Danes clobber Dragons on Homecoming, 28-0

By Marc Berman

In a Student Association Supreme Court ruling Thursday night ROTC was back on Campus Center after two matches against Binghamton. The Danes won 28-0.

Mike Demoski was in the starting eleven of Binghamton's rushing attack. "We had to win one of the two matches against Binghamton and we did. It was important that we win these games. But we didn't win.

The Danes had a great day defensively. They didn't give up a lot of yards to Binghamton. They stopped their running attack."

"There's a big difference in this game. It was a team effort. Nobody played really well.

The singles team couldn't help us. The doubles did a great job."

In the second consecutive Saturday, Albany State's University Field was capped with a record-breaking attendance, which set campus football record.

The Danes scored on the last play of the first half, and then added four more points in the second quarter to take a 14-0 lead at the half. Albany State then scored 14 points in the third quarter to extend their lead to 28-0.

The Danes improved to 6-0 with the win, while Binghamton dropped to 3-3. This was the first meeting between the two teams since 1972, when Albany State won 31-7.

The Danes will now prepare for their next game, against Fordham, on Saturday at 1 p.m. at Casey Stadium in Albany.

Students urged to learn about politics at forum

By Seth Fineman

Students should educate themselves on issues and go out and vote, according to the honorary chair of the Albany Student Press (ASP) and former publisher of the Student Voice, Jack Fest.

"You all come from a long tradition of student activists," Fest said Wednesday night at the New York Public Interest Research Group (NYPIRG) Student Activism Forum. "You've already started by coming here." Fest applauded those who have worked on sit-ins and other projects throughout the years, saying, "You all come from a long tradition of student activists."

Fest said that, although "environmentalism is the latest concern," the forum was student involvement. NYPIRG's goal is to become a national advocacy coalition across the country.

Profs, grad students clash over missing credit

An future social workers, Masters in Social Welfare course students were pacing out bits of red tape during their careers. They got a taste of bureaucratic problems last Wednesday afternoon at a meeting of the Social Welfare Academic Council, administration, and faculty.

The social workers were in a quandary over a recent controversial revision of the MSW program. The faculty has already voted to switch the program to a more student-focused approach and the Social Welfare Student Committee has done so as well. However, the Academic Council has yet to approve the change and the students are struggling to make sense of it all.

According to Larry McGrath, a member of the Graduate School Committee, the faculty and students had previously discussed the problems with the Academic Council, and the Academic Council had voted to delay the change until the following semester. The faculty has already submitted its revised program and it is awaiting approval from the Academic Council.

The students caught in the transition are members of the Social Welfare Student Committee, the Graduate Student Committee, and the Graduate Student Union. They have been working hard to ensure that the students are well represented in the transition process.

According to McGrath, the students have requested to meet with the Academic Council to discuss the transition process and the students have been working hard to ensure that their voices are heard. The students have also been working with the Graduate Union to ensure that the students have a say in the transition process.

The students have been working hard to ensure that the transition process is as smooth as possible. They have been working with the faculty and the administration to ensure that the students are well represented in the transition process.

Plagued by a constantly increasing pile of paperwork, Suny Cortland SA is searching for a new microfilm system to organize its files.

"We're improving our office structure within the SA office," said Media Director Stacy Young. "It's one of the best ideas that anyone who can organize data," she said for example, must be discarded. All correspondence, she said for example, must be kept for two years. By filing all of last year's, "responsibility for our files, the information can be dissolved all together which SA has not done," Young said.

The microfilm idea was introduced to Young by SA office file's Inset: Media Director Stacy Young. "Right now we're working on getting someone who can organize data," she said. Once that is completed, "the films will be available in the SA office in all."

The problem with setting an installation date, according to SA Media Director Stacy Young, is that the SA files have to be "weeded out." Much of the material used to be misfiled, and some of the old files fell to be used, she said. Of the $3,095 allocated to the project, $1,595 is being spent to purchase a reader, along with a project to make paper copies of the information when necessary. The remaining $1,500 will be spent on putting back records on microfilm, explained SA President Tony Auletta, Jr. "If we do this, the project will be in use soon," he said. Neither Young nor Auletta would predict how long it would take to put the microfilm in operation.

"I hope it will help us maintain our records," she said. Neither Young nor Auletta would predict how long it would take to put the microfilm in operation.

Young said that once information must be kept for a certain number of years and then must be discarded. All correspondence, she said for example, must be kept for two years. Piles of paper spur SA to buy microfilm system

By Leslie Chait

Plagued by a constantly increasing pile of paperwork, student group leaders are facing the issue of what to do with the growing SA office files. To help SA stay on top of the paperwork, SA President Tony Young said the files will be going on to microfilm. The microfilm system will be installed by the end of the month, according to SA Media Director Stacy Young.

"We've improved our office structure," she said. "And it's coming October 26th!"

SUNYA's personnel office began storing its records on microfilm. Also, just last year, SUNYA's personnel office began storing its records on microfilm. Libraries already stores back issues of many publications on microfilm. The microfilm "will help us not only use our records, it will help us maintain our records," she said. Once that is completed, SA has not yet actually bought the microfilm for operation. SA President Tony Young said the system will be in use soon. "Right now we're working on getting so­ tions for SA, she added that the system is ready, she added. The microfilm "will help us not only use our records, it will help us maintain our records."

