Spikers Rebound To Edge Union In Five Games

by Larry Kane

The Albany State volleyball team rebounded from their recent losses by defeating Union College, 3-2, Tuesday night. The Danes edged the Dutchmen, 15-13, 11-15, 15-9, 12-15, 15-7, in the volleyball action.

The Danes' win was their second of the night, coming after they defeated Buffalo, 3-1, earlier in the evening. With the win over Union, the Danes moved to 4-4 on the season.

Victory Raises Record To 12-5

Albany State's volleyball team improved to 12-5 with the win over Union. The Danes are now 7-2 in conference play and 5-3 in non-conference.

Defensively, they had some problems early on, but Albany State's defense came through in the end. Union had 23 kills in the game, but Albany State had 26.

The Egg Cooks Harlem Dances in The Plaza

Jim Dixon

The Harlem Renaissance of the 1920s is one of the most well-known cultural movements of the 20th century. It was a time of great social and political transformation, and the music, literature, and art produced during this period continue to inspire and influence us today. One of the most iconic figures of the Harlem Renaissance was the poet Langston Hughes, who is often credited with helping to bring the movement to national attention.

Hughes was a prolific writer, and his poetry and prose continue to be studied and enjoyed by readers around the world. His work often centered on the experiences of African Americans, and he used his writing to explore themes of race, identity, and the challenges of being black in America. Hughes' poetry was also heavily influenced by the music of the time, and he sought to create a bridge between the two art forms. One of his most famous poems, "The Weary Blues," is a testament to this integration of music and poetry.

Hughes' work has had a lasting impact on American literature, and his legacy continues to be celebrated today. His contributions to the Harlem Renaissance and beyond have made him a beloved figure in the world of literature, and his words continue to inspire generations of writers and artists. Ultimately, the legacy of Langston Hughes serves as a reminder of the power of art to bring people together and to help us better understand the world around us.

The Polycraft 'n' Roll Classic

Suzanne Gerber

The Polycraft 'n' Roll Classic is a ballet that was created by the famous choreographer Jiri Kylian. The ballet is set to music by the composer Jean-Claude Forest, and it tells the story of a young couple who fall in love and are eventually separated. The ballet is known for its use of simple, geometric shapes and its focus on the relationship between the dancers.

The Polycraft 'n' Roll Classic was first performed in 1982, and it has since become a staple of the dance world. The ballet is performed by a variety of companies around the world, and it continues to be enjoyed by audiences of all ages. The Polycraft 'n' Roll Classic is a beautiful example of the power of dance to tell a story and to evoke emotion in its audience.

Folk-Based Feminism

Laurel Solomon

Folk-based feminism is a movement that seeks to reclaim traditional folk music and storytelling as a tool for promoting gender equality. The movement is rooted in the idea that music has the power to inspire and empower, and that it can be used to challenge traditional gender roles and norms.

Folk-based feminism has gained traction in recent years, with a number of artists and organizations working to promote the movement. One of the most prominent figures in the movement is the singer-songwriter Buffy Sainte-Marie, who has long been a vocal advocate for gender equality.

Sainte-Marie has used her music to promote women's rights and to challenge stereotypes about gender. Her songs often tackle issues such as domestic violence, sexual harassment, and the importance of women's contributions to society. Her music has inspired countless others to speak out against gender inequality, and her work continues to be celebrated as a powerful example of folk-based feminism.

Reagan Column Refuted

Mark Manocchio

Mr. Shapiro attacks Ronald Reagan in "A New Reagan Portrait," LE: October 19th. Mr. Shapiro seems to have disregard for the majority of the American population. His argument seems to be that Mr. Reagan is a political leader who has disregarded the needs of the American people.

I find it interesting that Mr. Shapiro chooses to ignore the fact that Mr. Reagan has placed a strong emphasis on the economy. He has implemented policies that have resulted in lower unemployment rates and increased productivity.

In addition, Mr. Shapiro seems to misunderstand the role of the government in relation to the economy. He seems to believe that the government should not interfere with the market, but ignores the fact that government policies can have a significant impact on the economy.

I would suggest that Mr. Shapiro take a closer look at the evidence before making such sweeping statements. Mr. Reagan has implemented policies that have resulted in a strong economy and a better quality of life for American citizens.

Working For Safety

To the Editor:

The Physical Plant Department and the Public Safety Department have many regulations regarding the storing of paint, cleaning equipment, and other materials that may be hazardous to health or safety. It is crucial that we respect these regulations, as they are designed to protect the health and safety of all individuals on campus.

One way to make a real change is to ensure that everyone is aware of and follows these regulations. This includes students, faculty, and staff.

In conclusion, I ask everyone to please follow the regulations and ensure the safety of everyone on campus.

Speaking About Issues

John A. Altherr

I am running for the presidency precisely because I believe neither major party is qualified to lead this country. Among the freedoms we should all enjoy, democracy and the right to choose one's president are the most crucial.

We were certainly surprised and shocked after reading a recent Knickerbocker News article about students at the University of California at Berkeley. They had applied for foreign student status, but their applications were denied. The students were surprised and upset that they had been denied the opportunity to continue their education.

The article states that the students had been denied the opportunity to continue their education because they were not able to prove that they would not be a threat to national security.

In my opinion, the government should not be denying students the opportunity to continue their education based on their political beliefs. This is a violation of their rights and freedoms.

I hope that we can all work together to ensure that the rights and freedoms of all students are protected.
