The diplomatic concept of the League of Nations was the obvious answer to the problem of international relations, but the difficulties of the League's implementation have been emphasized by the constant failure to establish a world organization.

The Council of Ten, as advocated by the League, is a step in the right direction. The council is a smaller group of nations which can more easily reach agreements than the larger group of the League.

The Council of Ten will have to be based on the principles of international agreements and the spirit of cooperation. It must not be a body of nations which are independent of each other

There's No Great Mystery about Cigarette Tobaccos

Tobacco is a plant grown for its leaves, which are used as a drug. It is a member of the family Solanaceae, and is closely related to the potato and tobacco. The leaves of the tobacco plant are dried and ground into a powder, which is then mixed with other ingredients to make cigarettes.

ALL THESE TOBACCO except Turkish (which is bought direct from the planters in Turkey and Greece) and Maryland (which is bought through sealed bids under government supervision), are bought at public auction, just like any other auction where you might have bought in a table or chair.

At the auction the tobacco is potted in boxes weighing from 100 to 500 pounds and each purchasing buyer has his tobacco by competitive bidding for the particular pinares he wants.

The Chesterfield buyers buy the best of these mild rich tobaccos for the Chesterfield blend. And it is Chesterfield's Combination... the right amounts of Burley and Bright... just enough Maryland... just enough Turkish—that makes the big difference between Chesterfield and other cigarettes.

It is because of this combination that Chesterfield are COOLER, have a BETTER TASTE and are DEFINITELY MINDER. They are made of the world's best cigarette tobaccos. You can't buy a better cigarette.