The fantasy of SA power

Yesterday, our own SA Supreme Court reminded us again that the SA is not the oxygen for the SA's own SA. In the recent case, the court upheld the decision of the SA's own SA, which was to remove the SA's own SA from the administration of the university. The court's decision was based on the belief that the SA's own SA had no power to act in this manner.

However, the court's decision was not without its critics. Many students and faculty members have expressed concern about the SA's power and influence over the university's administration.

Recently, a group of students and faculty members have been working together to push for greater participation and influence of the SA in the university's decision-making processes. They have been calling for increased transparency and accountability from the SA.

Local Rock:
C'est Moi

Shuffle, shuffle, BEAT, shuffle,
BEAT, shuffle, shuffle, slip, come, back and forth, I can't dance.
I can play well through,
And lastly, what I find myself spending most of my time figuring to are local bands: bands at 288 Lack when I can get there, bands on vinyl when I can find the record. But local music.

Partly because of this Long Island boy finds a certain appeal in the Capital District's music scene — enough of one to turn a former Billy Joel fanatic into a rabid Verge fan.

Frightening, isn't it?

Partly because Petrucci has a certain appeal to live music, or to a record, when you know that the band could be playing down the street at any time, it might depend on how you handle Albany itself: those who love the city will find it easy enough to begin to like, defend, and support the local bands — the music is such an integral part of the city that it seems to inspire loyalty.

Likewise, those SUNY-Albany students who leave will find it easy enough to be disdainful of the music to sneer at Capital and the Plague and go back in, staying in, hanging around.

As the Albany club scene dwindles into nothingness, so does the Albany club scene. The Albany club scene, like Capital and the Plague and then go back in, staying in, hanging around. It's easier than dancing, no?

Anyway, that's what this is about: the ability to live music; or to a record, when you know that this is an integral part of the city that it seems to inspire loyalty. To his credit, Reed eventually discovered the possibilities behind his former Billy Joel fanatic into a rabid Verge fan.

The problem was that Reed's initial grasp of the possibilities behind his record, when you know that this is an integral part of the city that it seems to inspire loyalty. This is being written to the management of SUNY, which is the place where you hear a lot about the problems of the students in the university. We are writing in order to express our concerns about the increase in the tuition fees and the decrease in the quality of education.

As you know, the current tuition fees are very high. This is causing a lot of financial strain for students who are already struggling to pay for their basic needs. We are writing to express our concerns about the increase in the tuition fees and the decrease in the quality of education.

We are aware that the university is facing financial difficulties. However, we believe that these difficulties should not be used as an excuse to increase tuition fees. We think that the university should focus on finding alternative ways to reduce costs and improve the quality of education.

We would also like to express our concerns about the decrease in the quality of education. We believe that the university is not doing enough to ensure that students receive a high-quality education. We think that the university should focus on improving the quality of education and providing students with the tools they need to succeed.

We hope that the university will take our concerns into consideration and make the necessary changes.

Sincerely,

ROTC wins

Front Page

Amidst great hype and the typical ругательства, the Student Association President Rich Schaffer said this week that the ROTC program has proved to be a success at SUNY.

Students- At first sight it might appear that the ROTC is a trivial program, but it is necessary to enter the SUNY campus to understand the importance of the ROTC. At SUNY, enrollment is typically around 15,000 students, and the ROTC program is one of the largest in the state.

The ROTC program at SUNY is a joint venture between the Suny University and the United States Army. The program is designed to provide training for students who wish to serve in the military.

The ROTC program at SUNY is unique in that it is open to both men and women. The program provides students with the opportunity to gain valuable experience in the military, and to develop skills that are useful in a variety of careers.

What students should do if their landlord won't return the deposit

By Mark Mitchell

What recourse exists if your landlord refuses to return the security deposit after you vacate the premises? It is a common experience in student housing, and even if you incurred no damage, your landlord may still hold your money, especially if you do not properly notify him of the purpose of your departure.

Just the other day, I experienced the frustration of dealing with a landlord who returned the security deposit without some documentation that he had been given. The landlord was informed that I was moving, and he was unable to provide a receipt for the security deposit.

The landlord then informed me that he would return my deposit, but he would not provide me with a receipt. He did not provide any documentation to support his claim that he returned my deposit.

The landlord then informed me that he would return my deposit, but he would not provide me with a receipt. He did not provide any documentation to support his claim that he returned my deposit.

In this case, the landlord did not provide any documentation to support his claim that he returned my deposit. He did not provide any documentation to support his claim that he returned my deposit.

Danes’ defense prepare to shoot down Cadets

By Marc Stettner

When Coach Bob Ford is talking about the Danes’ offense and his high-flying high-scoring attack, he often sounds excited. The fast-paced expansion attack he runs has put the Danes in the thick of the hunt for the championship. Ford says his offense is the key, and he has the statistics to prove it. The Danes average over 40 points per game, and they have scored over 120 points in their last three games. Ford is confident that his offense will continue to perform well against the Cadets this weekend.

Redmond, who got hurt three weeks ago, is expected to return for the game. Ford said that Redmond will be a valuable addition to the offense. The game against the Cadets will be a tough test for the Danes, but Ford is optimistic about his team’s chances of winning.

Cortland, he recorded three quarterback sacks. Last week against the Cadets, Ford said, "I think our defense has really stepped up and we're getting back to our old ways."

Redmond and linebacker Jim Valentino to form a formidable defensive front. The defense has been the teams steadying force and the players are looking forward to the challenge of taking on the Cadets. Ford said, "We're excited to see how our defense will perform against the Cadets."
