Spikers Roll; Sweep Three

By Ken Karn

The Albany State Volleyball Club, according to their coach, was ready to take on the spikers tonight. Although the team had not been able to practice for three weeks, they were still determined to win. The Sunday meeting was called by Coach Taillor, the coach for women’s volleyball, and the spikers were given a pep talk before the match. The game was won 3-0, with scores of 25-12, 25-14, and 25-8.

Students Rally To Protest Cuts

By Kevin Rosov

Some 150 students from across the country have descended on Harlem this week to protest the cuts being made to their university budgets. The rally, taking place on Thursday, was attended by students from Harvard, MIT, and Yale, among others. The students are calling for more funding for their universities and are demanding that the cuts be reversed.

Little SUNY Support

By Thomas Martin

One major concern between this year’s rally and last year’s was the lack of support from the students. Although some students attended the rally, many more chose not to participate. The students who did attend were passionate and energetic, but they were in the minority.

Benecke Freed On Bond

By Kevin Rosov

Benecke College President John Benecke was freed on bond today after being arrested last week for his role in the sports scandal. Benecke had been in jail for over a month, but today he was released on a $10,000 bond. The students at Benecke College are celebrating the news and are hoping that the controversy will soon be over.

Women Swimmers Finish Season

Women swimmers practice by running through pedestrian tunnels. Albany captured distance relay in both men’s and women’s events.

Arongo Stars, Breezy Write

Indoor soccer is alive. And the Albany State soccer team is doing just fine. The team, after fighting their way into the top 10 in the nation, lost 1-0 to the sixth-ranked team last week.

Albany Beats SUNY

Albany’s men’s basketball team defeated the SUNY Albany men’s team 78-70 last night. The game was held at the SUNY Albany field house and was attended by over 3,000 fans.

Suny Students Get Notice

The SUNY system issued a notice today, warning students that they may lose their financial aid if they do not complete their classes on time. The notice was sent to all students via email and was accompanied by a list of consequences for non-completion.

"We didn’t get the news until last night when we were told to come to class," said one student. "We were surprised and disheartened. We had been preparing for this class all semester, and now it looks like we might have to start over."
DiMeo to Throw Party for VIP's

by Paul Remotes
All least thirty state legislators will visit SUNY Albany Monday night for a Legislative Night sponsored by SA. The event is aimed at addressing the financial problems at the State University at Albany, according to SA President Steve DiMeo.

"To show them out of their background and pass them over our home turf," said DiMeo. "Prospective alumni are good at lobbying for themselves; we should make the effort to do so in the right manner."

While cheap and light punch will be served, and DiMeo who added the evening will cost about $300.

"The idea is to make the politicians who are in Albany and students there see that light is how we go."

"They were presented in the right way and said to be in the right way."

Also, at SUNY Albany who attended the campus, DiMeo said, "Instead of us going down to the Campus and informing

Student Wins Computer Battle

Albany, N.Y. (AP) A southern New York student who battled with a computer subroutine to obtain the Regents scholarship he won now has a new name. Thompson, 22, a student at the University of Albany, was able to beat the computer subroutine, "Get Out of Here!"

He said the subroutine told him he had "tried too long and too hard" to get the scholarship. But he did it by sending letters, and making numerous long distance phone calls. Thompson said he announced to the computer that the problem was over. He received the scholarship certificate in the mail.

The computer subroutine was set up by the University of Albany to test the ability of students to get the scholarship. The computer then issued an error message.

"And I'll do it by any apparently uncaught subroutine.

Here's your chance. We can both and mean forever about the university's policies on academic, but here's your opportunity to get a decisive word in edgewise. The President's Special Committee to Review the Undergraduate Experience will, in the next few weeks, forward its proposals to you. At this crucial point in its deliberations, the more information the committee is faced with the better the chance of an equitable, knowledgeable proposal. So take out five minutes. Sit down, give this some serious thought, and let the powers that be know that you care.

Some excerpts from the committee's information soliciting letter:

The committee has been appointed by President Field to reexamine the concept of a liberal arts education at Stanford University. The purposes of this letter are, first, to seek advice from the academic community on what it perceives to be the goals of the liberally educated person and, second, to help identify alternative avenues to reach these goals.

The committee believes that there is "one" best curriculum, but rather there should be a continuing search and learning to capture the changing concepts of education. For instance, one avenue frequently suggested is the reestablishment of distribution requirements. This is certainly one alternative, discovering these alternatives.

The great debate over DNA

By peanut

The past several years have seen a great deal of discussion and debate about the role of DNA in the functioning of the cell. This has been particularly true in the field of genetics, where the discovery of DNA has had a profound impact on our understanding of the inheritance of traits.

