the cuts, but state and local governments are being hit hard by the cuts.

SUNY’s tuition is expected to increase by 15% for the 1984-1985 school year.

SA Staff Walks Out

In the last two weeks, SUNY President Wanda Whitten ordered the union of SA staff members to take action. The union, which represents SUNY staff, is currently negotiating a new contract.

May. They met with various state officials to discuss academic issues and budget cuts.

ROTC Causes Controversy

A ROTC center was established at SUNYA, and the University administration is not pleased with the situation. The administration has filed a lawsuit against the ROTC center.

Budget Cuts Spur Lobbying

By Bruce Linder

Budget cuts and proposed spending reductions at SUNY have prompted SUNY President Vincent G. C. Carety to call for new efforts to lobby state legislators. SUNY’s budget cut, which has already been made, is a major concern, Carety said.

"We’re (SUNY) concerned that the proposed reductions in SUNY’s budget, which are being considered by the New York State Legislature, may have a negative impact on our ability to provide quality education to the students," Carety said.

The full amount of SUNY’s budget cut is still unknown, but Carety said the cuts are likely to be in the range of $50 million to $75 million. This is a reduction of about 10% of SUNY’s current budget.

The cuts are expected to affect all SUNY campuses, but they will be more severe at SUNY’s 14 regional campuses because they have more independent funding sources.

Carety has already met with SUNY’s regional presidents to discuss the budget cuts and their impact on each campus. The regional presidents have been asked to develop plans to cut costs and increase efficiency in order to mitigate the impact of the budget cuts.

Carety has also been meeting with SUNY’s 14 presidents to discuss the budget cuts and their impact on each campus. The regional presidents have been asked to develop plans to cut costs and increase efficiency in order to mitigate the impact of the budget cuts.

party systems often appear as responses to political crises. For example, the Civil War produced a Republican domination for over twenty years. Dunica's hope to mobilize new voters does have a historical precedent in the New Deal. Democrats brought a new group of young voters to the polls in the 1930s and reversed the preceding thirty years of Republican success.

If there is to be a shift in response to the economic problems faced today, much will depend on the responses of the party leaders. Franklin Roosevelt was able to forge a new coalition behind a clever political platform to achieve his successes, while some have slated that Ronald Reagan has achieved a similar feat. There is no doubt that the November elections will be a test of Reagan's success. But in the long term, the real test may come in the political climates of three economic scenarios. That the Democratic Party brought the New Deal coalition to power in the 1930s and reversed the preceding thirty years of Republican success.

Expec-tation is the mental state in which things are anticipated or experienced. It can be a positive or negative experience, depending on the outcome. Expectations are based on previous experiences and can influence our thoughts, feelings, and actions. They can be set high or low, and they can be influenced by external factors such as culture, society, and personal beliefs. Expectations can be conscious or unconscious, and they can affect our decision-making and behavior. It is important to manage our expectations to avoid disappointment and to improve our overall well-being. (This Definition)

Waiting For The Sun

Linda Quinn

S

The power, strength, and resilience of the forces of nature and life are all around us. In the morning, we see the sun rising over the horizon. In the afternoon, we feel the warmth of the sun on our skin. In the evening, we watch the sun set and the stars come out.

Miles Kurlansky

Waiting for the sun is a beautiful and peaceful experience. It is a reminder of the cyclical nature of life and the beauty of the natural world. The sun also provides us with vitamin D, which is essential for our health.

What Do We Expect?

With all of our expectations of the world, it seems only natural. It is a common phenomenon to have our expectations in mind, when we are waiting for something to happen. We expect things to happen in a certain way, and we are often disappointed when they do not.

Prophecies tend to become self-fulfilling, and if we expect more from ourselves, we might deliver more.

The Human Bomb

Hubert Kenneth Dickey

The Human Bomb! I just heard that thing yesterday at the end of a long day. I was just sitting there, listening to the story of a man who had spent his entire life trying to blow things up. He was a genius, you see. A real genius. But he never really succeeded. He was always getting his hands on all sorts of explosives, but he never really had the chance to use them. He was always caught before he could do anything serious.

And then one day, he was in the right place at the right time. He had just enough explosives to make a real terror of the place. And he did it. He blew up the whole neighborhood. It was a real disaster. People were killed and homes were destroyed.

But the police were there in no time. They found the man and took him away. He was tried and convicted and sent to prison. But his name will live on for ever. The Human Bomb.

It's a story that is sure to go down in history. A true legend. The Human Bomb.
The River Heart

Run on her white shoulders run on the side and send back on the steeple, on the bridge spillage.

Thin drop in the drops of flower in the shadow of that heart.

A lover's loth in space, surrounded, in the eye of a rain threaten.

My iron side wrap my shoulders tight, hands and even skin comes to wall. In the fall sitting.

Flow different the river upstairs with no bridge to sight.

The sun is so cold now, this earth done in that heat from deep below your mystery.

In September her warmth is your warmth and you tell gently on a distant shore.

It seemed to me that the place is all the way out on the ocean and made up to work all day. Starting at the age of old banker man (one of whom has felt my bottom was a good place for his head until it threatened him with clothes, he reacted with disgust. Tonight I can sit a spider out from under his abdomen (out of his past we speak against: an uneasy tale.)

with a pay phone in the corner and Metlie, who cannot leave any woman alone (but may serve me in her own house). With so much time she also directs when she takes her hair. There is much discussion of the benefits of all.

