BUFFALO NORMAL TO PLAY HERE TONIGHT

Varsity Wins From Rochester School of Optometry
By Score 9-12

END SUCCESSFUL SEASON

The varsity basketball team will complete its season schedule tonight when it plays Buffalo Normal at eight o'clock in the gymnasium. This has been the most successful season for State and the prospects are bright for a good showing next year.

State won its eighth game on defeating Rochester School of Optometry last Friday night, with a score of 19-12. State played without its regulars Horning and Krueger, yet the team had little difficulty in winning, keeping the ball from the first basket to the final whistle. The first half finished with State leading, the score being 12-7.

Coach Barger changed the line-up with the second half, pulling Carr out and placing Nephew center to forward, Horning at center. The playing was faster this half but Carr obliged his team again. This time Nephew guarding and Carr forward. Both teams showed strong play, but State was not up to form in the game against Cortland. The game was won on points, as State was outscored from the field by Rochester.

In the preliminary game Milne High defeated the Silver Day quintet with a score of 26-16.

MYSKANIA TRUNK IS FOUND BY CHARLES

The missing trunk purchased by the 1923 Myskania to store Campus Day costumes in, and which could not be found last fall, has been found by Charles in the room adjoining his office. The trunk was given to the Dramatics and Art association, the costumes will be in charge of Albany members of student council.

COLLEGE CONCERT IS DECIDED SUCCESS

Professor T. Frederick H. Candly reports that the concert given by the Music Association in the College auditorium February 24th, was the best concert that the chorus has ever given. Selections were by the Myskania Chorus, Women's Chorus, and the Orchestra. The orchestra selection "Gardar," composed by Catherine Benson, was enthusiastically applauded.

A special feature of the concert was a piano solo. "Minuet from L'Artiste Stolen" by Bizet, and "Valse, from Suite for Two Horns" by C. Aurensky, played by Thera J. Reigh and Professor Candly. The "Slavic Dance" by Smetana, a scene from Mobile, and the "Three American Dances" by Babbitt, were also well played. The violin solos, played by Mary Wentworth, Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Plowman, and "Chordata, the Spirit of the Sea" by G. C. Bastian, were received with highest approval. The lot of the two selections, "The Fly Singing Bird" by Elgar, was the accompanist.

G. T. PLOWMAN SPEAKS ON ETCHINGS EXHIBIT

Original etchings by George T. Plowman are now on exhibit in the main lobby and first floor corridor of the fine arts building, that were received from the Philadelphia School of Fine Arts, and are the work of ten American artists of that school: Theresa F. Bernstein, Corn Brooks, Isabel Hazen, William H. McDermott, Charles Conant, Charles Clopper, Mary Russell, Forbes, Fasan, L. Overy, Maude Mumford, and M. Elizabeth Price. The subjects include landscapes, seascapes, portraits, and still life groups.

GIRLS' VARSITY AND FACULTY TO BATTLE

The girls' varsity basketball team will play a faculty team, March 13. This game is claimed as the first of the plays given on Thursday evening, February 25. Lucille Barber, of the advanced dramatics class, will direct the performance. The atmosphere of the crowd's excitement and the excitement of the players, who will be dressed in their regular uniforms, will be very much appreciated.

The second play, in contrast to the first, will be a play of fantasy and humor. Mary Flannigan, in a juvenile role, again played her role. The performance included such characters as Vivian and her disciples, who showed off in a regal role; Bertha Zajian, a jolly maid; and A. Hapst, the philosophical blindman; G. T. Plowman, the headless man and the headless woman, the headless man and the headless woman, and the headless man and the headless woman. The membership of Miss Flannigan and Ollie Garey interpreted the Proverbs. Mary Nolan, of the advanced dramatics class, was director.

FAILURE DISGRACE IN GERMAN SCHOOLS, SAYS DECKER TO NEW CLUB

Students in the German department listened to a talk last Tuesday on "German Student Life" by Professor W. C. Decker. The talk was supplemented by slides on the same topic. Professor Decker emphasized especially the strict regulations to which the students are subject while at the "gymnasium," or school of languages, for nine years. He stressed the fact that students are taught to think that falling behind in school work is a disgrace of disgrace. They must go out into the world, he said, if they are immediately pointed out as derelicts. They have no reason for any course in any German university. They are now like competitors who have been behind since being locked up in the barn all winter. They declared they spend their time preparing for the university in having a good time. Professor Decker explained the fines which the students must pay on the same terms as outside resorts. But they result in much to the advantage of the school, and their influence leaves much to be desired. But after this year they generally settle down to work, and they are the most valuable students in the school. They go on to study in the university and teachers, and they are very few places in the lower levels where girls can pursue the same studies as boys. Higher education, he said, is absolutely for the higher classes of society.