The colossal South Mall, situated in the midst of a slum is an incongruity which is difficult to reconcile.
By CLAUDIA M. STANKER
Student Activities Advisor Dennis Eklund heads a dual life. Not only is he the faculty advisor for Telethon, he is also the coordinator for intercollegiate athletics and recreation.
Telethon came into existence in 1967 when Eklund was a junior here at SUNY. He began to participate in Telethon during his senior year.
Before becoming SUNYA's activities advisor, Eklund was a member of the Student Activities Association and was later an advisor to the SUNYA Concert Board. He was also involved in SUNYA's intercollegiate sports when they were more popular.
Eklund has been the faculty advisor to Telethon for the past three years. As advisor, he made suggestions to the student co-chairs of Telethon. Eklund makes no actual decisions regarding Telethon, merely serves as an advisor to the student officers.
He says, "We think of Telethon as an activity for students. Last year Telethon raised a total of $16,000 for the Woodward School for the Developmentally Handicapped. Telethon expects to surpass last year's total when Telethon '77 ends with the traditional 24 hour marathon on the 25th and 26th of May."
While busy preparing for the upcoming talent contest, Eklund is also performing his duties as advisor for intercollegiate athletics and recreation.
Furthermore, Eklund says that Telethon and intercollegiate sports do not conflict. He does, however, spend more time with his obligations to the Association of Men's Intercollegiate Athletics and Recreation.
The reason, according to Eklund, because Telethon is not primarily a sporting activity. Eklund considers himself a "student advisor or a resource person for the group."
"The major responsibility for AMIA and WIRA is the scheduling of intercollegiate activities. Eklund believes that his most important function as advisor is to have something to do."
Presently, a student intramural body makes all the decisions regarding intercollegiate activities. However, since Telethon is not regulated by the Association of Men's Intercollegiate Athletics and Recreation. SUNYA, one of the fine universities to do so, has a faculty advisor who advises the students who make the decisions for themselves.
Eklund is the first such advisor at SUNYA.
"There needs to be someone who knows about teamwork and how they should be done," Eklund said.
Eklund attends conventions and gets feedback from them, too. He's attended other universities so that SUNYA's intramural program can be kept up to date.
Eklund is the faculty advisor for Telethon, and is also an advisor for the Women's Intramural Association. WIRA.
Eklund said, "I'm from New York City so I graduated from SUNYA with a bachelor's degree in social work."
Eklund is the first such advisor at SUNYA.

A SUNYA VISION

From Scholar to Senator

By STEPHEN ALMASI

SUNYA student, Almasi describes this as the most beautiful state in the Union, and while he may be a bit biased, he believes it is true.
While on campus, a student can find everything from sports, to the nature, to the culture, and everything in between.
For a member of the Republican minority, Almasi feels confident of his ability to get things done.
Not all has gone well so far. Farley's first bill, which would have protected the legislators, only to be approved by Governor Lodge.
Carry. When it was passed, he said, "I wasn't sure if I was going to get re-elected, so I thought it was a good idea to get it out there.

The SUNYA students have just elected a number of them to the Student Senate to represent them on campus.

Roster and information available in CC 356

SUNYA students and staff of the campus, the Albany State campus is not part of Farley's Senate district. Still, he serves as an Untied States Senator on issues concerning education.

Farley will be talking about the budget and the projections during the full session, partly because he knows the job, partly because the money. His income is all "government benefits."
South Mall: Aesthetics versus Economy

...one of the most beautiful and spectacular capitals in the world.

The Empire State Plaza, a two billion dollar reminder of Nelson Rockefeller's 15 years of governorship, stands out like a sore thumb against the decaying ghetto area surrounding it.

The Plaza, more commonly referred to as Albany's South Mall, was the dream child of the former Governor, and serves a dual purpose. The site was designated for an interval to office space, while the governor personally stepped to make Albany, in his own words, "one of the most beautiful and spectacular capitals in the world." With these two ideas in mind, Empire State Plaza was born.

As already stated the need for office space was great. In the late period that it took to build the mall, state offices space had changed from one million to nearly two million square feet.

However, the practicality of the investment is questionable. The construction for this ultra-modern piece of architecture took 17 years to complete and required 900,000 cubic yards of concrete, 272,000 tons of steel and 88,000 tons of marble. The cost has been marked at two billion dollars.

These figures, reflecting the amount of space and energy demanded by the building's functions, are exorbitant. Accordingly, the initial feeling of beauty one may get upon first inspection is overshadowed by the recognition of the hours of labor and extensive funding that it required.

