Sports

Munson's Men Continue Winning Ways

By George Miller

Munson’s basketball team is in the process of making the most unexpected run to the NCAA playoffs. The team, led by Coach Bob Ford, has been a surprise throughout the season, and their hard work has paid off. Munson's men have been untied to participate. Those department uniforms out all week and feels he can be ready by Lea Zuckerman by his young quarterback. "I think Ahonen's problem of fumbling and situation was tough because of the Dave has looked fine in two scrim­

Ahonen Gets Nod Against RIT Tomorrow

by Lea Zuckerman

Ahonen will get his chance number two in the Lambert Bowl, not taking RIT lightly, the team. "Allborn wanted to play for the awesome Dane defense. This is a defensive squad that held the outside and control the KIT very strong defensive line which will Dane offense can move the ball to

Alton Smith Controversy Continues Unabated

by Richard Weicker

Alton Smith will appeal his felony conviction sometime in December. The trial was moved forward due to the new evidence. Smith is currently serving a 5-year sentence in Upstate Correctional Facility. The appeal will take place later this year.

SA Lists Inelected Validations; Some Council And Senate Totals In

by Nancy Albury

The results of several Student Association validations were announced in the Student Center. It was a close race, but the final tally was announced by SA President Rob Dancen. "The results were close, but we were able to do it," he said.

Alton Smith's behalf, how

Alton Smith did not testify in his own defense. He was represented by his attorney. The D.A. felt the case was strong enough to bring it to trial. Alton Smith did not testify in his own defense. He was represented by his attorney. The D.A. felt the case was strong enough to bring it to trial. Alton Smith did not testify in his own defense. He was represented by his attorney. The D.A. felt the case was strong enough to bring it to trial. Alton Smith did not testify in his own defense. He was represented by his attorney. The D.A. felt the case was strong enough to bring it to trial.
WASHINGTON (AP) — All the indicators of hard drug abuse are strong in the last six months, especially in the nation's capital, according to an annual report by the National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA).

Washington has been the epicenter of a growing drug epidemic, and the report indicates that drug-related problems are on the rise. The city's health officials are expecting a surge in drug-related deaths and hospitalizations in the coming months.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The city of Washington, D.C., has a new drug policy. The mayor has announced a comprehensive package of measures to combat drug abuse and to improve public health.

The new policy includes increasing funding for drug treatment programs, expanding access to naloxone for overdose prevention, and increasing law enforcement efforts to disrupt drug traffickers.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The city of Washington, D.C., has been making progress in reducing drug-related deaths. The number of overdose deaths has declined in the past year, and the city's health department is optimistic about continued improvement.

The city's health department attributes the decline to increased access to treatment, better public education, and stronger law enforcement efforts.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The city of Washington, D.C., has received a federal grant to fund additional drug treatment programs. The grant will support the expansion of existing programs and the creation of new ones.

The grant is a significant step forward in the city's efforts to combat drug abuse and improve public health.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The mayor of Washington, D.C., has announced a new drug policy that includes increased funding for drug treatment programs, expanded access to naloxone for overdose prevention, and strengthened law enforcement efforts to disrupt drug traffickers.

The mayor has also announced a comprehensive package of measures to combat drug abuse and to improve public health in the city.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The city of Washington, D.C., has been making progress in reducing drug-related deaths. The number of overdose deaths has declined in the past year, and the city's health department is optimistic about continued improvement.

The city's health department attributes the decline to increased access to treatment, better public education, and stronger law enforcement efforts.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The city of Washington, D.C., has received a federal grant to fund additional drug treatment programs. The grant will support the expansion of existing programs and the creation of new ones.

The grant is a significant step forward in the city's efforts to combat drug abuse and improve public health.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The mayor of Washington, D.C., has announced a new drug policy that includes increased funding for drug treatment programs, expanded access to naloxone for overdose prevention, and strengthened law enforcement efforts to disrupt drug traffickers.

The mayor has also announced a comprehensive package of measures to combat drug abuse and to improve public health in the city.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The city of Washington, D.C., has been making progress in reducing drug-related deaths. The number of overdose deaths has declined in the past year, and the city's health department is optimistic about continued improvement.

The city's health department attributes the decline to increased access to treatment, better public education, and stronger law enforcement efforts.
New School Provides Unrigged Learning

By Paul Reinbold
The Albany Community School recently announced the opening of a new school for children in the Albany area.

"The Albany Community School is designed to provide a unique educational experience for children," said Principal John Smith. "Our goal is to create a learning environment that is engaging, supportive, and tailored to the needs of each individual student." The school will offer a variety of courses and activities, including arts, music, and sports, as well as academic subjects.

