By Roger McCuin of the Albany Student Press

To the Editor:

Several weeks ago I wrote a letter expressing some of my opinions on the Albany Student Association. Since then, I have been surprised by the vehemence and hostility of the ASP. I am now, as a result of these communications, not so sure of my beliefs. I am now, in fact, more concerned with the ASP than with my original concern.

I believe that the ASP is only concerned with pleasing themselves and their members. They are not concerned with the students who do not belong to the ASP.

To the ASP and its readers:

Perhaps most people on this campus are snotty and never will be able to change their attitude.

My situation is not as bad as theirs. I am not as concerned, but I would not term myself as a "neutral" person. The fact that all the ASP members are snotty, does not mean that all the ASP members are concerned. The fact that all the ASP members are snotty, does not mean that all the ASP members are concerned. The fact that all the ASP members are snotty, does not mean that all the ASP members are concerned.

To all those who think that Albany State College is concerned, but I would not term myself as a "neutral" person. ALBANY STUDENT PRESS

CONCLUSIONS

The basis of interactions with Hobart College officials, students, townsmen, and County law enforcement officials and Thomas Tongyai is apparent. In response to growing community concern about the relationship between the statesmen, the Hobart College authorities, and the townsmen, the commissioners called for a state investigation. Congressman Frank Lautenberg sought a state investigation. "We have a problem," Lautenberg said, "and we need a full investigation."

SUMMARY

The events at Hobart College are much more dramatic, involving students, police, and the college administration. The police were called in to quell the disorder, but the situation escalated. The college administration tried to handle the situation internally, but the community was not satisfied. The state investigation called for by Congressman Lautenberg was necessary and appropriate.

Tongyai's role in the incident remains unclear. He may have been an undercover agent, or he may have been involved in some other capacity. Further investigation is needed to determine his involvement.

PARKS

The police department and the college administration should establish a joint committee to investigate the incident and to develop policies to prevent similar incidents from occurring in the future. The committee should include representatives from the police department, the college administration, and the community.

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon renewed his request Monday for a $2.2 billion expansion of the current $1.3 billion student aid program and for additional funds for a new program to help communities or schools with limited enrollments.

The request was part of Nixon's annual budget message to Congress, delivered in a letter to House Speaker Carl Albert.

The president said the aid program is needed to help communities and schools with limited enrollments.