After the lecture the matter of organization of the German society was considered, and a favorable motion carried. Alexander Arning, 27, was elected temporary president, and William A. Carlstrom, 27, and Helen Zeh, 28, are elected to serve a constitutional.

FLANIGAN, GREENBERG, STREET STAR IN PLAYS

The shadows cast by moonlight and the quiet melody of Beethoven's Minuet in G furnished the setting for the first of the plays given on Thursday evening, February 25. Lucille Barber, of the advanced dramatics class, will direct the performance. The atmosphere of the crowd's excitement and the excitement of the players, who will be dressed in their regular uniforms, will be very much appreciated.

The first play, in contrast to the second, was a play of fantasy and humor. Mary Flannigan, in a juvenile role, again played her role. The performance included such characters as Vivian and her disciples, who showed off in a regal role; Bertha Zajian, a jolly maid; and A. Hapst, the philosophical blindman; G. T. Plowman, the headless man and the headless woman, the headless man and the headless woman, and the headless man and the headless woman. The membership of Miss Flannigan and Ollie Garey interpreted the Proverbs. Mary Nolan, of the advanced dramatics class, was director.

RUSSELL SAGE WINS HARD-FOUGHT GAME

Two Teams Are Evenly Matched, Victoria Beating 42, and State 39

TROJAN DEFENSE GOOD

The fourth of the annual State-Russell Sage basketball games was played off Saturday afternoon in the gym, State losing 39 to 42. The teams were evenly matched and the game was fast throughout. Russell Sage started the game with a rapid field basket by Whitman and immediately followed it with a second. In the first quarter the Trojans built up a strong lead of 21-3, before the Sage got in gear. Swift, watching the game, then played the jump shot. State's "harrowing Tompkins" in the second quarter left the usual good form and raised State's score to 17 and the"opposition." State was 25 and 26-1 in the second half, when Swetman scored 6 of the 24 points for State and, when receiving a half near the end of play, sustained a badly sprained ankle. Two substitutions were made, and State led by two points. A basket by DuBois tied the score, 38-38. Two baskets by the Trojans following fast, again gave them the lead. A foul shot raised State's score one point, thus the whole play for the three points in favor of Russell Sage.

Muir did spectacular work in guarding her forward and Emple played a steady game. The only substitution was made at center-forward, Jones, Sage's center-forward, failed three guards in succession, and the crowd Miss Grace Castor of the Troy W.C.C.A. was referee.

A sketch is given an afforded novel entertainment for the audience. Ruth Scott was Juliet and Hilda Saar as Romeo gave a stage production. Jane Slingler, hostess, and Emily Williams, center, received the professor, Mrs. Rosie Horning, and watched his pupils, Bertha Zajian and Melanie Grant, dance.

Summary: Referee, Castor; Umpire, Emple; Final score—State 39  ; Russell Sage 42.
DEAN PIERCE FAVORS MODERN GIRL BEFORE NATIONAL CONVENTION

Let college girls wear short dresses and range a little, if they want to. They wouldn't listen to us if we try to dress them up into "prudish" ways. After all, we teach moderation and appreciation of good sense, and let it go at that.

Thus the attitude of dean of women's colleges and colleges over the country, expressed by Miss Pierce, dean of women, as she is quoted in special dispatches Saturday from Washington, D.C.

Miss Pierce echoed the opinions of members of the Federation of the National Association of Women at Washington.

Pierce said: "It's this way: you simply can't make a college girl wear wooden underwear in winter, no matter how uncomfortable she is. She's afraid of public opinion—the snicker of her schoolmates when they find out about it. But for schools insist on conforming to the general mold, no matter how far we try to bring them out of their individuality.

They will be in style. The dress and undergarment must be made for freedom of movement and health. I believe I'm for them. And I have a feeling that if the girl really needs it, she will be taking up. It's all a matter of being sanitary and healthy.

I have brought out that many a girl in a ventilated classroom all day is just as badly off from the health standpoint. They have a musty temperature very high or too low. And that makes them touchy.