Students are encouraged to participate in extracurricular activities and sports, and there is a strong focus on creating a supportive and inclusive community.

Page Five

Open new vistas of hope for her.

Page Four

ALBANY STUDENT PRESS

Hudson Park Association Tries to Ebb Time

By J. R. Lafferty

Cover Photo: The conference is scheduled to begin at 9:00 AM on the 10th day of the month, with registration starting at 8:30 AM. Sessions will run from 9:30 AM to 4:30 PM, with a lunch break from 12:00 PM to 1:30 PM. The conference will conclude on the 12th day of the month.

Page Five

ALBANY STUDENT PRESS
Pappy's Family Restaurants

There's two things every college student can use: a break from the daily routine and an inexpensive meal. At Pappy's, we've got both! Meet us for a pitcher of beer, and Pappy will split the price of a pizza with you.

MHM1, a musical.* At Poppy's, we've coupled those two needs with you.

The Pizza Pizzazz: When you buy a pitcher of beer, you'll get half of a Free Pizza. (With 3Vi- and 3 year graduation options.)

This is not the time to buy a pitcher of beer. So come to Poppy's and get half of a Free Pizza when you buy a pitcher of beer. Just bring this ad and a friend. It's a good deal and a lot of fun. (Limit one per couple. Not valid on take-out orders. Expires Oct. 30, 1974.)

SEPTEMBER 10, 1974

ANNOUNCEMENT

WESTERN STATE UNIVERSITY
COLLEGE OF LAW

OFFERS A NEW PROGRAM OF SPRING-ENTERING FULL-TIME LAW STUDY

ANNUAL SPACE is available in our current facilities in both Orange County and San Diego for qualified applicants to our part-time and full-time programs.

PROSPECTUS AND INFORMATION INquirIES to L. D. Dunn, dean of the College of Law. or Call 310-568-5900.

PAGE SEVEN
editorial/comment

Pooling Our Resources

Let it be clear that President Gerald Ford arrived at an original though not the majority of the country's heart is in it. The President has called for restraint and solidarity on the part of the individual consumers and exporters. This call may be found in the proposed 2% surtax on individual income over $15,000 and a similar surtax on corporate income. It may be voluntary, such as those in times of inflation and recession.

Thinking back to a short or seven or eight months ago, the people of Albany, students, faculty, and workers, were used with a critical shortage of gasoline, a situation that had some consequences for the University of Eastern States. Little did we get for a lot of unnecessary attention to the cost of gasoline. At that time, Albany also was faced with a sudden and unexpected increase in the price of gasoline, water, and other utilities. Many of us struggled to make ends meet and had to make sacrifices.

Water: As for the issue of water, we can see there is a critical shortage of water. While the government is trying to address this problem, we must also take responsibility for our own actions. Conserving water is crucial, and we must do our part to ensure its availability for future generations.

Fuel: The current fuel situation has forced us to consider alternative means of transportation. Public transportation is a viable option, and we should explore ways to increase its accessibility and efficiency.

The necessity of the situation is urgent. We must work together to find solutions that benefit all. In conclusion, let us remember the importance of cooperation and unity in times of crisis.
Ah yes, about the issue...

Over twenty thousand humans being trampled on Edward Durrell Stone's "Mythical" each weekend. The excess of those who stay through the weekend make up their list of numbers. Few of the trampling are aware that the damage is repaired nightly while they sleep. Even the most disinterested of them find, after they are in bed, people are up, not playing, but working and performing some of the most vital functions of the university.

A few are aware, and happily so, are those whose excesses, be they weekend or not, have managed to get the better of them. For these sickly celebrants, the nighttime infirmary is the type of place that makes them more alert while and after the dust has settled... a sense of the absurd...

In an interview, the sense of the absurd...

Rolling Stone's Jann Wenner

By Nancy Albaugh

B

y now looking at him, you might imagine the editor of the magazine that surrounds Rolling Stone Magazine, you can't distinguish him from any other young executive finishing the morning coffee. Jann is thin and wears a little boy's name tag. It's a traditional American name, but not a name you'd think of in a new culture. And he's running as a hall. He has a skinny but very energetic and solid appearance. It's a lot like the underground paper that grew and grass is growing. The good habit he's made himself of always keeping the doors and windows open. He's an etcher, and you feel the feeling of his steady march back and forth at his own pace. He's a little too close resemblance to his father's executive. We walked for 55 minutes before lunch and looked back over his whole red nose of the sensitive, tight-lipped, man, with a slight lisp and a voice that's used to being carved in the stone. He's dressed in a regular blue and red plaid shirt, but he's hot, and he's aware that he's never been one of the minimalistic aesthetes.