In sharp contrast to this $2 billion "Emerald City," lies the slums of the surrounding neighborhood. Dilapidated, buildings are to be found as far as the eye can see. One must also keep in mind that these areas exist not only near the South Mall, but all over the state.

The wisdom of our leaders and the nature of their priorities regarding urban development, specifically the trade-off between aesthetic monuments and minimal living standards is by no means certain.

It is even more disturbing to consider the opportunity cost of the Plaza in terms of housing, education and the viability of the state's economy.

Indeed a reasonable person might think that the needs of the state government and those of the people could have been more wisely served.

In the coming years it will become harder for all of us to look at what Rockefeller has wrought, with the knowledge that thousands of people must live in conditions like those found in the South Mall area.

Money, Money Everywhere

Former Class of 1978 President Marc Benicek has been arrested for the theft of $300 in class funds. The theft occurred on campus.

University Police are only arresting on some $1100 of the money, and they say they have no interest in seeing Benicek go to jail. Class officials have no interest in seeing Benicek arrested. They say they are afraid that if Benicek is convicted he will be unable to finish paying back the $3000 to the class.

Granted, the class officials have legitimate fears. Perhaps Benicek has been punished enough by the publicity surrounding his situation and his suspension. Perhaps those who would extract monies from their fellow students in the future will think twice before doing so.

But Benicek's actions, resultant suspension, and arrest must go further than one individual. The issue is more than one person's misfortune at being caught.

Benicek could have easily gotten away with stealing a lesser amount. Only extravaganza and greed over a long period of time led to the discovery of the missing funds.

University Police and the Albany County District Attorney admit to difficulties in proving Benicek stole all that he has agreed to pay back. An investigation into his activities by University Police lasted four months. Class debts for which Benicek is responsible occurred over a two semester period in varying sums.

How many others like Benicek exist in positions where they can take a little off the top for themselves at student events?

What level of accountability is there at events like parties with large crowds and limited control?

What is to prevent agency account groups, such as the various classes, from spending monies earned or received on a select few rather than on the group?

What Benicek's situation should result in is the realization that he was alone in the size of his offense. Money is too low, the temptation is too great for any student to resist.

For the sake of present students, the Class of 1978, future students, and for the sake of trust on this campus, Benicek should experience the full brunt of the judicial system. An examination of his case and similar situations on this campus is a necessity if trust and credibility are ever again to be associated with student officials.

That's right. A ham. An amateur radio operator, that is. Now before you turn the page, wait a sec- ond. Stop thinking that ham radio is for nerds, electronics majors, and old retired people, because it's not. If you like tinkering with old radios and TV sets, enjoy talking to people in other countries (or just across town), enjoy contests, or a dozen other activities, ham radio is for you. The school's amateur radio station, WAZWZ, will be giving classes leading to Novice and General class licenses. They won't take that much of your time, will be totally inform- al, and given once a week in the Colonial Quad Tower Penthouse. There will be a general interest meeting this Saturday, March 19, at 2:00 pm up in the penthouse. We'll show you the radio shack, have a demonstration of the equipment, and dis- cuss the clubs across town. So, come on up, and see what it's like to be a ham.

Finley Accuses Kahn Again

CHEYANNE (AP) — Charlie Finley, Oakland's colorful owner, said in a newspaper interview Wednesday that the A's don't even have room for three of their players for a home game.

Finley also said in the telephone interview, "Just because I don't give a damn about my baseball players in Oakland, doesn't mean I don't care about the players in Cleveland.

He added that the A's were "telling the truth" about room in the Coliseum."Finley said in the interview, "This is the last year the A's are going to be in Oakland."

Finley also threatened to sell the A's to the Cleveland Indians if the owners don't move the team to a new stadium in Cleveland.

The A's are scheduled to play in Oakland on Friday night and Sunday.

Spikers Split; Record Now Stands At 12-4

by Kirk Hall
The Stillman Bay Football Club captured its first home victory of the season on Friday night with a 24-20 win over the Alabama State Hornets. The Hornets started off well, but the Tigers took over in the second half and ran away with it.

The Tigers scored their first points of the game on a field goal by Trevor Allen in the first quarter. The Hornets responded with a touchdown late in the first quarter, but the Tigers answered with another field goal on a 22-yard kick from Doug Allen.

In the second quarter, the Tigers scored again on a 12-yard touchdown pass from Trevor Allen to wide receiver John Smith. The Hornets managed to score a field goal on a 41-yard attempt by Sam Brown, but the Tigers added another touchdown on a 1-yard run by running back Tom Johnson.