Miss Eleanor Lord, of Smith College, recently encountered some girls with health problems in an open forum of their own. Dr. Martha Tracey, president of the Women's Federation for Health, Philadelphia, said:

"It is evident now that many girls in the high school are thinking of health that we have to combat. Not only college girls, but almost everybody fails to realize that the human machine must be cared for. A man or woman who dies at 40 has not insured his own body by neglecting it.

The session was also featured by a short film created by the Boston Boys' and Girls' Clubs, on mental hygiene, and a discussion by Dean Pierce. She said: "These girls, so necessary in the welfare of feminine students, are overtaxed now by languages and the liberal arts."

MISS ROWLEY HAS TEA AND VALENTINE PARTY

Miss Hazel A. Rowley of the faculty entertained at a Valentine bridge tea at her home in Myrtle Avenue recently.

A color scheme of red and white was carried out. Prizes were awarded to Miss Katherine Wheeling, Miss Edith O. Wallace and Miss Helen Oblinger. Other faculty guests were Mrs. Queen Ioma Fass and the Misses Agnes F. Hurley, Alice Eliza E. Fass, G. I. S. R. I. L. M. A. H. I. T. H. Mrs. Isabelle Johnston, Helen M. Phillips, et al. of the house, Miss Alice Scott and Miss Alice Scott of the board.

BUDGET PROVIDES FOR MORE ED PROFESSORS

The new College budget asks for one professor and two assistant professors in poetry. The increasing demand for advanced professional courses. Other requests call for small additions for the library, and clerical service, and telephone operator and clerk.

WHAT HOME ECONOMICS MEANS TO ME

By FLORENCE E. WINCHELL

The News' signed article by a faculty member is contributed this week.

Being an enthusiast in the field of home economics (I hope not merely a "novice"), I grasp this opportunity of trying to put into few words the subject means to me.

First of all as an ideal for American home life based upon those elements that in the experience of the race have stood the test of time as essential to wholesome heredity.

Second, an assumption of the social responsibility of each individual to that home for encouraging the best development of every other.

Third, a responsibility for helping each individual to an intelligent adaptation to the situation inherent in the home problems of his generation. Home economists are the critics of the existing standards.

In a high school we like to think that the teacher of home economics has an ideal for American home life made up of a composite gleaned from history, literature, happy experiences of her own and a wealth of social traditions.

The atmosphere of her department exemplifies high standards in personal relationships, efficiency and beauty of surroundings. This intellectual training that comes from stimulating education that takes place irrespective of class periods and credit points should be our first concern. Such education comes from channeling personal contacts from outside society with the real problems of the home and the world.

The National Federation of Students of America, Haight, President, Announces

State College To Be Asked To Join National Federation of Students of America

State College will be asked to join the National Federation of Students of America, either this year or next, S. B. Haight, president of the senior class, announced today in explaining the organization's aims. The National College Newspaper Conference, Princeton, to which Haight was a delegate, expressed its favor of a National Federation of Students of America.

This Federation is working for two main purposes, first, to secure an increased interest and influence among students, and second, to "achieve a closer unity between the colleges of the United States, to interpret the aims of the United States, to promote and sympathetic understanding between the students of this country and those of the rest of the world." Seven suggestions have been made for realizing these purposes:

First, "the establishment of scholarships between the colleges of America and Europe. These scholarships would be for the duration of one year and would be opened to juniors who would then return to their own colleges after being abroad."

Second, "student tours to Europe during the summer to study the social and economic conditions of Europe, and to attend a short course at some European university."

The World's Loudest Voice

On the rolling plains of South Schenectady, in several scattered buildings, is a vast laboratory for studying radio broadcasting problems. Gathered here are many kinds and sizes of transmitters, from the short-wave and low-power sets to the giant super-power unit with a 50- to 250-kilowatt voice.

Super-power and simultaneous broadcasting on several wave lengths from the same station are among the startling later-day developments in radio. And even with hundreds of broadcasting stations daily on the air throughout the land, these latest developments stand for still better service to millions of listeners.

Only five years old, yet radio broadcasting has developed from a laboratory experiment into a mighty industry. And alert, keen men have reaped the rewards.

But history repeats itself. Other electrical developments will continue to appear. And it will be the college man, with broad vision and trained mind, who will be ready to serve and succeed.