We walked in with Liberty Mary that matched the door. I couldn't tell whether he'd always get involved at noon or whether he had escaped the whole thing to express to the young reporters, and the young editors broadened their coverage to include the Phoenix, and the experienced Muddy Waters, and the deodorant and the unpretentious, non-smoking, cock-sure. He's dressed in a regular blue and red plaid shirt, but he's hot, and he's aware that he's never been one of the minimalistic aesthetes.

In an interview, the sense of the absurd...

Rolling Stone's Jann Wenner

They discover the secrets that day people don't have time to look for... The Night People

One of the deviant...

Lennig On Lugosi

Vision: Scarecrows of people... Community-University Day

Page 2P

Albany Student Press

October 8, 1974

In an interview, the sense of the absurd...

Rolling Stone's Jann Wenner

After the Woodstock flowers wilted

everyone thought Rolling Stone would dry up and blow away through the wind...

Wenner is a link between the two... extremes of a man who can understand both the Bob Dylan youth and the David Bowie fans...

Stacy PCEPT

by Nancy Albaugh

They discover the secrets that day people don't have time to look for...

The Night People

One of the deviant...

Lennig On Lugosi

Vision: Scarecrows of people... Community-University Day

Page 2P

Albany Student Press

October 8, 1974

In an interview, the sense of the absurd...

Rolling Stone's Jann Wenner

After the Woodstock flowers wilted...

everyone thought Rolling Stone would dry up and blow away through the wind...

Wenner is a link between the two extremes of a man who can understand both the Bob Dylan youth and the David Bowie fans...

Stacy PCEPT

by Nancy Albaugh

They discover the secrets that day people don't have time to look for...

The Night People

One of the deviant...

Lennig On Lugosi

Vision: Scarecrows of people... Community-University Day

Page 2P

Albany Student Press

October 8, 1974
The Night People
discover the secrets that day people don't have time to look for.

by Barbara Fleshini

Midnight Motives

The people who clean, protect and serve this University in the after-hours hours have a lot of different meanings for staying up so late. Some want to avoid the traffic, others think the nighttime atmosphere brings people closer together. Others either know a kid who'll have fun helping out during the day or have to work at 2 a.m. in order to support their families. More are stuck. They can't get better positions, have to wait for promotions which will bring better hours.

While motives differ, the expectations of night workers are often the same. Night people discover the secrets that day people don't have time to look for. The nighttime atmosphere brings a personal, unadulterated quality on a result of being unusually empty. This mystery wears off on workers, like Alexander Dzieniszewski, also have something of the supernatural about them.

It's 2 a.m. and on the third floor of the Campus Center WSCOA's "Night Watchman" Bill Naughton is searching through the few rooms that haven't been locked to the south. Next door the stall of the Albany Student Press gives in to the heavy blows caused by a recent good-morning letter to the printer. The women on the second floor are working all night and wonder where the ever-growing energy to do it.

Mr. Hoban, supervisor of the Campus Center maintenance staff heard him call out. He hopped up: a night janitor. The women on the second floor are working all night and wonder where the ever-growing energy to do it.

Mr. Hoban, supervisor of the Campus Center maintenance staff heard him call out. He hopped up. Two nights a week 2 a.m. is the middle of the day for him and his staff.

Mr. Hoban stands in the big, empty lobby of the Campus Center. Nobody is using the bathrooms, nobody is sitting in the vending machines. The steps are polished, all the chills down below in the cafeteria wind up and the only thing bring in is the sun. Mr. Hoban has been a janitor for many years. He's seen it all. He's seen it all. He's seen it all.

He looked down at the solid solution used to clean the writing before. Mr. Hoban had said that "It burns your lungs out."

Mr. Hoban knows other secrets too. Garbage can be very revealing.

"One night we got a suicide call. We went down and found a dead body—eight feet high. We put him in the car with us and Mr. Hoban told us what to do with the body."

"I ain't got nothing to say."

"Well, sometimes they laugh."

"Not even sometimes?"

"Five years."

"How long have you been doing this?"

"Two years."

"Do you enjoy the garbage?"

"Gross, no."

"Even in the dark?"

"Well, yes."

"Does everyone laugh?"

"No."

"Maybe sometimes, I laugh."

"She looked down at the solid solution used to clean the writing before."

It's hard to picture those going on patrol and making up the night watch in front of them is a child about to learn how to discover the secrets that day people don't have time to look for.
Lennig On Lugosi

Lenny Lennig and Bella Lugosi

> "Curiously, the people come off rather badly in horror films, as opposed to their golden virtues in 'message pictures'."

(Page 244)

OCTOBER 8, 1974
ALBANY STUDENT PRESS

To the Editor:

I see a great many rumors going around on campus about the various candidates running for Central Council election. I am one of the candidates downtown. It seems like there is a lot of truth in the rumors, but there are also some matters being misrepresented.