Some of the man who come to look like a regular women. Some of the women who come in look badly women.

There is no mystery, just a general undertow of pain.

There is also in the place, a real sense of death and blood all around. After all, the men are afraid to intrude.

It moves more, maybe the paths thing of all, and a fine new sense on everything, while the floor is covered with snow.

And tonight, I crossed the met and cutter, the blue thing that we are all covered with, though you couldn't see it. It was dark and not dark before.

if this one huge and huge another, it was not and beautiful (and in some choice way, funny)

I saw one woman to notice.

ALBANY STUDENT PRESS SUMMER EDITION, JUNE 1982

Education or Registration

In mid-May a long-time advocate of draft registration, California's Senator S.I. Hayakawa, introduced an amendment which would deny federal aid to young male college students who failed to register for the draft.

It seems that Hayakawa's intentions were not to cut down on the number of registration failures but rather to provide a positive inducement to these failures. For example, when introducing his amendment, Hayakawa said, "Smart" schools allow students to provide for their educational needs, when they have an intention of fulfilling their national obligations. The answer is simply yes.

There are, of course, a number of important differences between registration failures in the 1960's and draft failures in the Vietnam era. Most obviously, there is a large difference between a war in 1962, whereas a draft register in 1968 may have been motivated in some cases by the fear of getting his head blown off, the registration failure in 1962 may have been motivated by a lack of ideological sense. By standing up for his beliefs, the registration failure is making a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine. (A spokesman for the national Committee Against Registration for the Draft (CARD) said precision instructions will be made late in June or early July.)

Identically, at least, college is meant to be a place ideology is nurtured and developed. It seems obvious that the people who value their ideals so greatly that they are willing to risk five years in prison may be denied a college education. This seems like hypocrisy on the part of Hayakawa in light of the fact that he is a known educator and former president of San Francisco State University.

Further, the people who will be denied a college education as a result of Hayakawa's amendment are those who are more dependent on federal aid—lower socio-economic classes. Affirmative action policies and federal aid programs were introduced in an attempt to give people from lower socio-economic groups a chance to improve their position in this country's society that is filled with them. The Hayakawa amendment seems to be a direct contradiction to 10 years of these programs as well as a step back in time.

Further, the amendment was voted on the day after the deadline, which is the Defense Authorization Bill. Also, the last two possible months. Also, since the amendment was introduced in mid-May, college students can use a chance to mobilize against it. All of this tied in to the discussion of public input.

Although he's a New York Representative, Jerry Selman has made it very clear that he plans to introduce a nearly identical amendment in the House of Representatives. (Solomon, from The Daily Ithaca, has similar amendment pleased which would deny federal aid to college students who fail to register for the draft. The amendment is before Congress and eventually signed into law by Reagan. Otherwise, many people may lose through life without a college education.

Albany Great Danes — A Reason for Optimism

By Michael Carmean

The women's side of the hotly contested Albany Women's Volleyball season was, quite simply, a touch better than the men's. With only two losses to their names, the Danes made it to the top of the Northeast Conference (NEC) standings.

The men, on the other hand, had a season to forget. Despite a few bright spots, they ended up in the cellar of the conference.

Albany would not ask for the only top ten finish in the country in Division I schools around the nation, the Danes had a respectable season with some surprising performances. Cathy Mann, the Danes' women's volleyball coach, saw her team grow and develop throughout the season.

The men's basketball season, however, was a different story. The Danes started off strong but fell apart as the season progressed. The Danes' hopes of making it to the NCAA Tournament were crushed by a team that was not as talented as they had hoped.

Looking to the future, the Danes will need to focus on building a stronger foundation. With a new coach and some key additions to the roster, the Danes hope to make a bigger impact next season.

Summer: The Time For Football Preparation

By Matt Hagel

The start of September is the time for football preparation in the college world. For the Albany Great Danes, this means getting ready for the upcoming season.

The men's football team is hoping to build on last year's success and make a run for the NCAA Tournament. The women's team, on the other hand, is looking to improve and make some noise in the conference.

Both teams will need to work hard in the off-season to achieve their goals. This includes training, conditioning, and strategizing for the upcoming season.

The men's team will need to focus on improving their defense and finding a way to contain their opponents. The women's team will need to focus on their offense and finding ways to score goals.

Looking to the future, both teams are optimistic about their chances. The men's team is hoping for a bigger finish in the conference and a chance at the NCAA Tournament. The women's team is hoping to make some noise and prove that they belong in the conference.

1981-82, One Very Optimistic Great Dane Year

Typical Albany Year Sees Many Achievements in Every Program

By John Dieckelman

The men's and women's volleyball teams were a shining example of what it means to be a Great Dane. Both teams had successful seasons and were able to make it to the NCAA Tournament.

The men's basketball team, on the other hand, struggled throughout the season. They were unable to make it to the NCAA Tournament and finished at the bottom of the conference.

The men's and women's soccer teams also had successful seasons. The women's team was able to make it to the NCAA Tournament and the men's team was able to make it to the conference championship.

Looking to the future, the Danes will need to focus on building a stronger foundation. With a new coach and some key additions to the roster, the Danes hope to make a bigger impact next season.
