 wouldn't want him here, so I was surprised when he showed up at my house. My parents were out and I didn't want him to know where I lived. I tried to act casual but I knew he was watching me. I went into my room and locked the door. I didn't know what I was going to do next. I thought about telling him to leave but I didn't want to hurt his feelings.

Eventually, I decided to talk to him. I opened the door and said, "What are you doing here?" He looked surprised and said, "I was just checking in. I didn't want to worry you." I smiled and said, "It's okay. I was just being cautious. Do you have any plans for tonight?" He said, "I was thinking about going to see a movie. What about you?" I said, "I don't know. I might go out with some friends." He nodded and said, "Okay. I'll see you around then." I closed the door and went back to my room.

The next day, I called him up and asked if he wanted to hang out. We went to the library and studied for our exams together. We became good friends and I realized I didn't have anything to be afraid of. I couldn't believe how quickly things had changed. I was glad I had talked to him instead of just letting things get out of hand.
Council Usurps Power

Last week Student Council announced that it had acted as a special Student Assembly meeting. This announcement was made in response to an article published on the front page of The Lloyd Studio, a newspaper published by the Student Council. The article stated that the Council had failed to comply with any of the rules of procedure governing its meetings.

The Council's announcement said that it had taken action to remedy this situation by voting to dissolve itself and to call for a special meeting of the Student Assembly to consider the matter. The Council also said that it would give the Student Assembly the opportunity to elect new officers and to adopt new rules of procedure.

Traditions Triumph

Traditions are the essence of life in tradition. They are the beauty and essence of tradition. They are the lifeblood of tradition. They are the lifeblood of tradition. They are the lifeblood of tradition.

The Lloyd Studio is proud of the traditions that have been established by the Council. We are especially proud of the tradition of the Student Council meeting every Wednesday night at 8 p.m. in the student lounge.

The Council's announcement was met with enthusiasm by many of the students. They were pleased with the Council's decision to dissolve itself and to call for a special meeting of the Student Assembly. They were also pleased with the Council's decision to adopt new rules of procedure.

LaSalle Defeats State Fencers

LaSalle defeated State Fencers on Tuesday night at the State Fencers Club. The match was played in front of a packed house and was a great success. The students were very pleased with the outcome of the match and are looking forward to more matches in the future.

Nearly everyone who witnessed the match was amazed at the skill and dedication of the LaSalle fencers. They were especially impressed with the performance of the State fencers, who fought hard throughout the entire match. They were also impressed with the performance of the LaSalle fencers, who fought hard throughout the entire match.

We are looking forward to seeing more matches in the future and are excited about the future of fencers at LaSalle.