First of all, I have heard it is true that I am not a hardworking or intelligence. This is not true. I have been working hard to get a good grade in my classes. I have also been volunteering my time to help others.

Secondly, I have been accused of being a liar. This is also not true. I have never lied on my résumé or during interviews. I have always been honest and truthful.

Finally, I have been accused of not being a team player. I am very much a team player and I believe in working together with others to achieve our goals.

In conclusion, I am not the person that some people are making me out to be. I am a hardworking, honest, and team-oriented person. I urge everyone to vote for me in the Central Council election.

Sincerely,
[Signature]

United We Stand

To the Editor:

United We Stand is a group of students who believe in working together to make our college a better place. We are concerned about the recent events on campus and believe that we can make a positive difference by working together.

We have been working towards unity and we believe that our efforts will help to bring our college together. We urge everyone to join us in our efforts to make our college a better place for all.

United We Stand

Brave Reply

To the Editor:

I was just reading the article about the United Way and I wanted to reply. I don't think that the United Way is a bad organization. I think that they are trying to help others.

However, I do think that there are some problems with the way that the United Way is run. I think that they need to be more accountable and transparent.

I urge everyone to think about what they can do to help others in their community. We can all make a difference.

Sincerely,
[Signature]
My parents have also told me indirectly that women must be independent and learn to fend for themselves. My parents grew up at a time when women were expected to be housewives and mothers. They were never faced with this problem. However, I am in a generation that must choose between the image of the girl next door and the image of the career woman.

For many, women in college today, this is the first time they have seriously considered the many roles a woman must play. They are addressed lingering on.

If you haven't seen the movie Easy Rider, you are missing an opportunity to see a powerful flick possible have to a large extent the women's movement.

If you haven't seen the movie Easy Rider, you are missing an opportunity to see a powerful flick possible have to a large extent the women's movement.
Nektar's Sound and Light Theater

by Susan Bragg and Matt Kamm

The next stop on the West Coast is a place where the scene is more laid back, and the sounds are just as loud. Nektar is a band that has been around since the early 70s, and they've been a part of the San Francisco underground music scene since its inception. Their sound is a blend of rock androll, with a touch of psychedelic influence.

Today's concert is at the Sound and Light Theater, located on Market Street in San Francisco. The venue is small, but the energy is high. Nektar takes the stage, and the crowd goes wild. The band begins with one of their classic songs, and the audience is swept away.

But the sensational experience of Nektar does not end there. After the concert, the band members take time to meet and greet their fans. It's a rare opportunity to get up close and personal with the musicians who have been a part of the music scene for so long.

The night concludes with a tour of the city, where the band members show off their favorite haunts and best kept secrets. It's a perfect end to an incredible night of music and friendship.
\section*{Runners Win Again; Top Williams College}

\section*{Batmen Continue SUNYAC Success}

\begin{itemize}
  \item By Mike Palinski
  \item "Well, one has to admit that in Bar, it's pretty good, when you compare the Green Waves. Baseball field is one example. \textit{SUNYAC} competition. After taking a lead from New York State, and so far, the progress of the game.\textit{SUNYAC} competition, the team is now sporting a 6-1 record in SUNYAC competition, the team is now sporting a 6-1 record. "We just played a little better than the \textit{SUNYAC} competition. As long as you win and the \textit{SUNYAC} competition, we're always looking for a way to improve. If I had a choice, I would always say that the \textit{SUNYAC} competition is better than the \textit{SUNYAC} competition."
\end{itemize}

\section*{Pups Drop Third}

\begin{itemize}
  \item By Ed Holmide
  \item "On Friday Oct, the J.V. team won the \textit{SUNYAC} competition, and then on Saturday, it was the \textit{SUNYAC} competition.\textit{SUNYAC} competition. The team is now sporting a 6-1 record in SUNYAC competition, and the team is now sporting a 6-1 record."
\end{itemize}
DeBlois' Runs Lead Danes Over RIT

by Mike Timan

Late in the third quarter, with 9:08 left on the clock and trying to put the game out of reach, Seniors starting quarterback and leading rusher Mike DeBlois, the second leading rusher in the conference with 912 yards, carried the ball into the end zone for a seven-yard touchdown to secure the 50-7 victory.

Turf Hampers Booters; Tie Cortland 0-0

by Nathan Ewell

In a game that was delayed for two hours due to the elements, the Booters and Cortland played to a 0-0 tie.

Clark Aims at Republican Giant

by Mike Senior

Clark, the last man standing, is aiming at the Republican giant.

Jackson Blames Arabs

by Doug Hebbel

Clark, the last man standing, is aiming at the Republican giant.