Reports indicate that State College students are really going along with the new plan for publishing the college daily called "State College News." The plan called for the college to publish a daily newspaper on October 17, 1941.

This new plan is designed to keep students informed of the latest news and events on campus. The newspaper, published every weekday, will feature news, sports, and local community events.

Scholastics:

The Freshman Class
And Its Politics

A poll conducted among the freshmen of the Class of 1944 revealed some interesting insights into their political affiliations. The poll asked students to indicate their party preference, and the results were as follows:

- 35% Republican
- 25% Democratic
- 20% Independent
- 10% Other
- 10% Undecided

The freshmen class is clearly leaning towards the Republican Party, with nearly half of the respondents indicating their support. This trend is likely to continue as the freshmen become more familiar with the political landscape.

North Carolina's Challenge....

Students Collect
88 Tons of Scrap

Sentiment was shelved when 300 students of North Carolina State College got behind the newspaper scrap drive and rounded up 175,000 pounds of metal in less than three hours. Sponsored by The Technician in cooperation with the student council, the drive kept eight trucks busy and netted three carloads of scrap.

Many relics dear to campus tradition were thrown into the heap, and the shout "get in the scrap" became the school cheer. At the end of the day, the scrap pile included such items as a World War I German howitzer, a football goal post and hundeds of other items from boilers to bed springs. And with the campaign ended North Carolina has issued a challenge to other schools of the nation to outdo it in collecting scrap. The student body of 2,400 is ready to take on all-comers on a per capita basis. They have an average of 72 pounds per student.

Scrap collecting was facilitated by the use of "walkie-talkie" radios used regularly to instruct ROTC students in the Signal Corps. These radios went with the trucks and kept a constant communication with the base at the scrap pile. Assignments for the trucks were made on the run.

The favorite meeting spot of North Carolina students is now part of the scrap drive, and the parting word will be, "meet me where the cannon used to be." The college is an ROTC school and contributed many old field pieces to the scrap drive.

There was the toughest job of the drive. Twenty students were required to move a carload of tile to get at an old German howitzer deep under the stadium. There was still a lot to be done when this picture was taken.

COSTLIER TOBACCOS

Touchdown! Pennsylvannia's Bert Stiff comes to rest in the not-too-gentle arms of Yale halfback Townsend Hoopes, but he's across the goal line for the first tally of the game which wound up in a 35-6 win for the Quakers.
Frosh Gather Scrap—Hard work and plenty of it was poured onto the freshmen at St. Ambrose College when the student council turned over the entire freshman class to the city of Davenport, Iowa, to assist in the salvage drive. Instead of gathering of wood for the homecoming bonfire, metal to "Scrap the Japs" was collected.

A Roundtable Discussion—A roundtable discussion aired over the university radio station brought to a close the two-day Western Conference Women's Debate League session at Purdue University. Representatives of all Big Ten schools studied the question, "What part shall the U.S. play in establishing a just and stable post-war order?"

Learning the Hard Way—Winthrop College students in sociology and home economics learn how much time and effort go into the farm laborer's dollar by spending their afternoons picking cotton in nearby fields. Incidentally, they buy war stamps and bonds with the money they earn as well as help relieve the labor shortage.

Hollywood Bond Salesman Here Nothing On Him—Adolph Fleischmann displayed checks for $1,000, part of his day's collections for the war bond drive. Working nights as a janitor at Yale University, Fleischmann travels around during the daytime working as a bond salesmen. He has already reached the $261,000 mark.

Just an Old Family Custom—Most colleges have homecoming queens but few are able to have sisters so honored. In 1940 Helen Thomas, left, was chosen by the students of Illinois State University in Charleston and this year her sister, Margery, right, was selected.

Two of a Kind—Dud Kean and Don Buffmire are used to doing things in pairs. They were born within 24 hours of each other in the same Grand Rapids, Minn., hospital. They lived on the same block, attended the same high school, were both pre-med students at North Western University, were both members of the Sigma Chi fraternity and have played on the football squad. That's Dud in the upper bunk.
How an Aviation Cadet Spends His Day

Every American youth wants to help his country in its defense of its principles, and there's nothing better about the Air Force that makes him want to do his part — because of his service which is to the nation. In this case, Cadet Harris' experience is that of a man who has been through the tough training of a pilot in the United States Air Forces. The training he has undergone is one of the most demanding and arduous tasks he has ever faced.

At 6:30 a.m., the sun is just starting to rise and the Link Trainer is already warming up. Cadet Harris is ready to take on his first flight of the day. The Link Trainer is the bane of many cadet's existence, but for Harris, he can fly like a bat at night.

During his morning flight, Harris receives training in blind flying. The Link Trainer is the bane of many cadet's existence, but for Harris, he can fly like a bat at night.

For lunch, Cadet Harris imbibes in a little refreshment at the PX (Post Exchange). A universal custom when it gets to mid-afternoon, Harris enjoys a sandwich and a cup of coffee. A sound background in the theory of modern warfare is as important as a sound background in practical flying.

At 4:30 p.m., Harris takes part in a regular lecture session. Many hours are spent in the classroom and in outside book work, but not for Harris who can fly like a bat at night.

To get into the Army Air Force, a cadet has to be in perfect physical condition. Poor teeth can cause a lot of trouble, so Harris makes a dash for his toothbrush and a brisk morning scrubbing session.

At 7:30 p.m., Harris is ready to hit the sack. He sleeps well under the watchful eye of his hometown doctor. With a mighty yawn and a healthy stretch, Harris is ready for another day of training.

The cadet's life is filled with hard work, but for Harris, he can fly like a bat at night.

One of the big moments in the 1941 season, Illinois went on to win 20-13, the first Big Ten loss for the Gophers in more than two years.

Students attended an "A" Club scrap dance and dumped more than 20 tons of metal at the door . . . scrap which served the double purpose of gaining them admission to the games and providing economic support for the university.

State Girls Seek Ideal Mates—

Most Prefer Dominating Men

The state girls are looking for ideal mates, and the most preferred type is the dominating man. This preference is not surprising, as women are often attracted to men who take the initiative in a relationship. The dominating man is also often seen as more secure and confident, which can be appealing to women.
